THE SOCIETY JOURNAL OF FLORIDA EAST COAST, NASSAU, HAVANA

JEWELS BY VAN CLEEF & ARPELS

Never, to our knowledge, has a motor car captured the hearts of America's women motorists so quickly—or so completely—as has the 1954 Cadillac. And little wonder! For here, in this single motoring creation, is everything a lady could ever hope to find in an automobile—breath-taking beauty, magnificent luxury, brilliant performance and unrivaled prestige. If you haven't as yet seen and driven the 1954 Cadillac, we sincerely urge you to visit our showroom soon. You'll find that—in every way—this is the "year of years" for the "car of cars."

Ardena Invisible Veil

Elizabeth Arden's New, Invisible
Compact Powder... Completely Different

Invisible Veil is new in concept... new in its secret process of manufacture... and magnificently new in the fresh look of beauty it imparts to a woman's face. Here is a powder of such complete invisibility that it actually becomes the very texture of a woman's complexion. Invisible Veil covers shadows, refines pores, and gives a look of luminous clarity. With it every woman possesses the very touchstone of bright beauty.

Invisible Veil is a sheer masterpiece in powder that never flies or mists. Use it once, you'll never be without it.

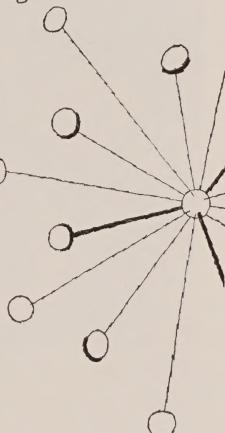

Elizabeth Arden has captured this translucent veil of beauty and put it in creamy solid form in a beautiful Napoleon Compact. Invisible Veil is in ten beautifully graduated shades . . . 2.00 price plus tax

 Yes...park the baby home with gramma
 But don't miss the GM MOTORAMA
 For you'll see the most amazing changes
 In GM cars of all price ranges...
 There's no room here. It would take a book
 To tell their wonders. You have to look
 At Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile,
 Buick and Cadillac's style appeal.
 And when it comes to dream cars, you
 Will find a parade of 'em, all brand-new.
 Anything else? Don't be absurd
 There's that miracle car, the FIREBIRD.
 And why the capital letter mention?
 It's the first U.S. car with a gas turbine engine.
 And will you happy hausfraus stare
 At the Kitchen of the Future by Frigidaire,
 While your husbands keep impatiently steering
 You toward exhibits on engineering...
 Guess you have plenty of reasons to go.
 But...wait, we forgot the big stage show!
 A dancing hit with a 20 piece band
 And tunes they'll whistle all over the land.

Clothes, Through the Ages, influenced by Social Trends

HAN HISTORICAL STUDY OF CLOTHES from pre-historic times down to the present, indicates that social trends influenced styles and vagaries. Here in capsule form are some of the highlights: in prehistoric Europe, people were in conflict with the elements and struggle for survival being the main issue, clothes were for protection. Animal skins were fashioned with the crude tools available and there was evidently no discussion of hemlines. However it is interesting to ponder, "did the best-dressed cave woman steer away from wearing leopard skins, if she had freckles"?

Under the Gothic influence, the lacy spires and pointed arches of the buildings were reflected in the long lines of costumes and pointed head-dresses. Simplicity was the keynote. With the Renaissance and a new interest in living which built up to an exuberant, worldly, luxurious and sensuous existence, clothes took on a "new look". Rounded arches in buildings were echoed in puffed sleeves; fabrics were extravagant and magnificent; horizontal lines were featured in both architecture and clothes; rich colors were rampant.

The Elizabethan period continued the same zest for luxurious clothes in England, as that on the continent. It was the age of Shakespeare . . . Chinese and Indian influences through commerce.

The "Louis's" of France with their delicate furniture, pastel Aubussons, Marie Antoinettes and DuBarrys, gave the world the era of Romanticism. Clothes were flirtatious, wigs and ruffles abounded, skirts were bouffant, topped with off-the-shoulder decolletage.

During the Victorian epoch, dominated by a queen who was predominately a mother and grandmother, clothes assumed sentimental fussiness with accent on the pretty side, but often very dowdy. Whatnot cabinets and horsehair upholstery, set the scene for some of the atrocious designs of the time.

The evolution of American fashions is equally complicated and interesting. In the North, religious women were fighting a rigorous climate. Houses were compact to guard against severe winters . . . clothes, extremely simple, both from conviction and necessity.

In the South, the warm climate, large mansions with sunny rooms, leisure through slavery and a lackadaisical atmosphere, produced tulles and tarlatans and very feminine frou frou clothes. Extensive entertaining in gracious settings, established the mood for living and wardrobes.

Then, came the Gay 90's with the Flora Dora Sextets, ostrich plumes, Anna Held and Diamond Jim Brady. All of the ostentatious display, the result of fabulous fortunes in the hands of persons who had more imagination than good taste.

Coming down to contemporary aspects of life and living, the keynote for a number of years has been functionalism. Clothes and furniture repeating the modern trends, featured stark simplicity with accent on angles, to match the skyscrapers; gradually turning to streamlined curves. With the advent of women in sports, "active clothes" became the vogue . . . stressing comfort as well as chic.

World War II brought bravado to the style scene, accenting bright colors, low decolletage, too much jewelry. Then, more conservative styles and color tones, expressing a spirit of determination and calm. For instance, spring 1941 exploited silver cloud grey, barley gold, sea mist, wheat beige; emphasizing the indestructible beauties of nature.

Post War influences starred the revolutionary "new look" by Christian Dior; extravagantly wide and long skirts to celebrate the end of rationing; rich fabrics; ornate jewelry. During the past several years, hemlines have been shortened to a conservative length and modification has been the theme in all designing. The fall of 1953 saw the "battle of the hemlines" with Dior again starting the fashion controversy. His collection sponsored short skirts, Schiaparelli said "it was bunk" and after all of the top designers here and abroad discussed the matter pro and con, the American woman decided to do as she pleased and wear her skirts at a length which was most becoming to her figure. And, that brings us to 1954 and a season of individualized styles, which are as varied as they are smart. "Clothes that really do something for you."

In the spring and summer preview of the American collections for the press and radio, held in New York last month, the key to fashion futures as exploited by topnotch designers is:

Hattie Carnegie is sponsoring "padlock pockets," spoke seam skirts, "stick pin corsages." The "four-cornered" skirt and "Girl Friday" jacket, which is the little Carnegie coat of the season, are other styleworthy notes.

Pauline Trigere titled her collection the "passe partout." Clever "key costumes" planned to go everywhere, by adding or subtracting accessories.

Clothes with a lift are Mollie Parnis' greeting to spring 1954 . . . the "Goddess Bodice," "Dancing Girl Skirt," "Glamour Spots," "Regency Sheath."

The "balanced look" is featured by Christian Dior, by following the natural curves of the feminine silhouette and by use of the parallel, both straight and curved.

Maurice Rentner has decreed that an Arab's head and a feminine waistline should get the same treatment . . . the "turban wrap." His new look of attached or removable cummerbunds, which circle waistlines, require a slim torso.

Jacques Fath's designs for the American collection, are based on the "Manifold silhouette" and the "Crown-darted waistline." His magic scissors and sculptor's touch with drapery, bring new expressions to the lithe, yet curved modern figure.

Cat Cay

"Alisa, Bernice, Cudacatcher, Caliban"—Sounds like some kind of magic hocus-pocus abracadabra or a formula for stirring up a Hallowe'en witches brew, but actually it's the names of some of the luxury craft that line the harbor at Pirates' Cove, Cat Cay, Bahamas.

There are large yachts, small yachts, fishing boats, sail boats—even dinghies in this fleet of pleasure boats at this tiny, hide-away island. Smallest boat is the "Deep Sea Doodle", with Hope Lange of New York aboard; largest is the 100 foot power ketch, "Mercury", owned by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Pew, Jr., of Bryn Mawr, Pa., who have just opened their Cat Cay home, Pew House, and have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. David Odell of Malvern, Pa.

Aboard the Bernice II, trim auxiliary ketch anchored off shore at Cat Cay are Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fuhrer of Fort Lauderdale, and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Richardson of Charleston, W.Va.

"Alisa IV" is an impressive looking yacht and a regular visitor to Cat Cay. Aboard are E. H. Bobst of New York, Stewart Wagner of the same city, and Dr. H. B. Cooper of Lancaster, Pa.

Sylvester Kollmann of Miami and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hilker of Port Clinton, Ohio, were aboard the "Flying Ebony" when it recently dropped anchor at Cat Cay, and a threesome from the Greater Miami area, T. B. Walker, Jr. of Miami Springs; Jack Knowles of Coral Gables and J. C. Coleman, Jr., of Miami are fishing on the "Cudacatcher".

Fred Ayers is owner of the stately Minerva and with the Texan at Cat Cay are a group of friends.

"Blue Jacket" and her companion, the "Skipper", owned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Mercer of New York, are among Cat Cay's fleet docked in the harbor. The Mercers are owners of a home "Westward Ho" at Cat Cay, and have as their guests at the present time, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith of Wales.

"Caliban IV" is making a short visit to Cat Cay, and aboard are C. B. Guernsey of Pine Orchard, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. R. T. MacGrotty of Manhattan, Long Island.

Capt. Derby Saxton and his faithful pooch, Nipper have arrived at Pirates Cove and are on the "Hazel Mack".

Louis R. Wasey, owner of Cat Cay, flew to his home in New York for a brief sojourn, but returned Saturday.

The Ambassador

LOCATED ON THE PICTURESQUE tropical strand which bisects the Atlantic and Lake Worth, the Ambassador Hotel and Villas, is not only a show place in the resort, but considered one of the important building projects in southern Florida. Occupying about five hundred feet of oceanfront land, it is a perfect "home away from home", including all of the needed facilities for a perfect winter residence in the southland.

Besides the Cabana Club on the ocean and ideal sunning and swimming advantages in natural surroundings, there is a spacious pool and several colorful sundecks. It is an apartment hotel . . . your own apartment or home, with all of a hotel's various services. The Villas comprise efficiency apartments, each equipped with their own private cabana.

In spite of its size, there is an atmosphere of warmth, friendliness and informality about the Ambassador. From the moment you step into the smart lobby, in Chinese-modern decor, all through the attractive appointments in private living quarters and the smart public rooms. And, no matter from what vantage point you may look from within the building, there is always the brilliance of the ocean or the "inland sea" spread in all directions, as far as the eye can reach . . . as relaxing, as the vistas are beautiful.

The Embassy Room, with its white and gold decor and heraldic emblem decorative motifs, is one of the most distinctive dining rooms in the resort. Adjacent to this is the Terrace, an informal spot where guests may enjoy breakfast, luncheon or dinner, in a tropical atmosphere. From here, one may delight in one of the most beautiful vistas imaginable . . . an incomparable view of the Atlantic, plus lush tropical trees, flowers and plants. The room is done in restful tones of blue, dramatized with hanging baskets of fruit from the ceiling.

Red and black are featured in the decor of the smart adjoining cocktail lounge. A popular rendezvous at the cocktail hour and late evening, especially. From six o'clock on, Fred Witmer popular pianist of Chicago, entertains with impromptu selections. His clever pianistics are a conversation piece among the Ambassador guests; emanating from the foyer which connects the Embassy Room and cocktail lounge.

The Ambassador Villas are open throughout the year and last summer were completely occupied most of the time. According to Mr. Sander Weinstock, president and managing director of the Ambassador properties, 1954 will undoubtedly be the best season in the history of the place, with reservations exceeding that of last year.

The entire property has been attractively landscaped, enhancing the beauty of the buildings. Both the hotel and villas were designed by architect John Stetson. The plan is modern and this trend is echoed in the interior decorating. Smart simplicity is the keynote, featuring modern furnishings and accessories, plus soft colors for the background.

Numerous celebrities and distinguished guests visit the Ambassador each season. They like the idea of being away from the noise and bustle of the city, yet within easy reach of shopping districts, clubs, golf courses and the like.

Cooled by the Gulfstream breezes, this location is comfortable all-year-round. In the torrid summer months, it is said to be much more desirable than most northern mountain resorts.

An underground garage, which accommodates numerous cars, is an asset for guests of the Ambassador; accessible to the hotel by swift elevator service. Limousine service is provided by the management for Palm Beach shopping and for airport and terminal convenience.

241 WORTH AVENUE
PALM BEACH, FLORIDA

WITHIN EASY boating and flying distance of Palm Beach the stamp of Europe is impressed on the fabric of tropical climate; here are African and native peoples and a centuries-old way of life. The stamp is blurred by contact with the softening fabric, to beautiful effect.

The cultures, dress and languages of Denmark, Spain, England, France, Holland and Portugal came in contact with many different cultures and languages of Africa in the colonizing days after Christopher Columbus first discovered his miraculous new lands; and all blended and ran among the native population already there.

On the slopes of towering peaks and in the steamy, tropical valleys; on glittering beaches and primitive villages, the relationship of master and slave became a two-way road, as is the modern relation between employer and employee. Wives of colonizing Castilian and Londoner wore the intriguing native colors and fabrics. Natives of the Virgin Islands, Jamaica, Trinidad and the coastal states of Central and South America adopted the derby hat and denim trousers. Superstitious whites studied the rites of voodoo and eager natives clustered around the Christian missions.

In the homogeneous charm of our Caribbean neighbors heterogeneous elements are still easily discerned by the hordes of Americans who have "discovered" the Caribbean countries some four and a half centuries after Columbus.

Main tourist stops in the Caribbean are Nassau; Cap Haitien and Ciudad Trujillo in the Dominican Republic; Port-au-Prince in Haiti; San Juan, St. Thomas, St. Croix, Antigua, Martinique, Port-of-Spain, Caracas in Venezuela; Guatemala City; Merida and Mexico City, Mexico; Kingston and Montego Bay, Jamaica and Havana, Cuba.

Much less well known, but none the less interesting and colorful are the smaller islands that could only be reached by boat, and often through devious passages, until recently. Among these are the islands of the Netherlands Antilles, Curacao, Aruba and Bonaire.

When the Dutch colonize they always succeed in giving their territories the unmistakably Holland flavor of neatness. Somehow the Dutch make cleanliness palatable to natives who had never before considered it of primary importance. Curacao is a fine example. With a population of approximately 100,000 people on the island itself, it was formerly a Dutch colony and is now an overseas territory with extensive self government. A favorite with American tourists who have discovered its quaint charm, Curacao is clean and cool; progressive and prosperous.

In Willemstad, the capitol of Curacao, there are several fine hotels, four banks, four good clubs, telephone and telegraph communication with the United States and an excellent museum. The unit of currency is the guilder, worth about fifty-three cents American. Creole food is a specialty in Willemstad, with Dutch, Spanish, Oriental and American available to the taste of the tourist.

Protestant and Roman Catholic churches dominate the religious life of the island; but one of the Jewish synagogues there dates back to 1732, making it among the oldest in the western hemisphere. The oldest Protestant church was built in 1769, and is located in the square back of Government House.

The island of Aruba, smaller than Curacao, is an important oil refining center. Here reside fifty-five thousand people of varied ancestry and customs. Oranjestad, the chief city of Aruba, is typically Dutch; typically clean and industrious. Aruba's Palm Beach is one of the finest in the West Indies, the beach a sparkling three-mile expanse for bathing, sailing and excellent fishing.

Because of the low import duties, Swiss watches, French perfumes, silk and carved ivory from the Orient, Brazilian and Argentine leather goods, Portuguese embroideries and laces, Spanish shawls, Irish linen, Panama hats, porcelains, liqueurs and liquors, silverware and brassware are buys as reasonable as native souvenirs.

An Invitation

*E*ACH YEAR more and more residents of Palm Beach and vicinity have relied on our Trust Department to provide estate planning assistance and trust services designed to meet the most exacting requirements.

Whether you are a Florida resident of long standing, or a newcomer who has not considered the advantages of becoming a legal resident of this state, you will find our Trust Officers ever ready to discuss all practical phases of investment or estate problems in confidence, and without any obligation whatsoever. Comparisons of taxes in Florida with other states are available upon request.

As one of the pioneer trust institutions of south Florida we act as Executor or Administrator of Estates, Trustee under agreements made during one's lifetime, or under the provisions of wills, Custodian of Securities, Guardian, or Curator, under order of the Court, Escrow Agent, and in other recognized trust capacities.

As a public service, we are now distributing an interesting pamphlet published by the Florida Bar Association and based on Florida law, entitled "Have You Made A Will?" Copies will be mailed to interested persons upon request.

Society of the Four Arts Makes Impressive Modigliani Showing

QN JANUARY 8, members of the Society of the Four Arts previewed the second and outstanding exhibition of the Palm Beach season, an opulent, stimulating and, surprisingly enough, controversial retrospective of Amadeo Modigliani, the Paris-Italian painter.

Only the ninth comprehensive retrospective given anywhere in the world of the work of this artist, the Society of the Four Arts exhibition is memorable in many respects. Thanks to the artistic discrimination and personal persuasiveness of Allan McNab, art advisor to the Society, the cream of American-owned Modiglianis have been assembled.

Twenty-two collectors of art and ten public collections lent from their treasures to make this exhibition an art event of national importance. Included are the Palm Beach residents Mrs. Neil Cowham and Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell.

Mrs. Cowham's loans consist of a painting, "Les Yeux Bleus", an unusually sweet piece for Modigliani, and a valuable drawing. Mr. Campbell's loan is entitled "Raimonde" and is as fine an example of Modigliani as one could wish for.

The personal collections lavishly enriching this show include: Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Ault, with "Boy in Black Shirt"; Colonel Samuel A. Berger, whose "Madame Hebuterne", is a sculptural piece, unconsciously haloed by the artist's gratitude; Mr. and Mrs. Leigh B. Block, with an unusual and opulent "Seated Nude"; Mr. Ralph M. Coe, who, in addition to the "Boy with Red Hair", rhythmically expressive; Prince and Princess Artchil Gourielli, who made the largest single loan to the exhibit, two paintings, "Head" and "Woman with a Hat", and two drawings of fine graphic quality, "Seated Man" and "Soldier's Head"; Mr. and Mrs. Sydney A. Levyne, whose "Madame Zborowska" is fascinating by comparison with the earlier "Ann Zborowska" from the Museum of Modern Art; Henry Pearlman, who, in addition to the "Portrait of Dr. Brabander, French Officer", never previously exhibited in this country, also lent the touching "Young Girl Seated", illustrated herewith; Stanley

R. Resor, contributing the tortured portrait of "Blaise Cendrars"; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ritter, lending the expressive "Portrait of Beatrice Hastings"; and, finally, Mrs. Lloyd B. Westcott, with a fittingly dramatic "Portrait of an Actor".

Three other private loans must be discussed as symbols of a spirit of sharing art that is a tribute to those who have initiated what may become a trend. Three loans have been made to the Modigliani show by living collectors. By the express wish of these collectors their gesture has been made to appear impersonal. The first includes two paintings, "Portrait of Lunia Czechowska" and "Woman in Black", and a very fine and dynamic drawing "Caryatid". They are listed as loans of the Chester Dale Collection. The second, the famous "Amazone", with all of its influences of Aubrey

"Nu: l'Algérienne Almaissa," one of the two Modigliani nudes shown at the Four Arts.

"Anna Zborowska," portrait of the wife of Modigliani's most faithful supporter, from the Museum of Modern Art.

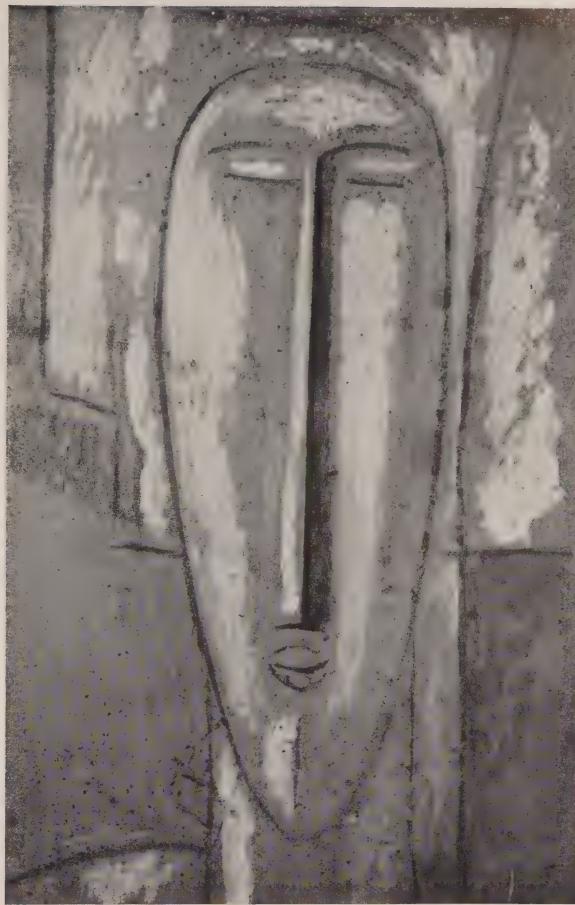

Beardsley, Toulouse-Lautrec and something of Soutine, is listed as coming from the Lewyt Collection. Lastly, there appears the stimulating "Elena Pawlowski" loaned by that remarkable creation of Douglas Phillips, the Phillips Gallery, in the nation's capital. These three opulent loans made with such personal modesty make for interesting commentary on the thought that a work of art cannot be owned, even by the artist. It can only be shared.

Possibly the single most important contribution made by a public museum is the "Stone Head", from the Philadelphia Museum of Art. One of the six or eight pieces of sculpture that are known of Modigliani's favorite medium, this piece may appear, superficially, to remind one of the experiments of Brancusi or to be attributable to the influence of Polynesian and African art which Modigliani, with others in post-war Paris, had studied enthusiastically. However, under scrutiny, Modigliani's personal concept of form appears in all its individuality in this important piece. Mr. McNab, in a lecture that gave added interest to the exhibition, pointed out that this piece belonged to a period where the artist,

"Young Girl Seated," one of the two Modigliani canvases lent to the Four Arts retrospective by Henry Pearlman.

An example of the characteristic Modigliani sculptural style of drawing: "Head of a Girl" to be compared with the stone "Head."

unwilling to admit that the weakness of his lungs would never permit him to develop the school of direct carving he wanted to create at the Carrara quarries, was conceiving his work in terms of sculptural ensembles. Viewed in this manner monumen-tally, that is—this lone head takes one back to other hieratic periods of the sculptor's art down the ages. It also assigns Modigliani to the place his early death may have refused him.

Surprisingly, although Modigliani has taken his place as a classic among the "moderns", the coppered brilliance of the Four Arts exhibit proved him still to be controversial in the eyes of many. One would like to suggest that Romanesque sculpture, hallowed by the passage of centuries, took no more liberties than did the artist from Livorno. There is also the precedent of the, admittedly, more mystical vision of El Greco. The deformation for the purpose of emphasis stems from a similar concept, however.

And lastly, among these vivid images, powerful as icons, unforgettable as personalities in their own right, statements vigorously made, audacious and self-contained, it is to be noted that no one feels indifferent. This is not painting which one ignores. This is painting that challenges response, favorable or otherwise. It is, therefore, communication.

As such, it is art.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. De Peyster were among those enjoying the brilliant preview of the nationally important Modigliani exhibit.

GREETINGS TO THE SOUTHLAND. It seems to me there is more of a social whirl in Palm Beach than here in Manhattan. Judging from reports of friends there for the season and others, flying down for winter vacations.

A society wedding here, which was of national interest and particularly to Florida, was that of Miss Elizabeth Firestone of Akron, O., to Charles F. Willis, Jr., of Washington, White House Aide. A number of Palm Beachers were glimpsed among the guests at the wedding and the reception which followed in the Pierre ballroom; also in the wedding party.

Suppose you saw the Clarence R. Bitting's 3d, while they were in the resort on their honeymoon, stopping at the Colony. It was a quiet wedding in the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral for the son of the former president of the U. S. Sugar Corporation and the former Miss Polly Aaron, a striking brunette.

Gala benefit parties and balls go on and on in New York, for worthy charities, when all society turns out for the important occasions, presenting a veritable fashion show. A number of them as you undoubtedly heard about, had glamorous themes, around which to build the dazzling affairs. Particularly colorful was "The Bal Des Berceaux at the Waldorf, to raise funds for the care of war orphans, and the "La Bal Blanc," at the Sherry Netherlands, in the Carnival Room, for the benefit of victims of communism.

The "Dixie Dinner Dance" given by the New York Southern Society, honoring Texas' governor Allan Shivers and Mrs. Shivers, should be especially interesting to "you all" down there in Florida, as I know you have numerous Texans wintering in Palm Beach; many of whom I understand attended the gay party.

I don't know whether your Palm Beach Playhouse goes in for benefit performances during the season, but as you know, we have much of that in Manhattan. Various organizations take over theatres and the proceeds are donated to worthy institutions. A successful affair in this category was the performance of "His and Hers" with Celeste Holm and Robert Preston in the leading roles, at Forty-eighth Street Theatre. The entire place was taken over by members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Union Settlement Association and the names in the audience sounded like a "who's who in society."

A conversation piece around town, is the novel "True or False" loan exhibition at the Wildenstein Galleries, for the benefit of the Menninger Foundation; it will continue until February 21. The showing was brought to this country by the Corning Museum of Glass and comprises a collection of masterpieces, from the Fifteenth Century to the present time. It includes some of the most flagrant forgeries in the manner of the masters, hence the "true or false" title. Noted among the list of sponsors, many Palm Beach winter residents and visitors.

Injecting a sad note, suppose you have heard about the demise of Mrs. George Washington Kavanaugh, who was a faithful first-nighter at the Metropolitan Opera for thirty years. Her unusual personality vying with her fabulous collection of jewels for attention. Twice during the 1946-47 season, she lost diamond bracelets, worth five thousand and ten thousand dollars respectively. Both were later returned to her.

Miss Elaine David-Weill, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre David-Weill, of New York and Paris, and Mr. Truman Bidwell, Jr., took part in Second Empire tableaux, a highlight of the Assembly Ball held in The Plaza to benefit the Youth Consultation Service of the Episcopal Diocese of N.Y. Miss David-Weill appeared as Empress Eugenie and Mr. Bidwell was a courtier.

Understand the "Heminway Story" was almost local down your way, since the unpredictable Ernest bought a house in Key West years ago, to be handy to deep-sea fishing and where he wrote "To Have and To Have Not," made popular by the film, starring Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall.

I was quite thrilled to receive an invitation to the Inaugural Polo Ball at the Boca Raton Club, February 26, which according to reports, will be one of the outstanding society events of your season. We are quite polo-minded here you know; I still attend many of the weekly games by the Metropolitan Polo League, which shifted the time to Sunday, which is much more convenient for all enthusiasts.

Of all the events I have participated in this winter, one of the most interesting was the Thirtieth Anniversary celebration of the young people's concerts of the New York Philharmonic Symphony, held at Carnegie Hall. The idea began back in 1924, by Ernest Schelling. The occasion was marked by a birthday cake with electric candles, a tribute to Mr. Schelling by Deems Taylor, a speech by Mrs. Schelling, the composer-conductor's widow and the performance of Schelling's Barceuse and Irish Jib. The cake was wheeled on to the stage by ten-year-old Robert Wagner, son of our mayor. The house lights were darkened and the orchestra played "happy birthday." Mrs. Schelling's wish over the cake was that "twenty years hence, the audience would bring their children to the concerts' fiftieth anniversary. It was all very impressive.

For the benefit of A.S.P.C.A. New York society danced at a gala "Animal Kingdom Ball" at the Pierre. A large subscription was also reported for the opening performance of the "Hollywood Ice Revue" at Madison Square Garden, for the benefit of the United Hospital Fund. Apropos of this, heard Palm Beach will stage a huge hospital benefit at the Everglades Club March 4, based on a jade theme, since it is the 35th anniversary of Good Samaritan, the beneficiary. Please write me soon and give me the details and perhaps I can fly down for the event.

There may be some complications down your way, if Doris Duke, former wife of Porfirio Rubirosa, weds Charles Trent, the French night club singer as rumored . . . and they decide to honeymoon in Palm Beach. They have been invited to do so, by Rubirosa, you know. He and his bride, Barbara Hutton, I understand have taken the mansion of the Maharajah and Maharanee of Baroda at 1860 South Ocean Blvd. in your resort for their Palm Beach stay. Are they going about much socially?

Oh yes, and how about Lily Pons and her maestro husband Andre Kostelanetz, were they in Palm Beach this winter; or, are they expected, as I know they always do land there sometime during the season? Lily, as you may have read, sang her hundredth performance of "Lucia" in "Lucia Di Lammermoor" at the Metropolitan this season. Jan Peerce as Edgardo, is the thirteenth tenor to appear in this role, with the famous coloratura. Among others have been Gigli, Martinelli, Schipa, Martini, Jagel. A distinguished procession indeed, to have sung with one tiny soprano.

Well, I seem to have reached the end of my "gossip rope" and do hope you'll write me soon about the exciting life in Palm Beach.

Cordially,

Katharine.

Star-Studded

IT SEEMS SAFE TO PREDICT that Palm Beach and Miami Beach will have one of the most gala social seasons since Hialeah race course, always a barometer as to what the coming months will hold, had an opening that was the second greatest in its history.

According to custom, when Hialeah's gates open each January, the season officially begins for the socially prominent who cluster in South Florida each winter.

This year Hialeah had a carefully kept surprise for its customers. Making its debut was the new $2,500,000 clubhouse which superseded the 1932 building that was erected by the late Joseph E. Widener and which has grown too small for the hordes of racegoers the flamingo-studded track now attracts.

On hand to ride up and down on the six escalators, the two passenger elevators and to pose for newspaper photographers on the twin sweeping staircases at the entrance, were social registerites and celebrities by the gross.

The group coming by special train from Palm Beach so far exceeded expectations that a number of the better-than-500 who boarded its cars, found standing room only.

This clubhouse, architectured and decorated in the same French-Chateau style that Widener adopted so effectively for the tropical park he created on the edge of the Everglades, has three times the space that its predecessor contained and the emphasis is on walking-around room.

Society Goes to the Races...

Two patrons who inspected every nook and cranny of the three level structure were Mrs. Fifi Widener Wichfeld, daughter of Joseph Widener, and Mrs. Cortwright Wetherill, granddaughter of the well-known sportsman and art collector.

The acres of promenading room gave the fashionably dressed ladies a chance to show off each fashion-wise ensemble. Mrs. John Oliver LaGorce who, with her National Geographic magazine editor husband, lives in Washington, chose a charcoal gray suit bound in white.

Mrs. Horatio Luro, wife of the well-known horse trainer, sported a full-skirted denim blue dress with a sailor collar and red silk tie. Mrs. James Butler of Palm Beach took the warm afternoon gracefully in a pale beige shantung covered by a brown hand-knit sweater.

Mrs. Bernard Gimbel of New York, who, with her husband, was a guest of Hialeah President John C. Clark for lunch, chose a stunning white, gray and black silk print, topped with a black hat trimmed with cornflowers.

A silk print with a white background and small red and blue blocks was the attire of Mrs. Evelyn Hopkins of Cleveland.

The international statesmen set was well represented not only by the Kennedys, but by Mme. George de Gripenberg whose husband is the Finnish minister to Sweden, and by Stanton Griffis, former ambassador to Spain.

Pretty Baroness Dolores von Furstenburg was the center of much attention during the afternoon. She is staying at Palm Beach with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loel Guinness who own a well-known Normandy stud farm, Haras de Plencourt.

One of England's best known and most successful thoroughbred trainers Fred Armstrong, and his wife Maureen, were seeing Hialeah for the first time. They were the luncheon guests of Col. and Mrs. Leslie Buswell.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Look of Lexington, Ky., who formerly stayed at Delray and this year have taken a house at Miami Beach, had as their guests, their daughter Mrs. Donald Anderson and her husband, of Winter Park.

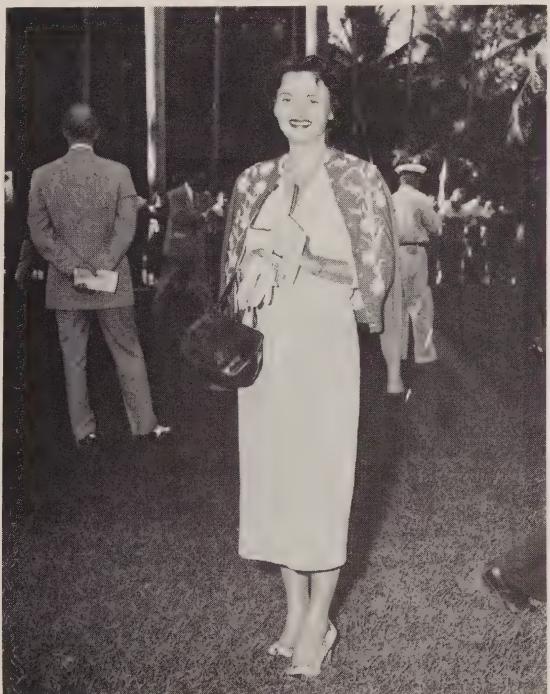

Movie star Jimmy Stewart signed many autographs and his wife Gloria greeted old friends. Dan Topping, co-owner of the New York Yankees and Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, both spent the afternoon in search of a winner. John Sims (Shipwreck) Kelly former All-American football player and now the estranged husband of Brenda Frazier, went almost unnoticed in the crowd.

Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to the Court of St. James, is pictured at Hialeah race track with Mrs. Kennedy, center, and her sister, Mrs. George Connelly.

Miami —

THREE BOATING HEADLINERS and the $50,000 McLennan Stakes at Hialeah feature the coming two weeks activities in Miami.

Numerous events on Miami's winter calendar provide a wide selection for visitor and resident alike.

The internationally-known Lipton Cup Ocean Sailing race gets under way here tomorrow (Feb. 6) over the customary closed course. It will be closely followed by the Miami-Nassau Ocean Sailing race, Feb. 9. Many of the nation's top yachtsmen compete in these two events, including many Palm Beachers. The Biscayne Bay Motorboat regatta, Miami's oldest regatta, is slated for Feb. 14-15.

Hialeah will serve up the $50,000 McLennan Stakes race, one of its major season events, Feb. 13.

These events will be preceded by the International Horse Show, Feb. 5 through 8th at Miami stadium and the General Motors show at Dinner Key Exposition Hall, Feb. 6-14.

Revival of the City of Miami bridge tournament will bring approximately 400 of the leading bridge players in Florida and the nation here for the opening tonight (Feb. 5). A large contingent of Palm Beachers will participate. Among the leading players entered are Waldemar von Zedwitz, second ranking bridge player in the world, Helen Sobel, leading woman's player and Harold Harkavy, another of the world's leading players.

Antique collectors can enjoy a four-day antique show in Miami Municipal auditorium, Feb. 11-14. Many of the nation's top collectors are represented at this exposition where more than $1,000,000 in objects will be on display.

The annual Harvest of Harmony show, this year featuring the Chordettes, formerly with Arthur Godfrey, opens at Dade county auditorium Feb. 12-13. The show will present seven of the state's leading quartets.

University of Miami's Symphony orchestra will have the leading Brazilian conductor and composer, Heitor Villa-Lobos, as guest conductor Feb. 14-15 at the Dade auditorium.

Villa-Lobos, received an honorary doctor's degree from the University of Miami at its graduation exercises Feb. 1.

On the program are two of Villa-Lobos' compositions. "Momoprecoce" (Fantaisie pour piano et orchestra) with Maxim Schapiro, on the piano solo, and "Choros Number Six."

Other selections to be presented are "The Bolero" by Ravel, "The Deux Interlude" by Paul le Flem (de la Magicienne de la Mer) and the overture, "King Stephen," by Beethoven.

Also appearing at the Dade auditorium will be the International Repertory ballet, Feb. 20.

The Miami Boat show, featuring the latest designs in boats, will open Feb. 19 at Dinner Key Exposition Hall. The show will remain open for one week.

Jamaica Gains in Popularity—

is bound to be tops in popularity in the Caribbean area this season.

Jamaica last season enjoyed a record volume of tourists, mostly North Americans, and even that record was topped during the year just closed, when the sunny island's tourist popularity was up 19 per cent or a total of 86,000 visitors. That volume did not include the great influx into the island during November, when Jamaica's winter season was launched early by the visit of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, with her distinguished Duke and the royal party.

"Jamaica's prospects for maintaining our increase in tourists during the 1954 winter season are exceptionally good," states Frederick H. Robertson, the experienced tourist trade commissioner of the attractive British Colony.

Jamaica's hotel accommodations are enhanced this season by the addition of two new hotels. They are the Half Moon Bay and Round Hill, both near Montego Bay.

The deluxe establishments provide the mountainous little island with a total of 56 hotels of various types. They are scattered throughout the island in varied attractive sites on the seashore and in the mountains. Other hotels in the Montego Bay area which have completed improvements or expansions include the Casa Blance, Montego Beach, Chatham, Gloucester House and Beach View. The Chatham has increased its capacity from 95 to 123 guests and has added a large salt water swimming pool.

The Bay Roc Hotel, just west of Montego Bay, has completed a new dining room and cocktail lounge. The Mar Vista has been completely refurnished and redecorated for this season.

In the Ocho Rios section, Silver Seas Hotel has added a new floor containing deluxe junior suites. The dining facilities and the night-club area also have been expanded. Famous Shaw Park Hotel has added twelve additional bedrooms and the dance hall and dining room have been enlarged. Both the Jamaica Inn and Tower Isle have completed improvements.

Eaton Hall has extended its dining patio to the water line of the seashore and has added a terrace dance floor and fountain.

Newest tourist attraction on Jamaica's southern shore, near Kingston, is at Port Royal, the famous pirate city of the days of Captain Henry Morgan and his notorious pirates. This is located at the edge of the harbor on a narrow stretch of gorgeous beach. It was recently honored by the visit of Queen Elizabeth and her royal party. This spot, called Morgan's Harbour Club, provides sea water bathing, fishing, boating, dining, dancing and facilities for visiting yachts.

Jamaica's enlarged and improved hotel facilities are a natural result of the spread of knowledge of the island's dependable winter sunshine and balmy temperature both day and night. The island's active tourist season also is extending into spring, when the average temperatures range from 76 degrees, and summer when 78 degrees is average, with breezes constantly blowing from the sea. At mountain resorts, of course, the temperatures are much cooler.

Airline services to Jamaica are intensified this year with the main volume of travel carried by Pan American, KLM (Royal Dutch Lines), British Overseas Airways and Delta-Chicago and Southern Airlines. Avianca also operates regular services from Miami and New York.

Sketching on the Jungle Cruise

WITHIN AN HOUR BY BOAT from Palm Beach lies a wealth of form and color to rejoice the eye and stimulate the mind as the relaxed course of the Jungle Cruise unfolds in surprising delight. For many years the Jungle Cruise along the Loxahatchee River has been a Palm Beach tradition. Appealing to camera fans and vacationers alike, this sudden immersion in the remoteness and tranquil energy of teeming growth always brings enchantment.

Another way to enjoy this cruise and, perhaps, the best way of all, is to take it sketchbook in hand. The boat moves slowly, once the course is within the jungle proper. As each aspect of luxuriant growth comes into view there is time to record the structure that sets it apart from the rest: an imposing cedar outlined against the sky, dwarfing palms and guava trees that curve beneath its branches; a blue heron near water's edge perched in silent wariness above a miniature lagoon enclosed by aerial roots; deep vistas in jungle depths teeming with all the color of urgent growth ascending towards the light. These things one catches as permanent memories when resting a sketchbook on one's knees. The tricks that an inclination to laziness may play on the mind make the sketchbook a key to deeper enjoyment. Without it you may not feel drawn to analyze each facet of your pleasure. On the other hand, if you wish to take back with you even the most cursory notations of the scenes unfolding on each side of the boat, you are brought to see what it is that has stimulated your response, your visual pleasure.

There is nothing cold or self-conscious about this process. We all react to the rhythms of harmony. The contrasts and the "marriages" of color do not leave us indifferent.

In one person this response will be called taste, in another artistic temperament. But we all feel pleasure from things that meet the eye. The sketchbook is a way of finding out WHY.

The power of cedar growth brings contrast to the jungle scene: clear lines and values stand out against the soft maze of less forthright forms.

Mangrove trees at waterside provide infinite variations of rhythmic form to delight the Everglades sketcher.

On the Jungle Cruise a sketchbook will force you to register on the inner eye of memory much that you otherwise would not see fully enough to recall later. The order of tropic growth is so rich that we are prone to think of "the jumble of the jungle." With a broad soft pencil or a large soft chalk in your hand, order emerges from apparently chaotic wealth. As the boat moves on you will just have time to make a shorthand notation of the essentials of what has caught your eye, while the color groupings, the lights and shades will have to remain in your memory. But you will find your eye singularly alive and efficient. Later, when going over your quick sketches of form, rhythm and contrast,

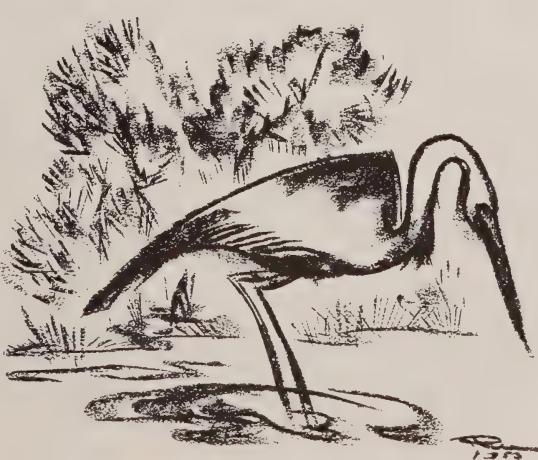

Amid the opulence of jungle life the sketcher's eye will seize one typical or arresting arrangement of forms or lines of growth, a simple gem to denote treasure too great to grasp.

all the rest you registered but did not get down on paper will emerge, vigorous and fresh. The result: a personal selection of impressions that nothing else could give you. And be it remembered that no one has the right to say: "But I can't draw." Sketching does not require that. All that is needed is to see fully and with deep awareness; to see with your mind open; to enjoy what you see and then find out why. A pencil will give you the answer. And a day in the jungle can awaken you to new harmonies.

The colors of the jungle, modified as they reflect in still waters, enrich the memory of the jungle sketcher who will find that gray skies or clear ones give unexpected values to Everglades vegetation.

Scouting the Shops

SHRUGS & LOLLYPOPS: If you aren't knitting these days, you're certainly behind the times and the Evelyn Curtis shop, 7 Via Parigi, is the place to go for materials and instructions too, if needed. The newest vagaries are: knitted shrugs with pearls and sequin leaves; lollipop drawstring handbags. Unique sweater trimming available; novelty yarns.

INDIAN SARI EVENING GOWNS: Traina-Norell's smart novelty in evening gowns was introduced at a Breakers fashion show: made of real Indian saris in gorgeous Oriental colors, the decorative motifs of 14 carat gold. Stylings echo the exotic theme. The "middy dress" by this designer, is also newsworthy.

JEWELS OF THE WORLD: Fabulous jewels garnered from all over the world, are included in the Harry Winston collection, New York. The majority have a background and history, as interesting as the jewels are beautiful. Modern pieces, many worth a king's ransom, are equally alluring . . . designed with individuality and distinction.

LINENS AND LACES: Are a smart merger as exploited by Anthony's. Or, the simple sheath gowns of Tootal linen, in white and muted pastels; some styled in the popular princess manner . . . flattering to the figure. Linen suits follow the trend toward simplicity; smart basics for accessories of contrasting color.

VENETIAN LAMPS FOR MODERN HOMES: Plummer's have a fascinating new collection of Venetian lamps . . . delicately beautiful bases, topped with pastel tinted shades. Grand companions for modern homes. Also, the French oil paintings, with wide beveled mirror frames; something new in picture accents and definitely glamorous.

PRESTIGE JEWELRY: Fashioned of 14 karat gold, genuine stones and cultured pearls, imported and customized exclusively for Palm Beach by Lynn Koral; new to the resort this season. The smart fuchsia, purple and aquamarine shop, has effective shadow box displays.

ITALIAN CONFETTI SHOES: Are the highlight of the Kornhauser Shoe Salon, which specializes in Andrew Geller and Capezio shoes. In the former category, the "confetti" of black (or color) Italian silk, is sprinkled with multicolor dots. Capezio is the noted dancer's cobbler; shoes made on a dancer's last, for comfort and chic.

STAMP COLLECTION AROUND YOUR WAISTLINE: This can happen to you via the clever Italian leather belts, trimmed with stamps of various kinds, alternated with names of the places where collected. Noted at Mary Stuart's and there is a matching cigarette case, to clip to the belt. A kingsize plastic handbag, sprinkled with rhinestones has a long gold chain for extra glamour. Just two of the many glamorous accessories at this shop.

THREE DIMENSIONAL VIEWER: If you own a Stereo realist camera, you certainly should have the new 3-D table viewer and projector combined. Just like having movies in your own home and a grand way to entertain your friends. Miller and Wallace has these and all of the needed equipment for up-to-date picture taking.

OLD BRISTOL URNS: For the collector, or for your own home or apartment, a pair of white and gold Bristol urns, noted at the Louise Antique Shop, would add prestige to your furnishings. For formal dinners, how about Bavarian service plates with gold borders? Another outstanding piece, the old German hot punch bowl of unique design.

ROMANCE IN FAR HORIZONS: Whether you dine in separated splendour or in a "see-through" area adjoining the living room, you'll find that Far Horizons rattan is that furniture of distinction, everyone will rave about. Worrell's have an entire collection of this exotic furniture; emphasizing romance and that "something different" quality.

EARTH TONES FOR INTERIOR DECORATING: Are sponsored by Carroll & Parsons Inc., who are specialists in custom-made furniture. These interior decorators will completely "revitalize" your home, in modern or period styling. Among their new fabrics are simulated hand-woven cottons of interesting design.

NAMES MAKE STYLE NEWS: Browning King & Co., whose label proclaims the fact they have been in business since 1822, say, "famous names in men's clothing have long set the standard for quality and value." New to the resort this season, their collections include a long list of such exponents of men's smart wardrobes.

LINENS AND LINGERIE: Estelle Parker's collection of imported and domestic linens, emphasizes individuality and the ultimate in smart home accessories. In the realm of lingerie, the choice is equally extensive; simple or elaborate, featuring the latest ideas of top designers.

CUSTOM INTERIORS: If you are planning to "re-do" your house or apartment, La Petite Moderne, can be a great help in the manner of slip covers, upholstery, draperies and the like. Interiors planned according to your own good taste and following the latest trends in furnishings.

SPIRITED GIFTS: Are available in just about a thousand and one interesting versions, at the new Scotti Bar Mart; everything from cocktail napkins to the finest of imported crystal. In the package shop, the specialty is fine vintage wines . . . many with an intriguing pedigree.

FROM THE RESORT COLLECTION AT MCDONALD'S, an exquisite ball gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle, in cloud blue, champagne or pink. Designed by Goether, the Empire bodice tops an effective fitted and flared skirt, which is intricately embroidered in rhinestones and sequins. In the back, yards of shirred tulle flare from the waistline into a floor-touching sweep.

ROSES, LARGE AND SMALL are casually strewn on white silk crepe, for this resort dinner dress by Anne Verdi. The slim skirt releases in back flares, accented with a soft bustle. The wide, draped decolleté is a grand foil for glittering jewelry.

STEFANI PINK LINEN COCKTAIL ENSEMBLE, designed by Philip Hulitar, dramatized with three-dimensional silk printed roses in an effective appliquéd pattern, on the bodice and companion stole, which is lined with mauve for smart color contrast.

FASHIONS ARE IN THE PINK for resort and spring, and this dancing dress by Samuel Winston, of deep rose silk organza, patterned with pale pink flowers, is the ultimate in chic. Note the Empire bodice, curvaceous decollete and deep flaring skirt.

STRIKING SHEATH EVENING DRESS of imported oyster white satin, printed with topaz stylized flowers, merged with nylon net for the draped bodice and train. From the resort collection at Martha's.

BRILLIANT ZINNIAS in natural color, dramatize this paletted dinner sheath of white silk surah. The neckline is a widely-cut oval, to make the most of sun-tanned face and shoulders. From the resort collection of Adele Simpson.

Preview of Miami Fashion Council Summer Collection

A new "made in Miami" creation, featuring layers of lace, to the flowered-sprigged cotton. A sprinkling of lame, to the flowered-sprigged cotton. A sprinkling of rhinestones, twinkles over the carved-to-be-cool bodice.

Beautiful, inside and out, this interchangeable four-piece costume designed by a member of the Miami Fashion Council. Long-legged, tapered beach pants, waist-length jacket and cuffed shorts, all reverse from bold black on one side to zebra-striped black and white, on the other, plus black, close-fitting halter.

Lower-sprigged cotton, fashioned with boned, strapless bodice, full skirt and matching stole, lined in solid color. Simplicity is the keynote in this dress designed to go just about anywhere with style assurance.

For sun and surf, this permanently pleated nylon acetate swim suit from the new spring-summer collection of the Miami Fashion Council. The flattering skirt is topped by an embroidered, fitted and curved bodice.

Typically Florida, this attractive afternoon dress of fine cotton, with a woven satin stripe. The neckline cuts into a deep low curve, revealing intricate rows of pineapple pleating in cotton satin. The skirt swings widely over its own attached crinoline, edged with cotton satin.

For sunshine, north or south, a polished white cotton dress, printed with a garden of "sketched roses," accented with black fishnet stole. Developed in several different color schemes.

THE STAR-LIT WEST PATIO OF THE PALM BEACH HOTEL WHERE THE WORLD'S FINEST ARTISTS PERFORM DURING THE WINTER SEASON

Palm Beach Hotel

FROM THE MOMENT ONE ascends the steps leading into the expansive lobbies of the Palm Beach Hotel, the feeling of its restful dignity engulfs you. The friendly atmosphere of the entire premises bespeaks of pleasant things to come. A long corridor leads to the Cocktail Lounge and the spacious, sky-canopied West Patio. A few short steps to the right of the entrance is the softly-lit Loggia where guests spend many a relaxing hour over after-dinner liqueurs, in the company of newly made acquaintances. At the far end of the South Lobby is the Main Lounge, where cozy groupings of deep divans and comfortable chairs are conducive to social intercourse. On occasion, the Main Lounge is transformed into a music salon for the Pop Concerts frequently given by Dick Gasparre and his fine orchestra. One can saunter the winding paths of the exotically shrubbed North and East Gardens, and many hours can be spent identifying south Florida fauna. The balustrated balcony overlooking the Loggia and East Garden makes a quiet retreat.

Meals are served in true Continental fashion, either, in the skylighted Main Dining Room with its gracefully fluted columns, or, if the mood so dictates, in the privacy of your own suite. Luncheon, al fresco, awaits at the Cabana Club if beach activities are the order of the day. The Palm Beach Hotel's oceanside Cabana Beach Club, with Olympic-size pool connected by tunnels with the dazzling white sand beach, offers every kind of water sport.

After sundown, the social and entertainment gates open wide for pleasures. Every evening there's a planned variety of events unsurpassed by any other southern resort hotel. Formal and informal cocktail parties and dances; audience participation affairs at which the winter visitors can play the roll of spectator or participant; informal entertainment might be one of the world's greatest prestidigitators, an amazing clairvoyant, or a demonstration of hypnotism. The week's entertainment is highlighted by two gala evenings which start with a magnificent buffet and cocktail party in the Loggia followed by a sumptuous dinner, after which there is dancing to the music of the famous Dick Gasparre and Paul Barad orchestras. The pleasurable evening is culminated by the presentation of the country's greatest entertainers, specially brought in from the show world for the hotel guests diversion.

The Palm Beach Hotel's sole interest seems to be making the winter season a constant round of pleasures for its patrons.

Ponte Vedra

PONTE VEDRA'S SEASON got off to a sporting start with a combination Tennis-Golf Tournament. Spectators enjoyed the contest as much as participants. Mixed doubles teams were matched by host-professional Edward Copeland, who divides his time between Ponte Vedra and the Country Club of New Canaan. Experienced tennis players drew novice partners, and some hilarious matches resulted. The following day the same teams entered the golf match, using respective handicaps as a basis for scoring. The winning net score of 22 points for both competitions was won by Edward Copeland playing with Mrs. Frank Matey, wife of the sports columnist. Mrs. Matey, a fine golfer, had played tennis only two weeks. The tournament was such a success that it was declared an annual event.

A round of entertaining has welcomed visitors and returning winter colonists. The first large party of the season was a cocktail gathering given at The Innlet by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rodgers.

is considered one of the most beautiful in the colony, gave a dinner party recently.

Mr. D. V. Edmundson has returned from a highly successful fishing expedition in Acapulco and is domiciled in his home, High Dune.

Instead of the usual golf and tennis, general conversation centered around pigskin rivalry. Texas Tech, a college emerging with typical Texas verve from dim obscurity, sent their team to lodge at The Innlet. The players could be seen exercising or practicing passing on the beach. Georgians flocked to the resort by car but many of the Texans arrived in private planes, were out the following day playing golf with their pilots. Hospitality of the beach was extended also to the Palomino horses of the Sheriff's Posse of Levelland, Texas. They found accommodations at the nearby Ponce de Leon Race Track.

There was a rumor that one Texan staying at Ponte Vedra wished to bet $50,000 against Auburn if anybody cared to cover it. Nobody did. At the game itself, Texas enthusiasm continued to run wild. A sleek yellow Cadillac, complete with air-conditioning, was given to the coach of the winning team. DeWitt Weaver, of Lubbock, received it graciously. Also sighted was General Van Fleet, guest of honor at the game, being presented with a Texas hot dog, the dimensions of which must have given him pause. Things being how they were in general, the majority of Ponte Vedrans thought it fitting Texas did win.

Havana...

EARLY ACTIVITIES AROUND Havana's fashionable clubs have served as a preview of what is expected to be an active season in social circles in Cuba's capital.

Although it has become fashionable, in recent years, to start the round of winter activities in Havana quite late, usually in January, there was a flurry of early entertaining at the Havana-Biltmore Yacht and Country Club, the Miramar Yacht Club, the Havana Yacht Club, the Vedado Tennis Club, and the Country Club of Havana as Christmas and the New Year rolled past.

Renewed interest marked the re-opening of Oriental Park, the only large horse race track in the Caribbean, and many members of Havana society formed the habit of dining and dancing at the newly-renovated Jockey Club after the races.

The Little Theatre of Havana has presented Nugent and Thurber's "Male Animal," following with "Stalag 17." The proceeds of the performances, as always, will be turned over to some noteworthy local charity. Under the leadership of First Lady of Cuba Martha Fernandez de Batista, Havana socialites have been conducting more numerous benefits than this island has ever seen before, and most of them have been eminently successful.

The Country Club of Havana has been host to many who wished to relax in the quiet, sunny atmosphere of the Cuban countryside. Prominent golfers who have played on the fine Country Club course recently include Jimmy Demarest, Clayton Hefner, Bob Toksi, Chick Harbert, Ed Oliver and Cuban Amateur Champ Jack Zendoya. Under the direction of Club Pres Ruffino Gonzalez, the club is looking forward to playing host to many more lovers of the golf game this year.

Havana's principal hotels, the Nacional de Cuba, the Sevilla-Biltmore and the Comodoro, have luxury accommodations and entertainment awaiting their visitors.

Tropicana, Montmartre and Sans Souci, well-known night spots, have prepared a special series of fast-moving revues designed especially to appeal to the taste of Americans in Cuba, while their luxury casinos offer the last word in games of chance.

In the publication of the New Year's Honors List, Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II, conferred a knighthood upon the British Ambassador to Cuba, Sir Adrian Holman, K.B.E., C.M.G., M.C. Sir Adrian and Lady Holman are presently residing in their Country Club residence.

Also honored was Mr. John Watson, executive of the Cuban Electric Company, who was appointed a member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. The citation read in part that the appointment was a "mark of appreciation of his long and valuable services in all spheres of the British Community in Havana and particularly as Secretary of the British Club."

The American Ambassador to Cuba, Mr. Arthur Gardner, and Mrs. Gardner have returned from an extended vacation in the United States visiting their family and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacArthur vacationed at the Hotel Nacional de Cuba. Mr. MacArthur is a noted screen writer who, with Ben Hecht, wrote "Five Star Final," later made into "His Girl Friday." Mrs. MacArthur is better known as actress Helen Hayes.

New York Senator E. Kirschenbaum and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Burke recently visited in Havana. Mr. Burke is owner of the World Publishing Company in Culver City, Calif.

Mr. Hank Greenberg, noted baseball player, and the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gimbel, is staying at the Country Club of Havana with his wife. Also with them are Mr. and Mrs. Adam Gimbel. Mrs. Adams Gimbel is Sophie of Saks Fifth Avenue.

Screen star Evelyn Keyes and her husband Mike Todd, Broadway producer, visited here, as did Miss Laura Pyzell, fashion editor for Harper's Bazaar. Miss Pyzell is the daughter of Mr. Dun of Dun and Bradstreet.

Cuban Ambassador to Washington, Jose Antonio Concheso, returned to the Cuban capital to attend his daughter's coming out party at the Havana Yacht Club in the debutante ball.

Visiting Mr. Orlando Castagnet, president of Parke, Davis Inter-American Corporation, and Mrs. Castagnet are Mr. Arthur Cook of Brooklyn, New York, Mrs. Castagnet's brother, and the Castagnets' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Colby of Houston, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian D. Berman have left for a vacation in Mexico City. Mr. Berman is the MGM pictures chief for the Caribbean area.

Mr. R. E. Witherell, of Winter Park, Florida, spent a brief vacation as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Howard and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Townshend.

Mr. William A. Powe, president of the Powe Equipment Company, has left for his family home in Charlottesville, Va., and will return later this month.

The Rt. Rev. Malcolm Endicott Peabody, D.D., Bishop of Central New York, was guest preacher at the Holy Trinity Episcopal Cathedral. Bishop Peabody is making a tour of the Caribbean accompanied by his wife.

Curious Inventions of Creative America

AMERICANS are an inventive people. Call the roll! Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Alva Edison, Henry Ford and Philip Schuyler Kane.

Philip Schuyler Kane? Well, Mr. Kane of Kane, Pennsylvania probably thought his invention, "A Never-Lost Golf Ball" would place him among the top ten inventors.

Kane was not necessarily a lazy golfer. It was just that he was fond of comfort and convenience.

He came from a school that felt it was foolish to run if you could walk! Silly to crawl if you could creep.

When other golfers had to go a-looking for their lost golf balls they tired themselves rambling over the links and far away. But not Kane.

Kane was a man with imagination. He saw himself thrashing around in the tall weeds, tired, perspired, aching in every muscle. It was enough to make him shudder.

Before the end of the second shudder got started, Kane was working on a way to end the golfer's heartaches and backaches. And save money too. Everybody else was concerned about the tired workman or farmer, Philip Schuyler Kane was worried about the tired golfer.

Kane was at work on a new type of golf ball which was to go down in United States Patent Office history as "1,583,721."

And with "1,583,721" he planned to revolutionize the entire sport of golfing.

Kane had invented "a golf ball with a fuse"—guaranteed never to get lost.

Before the golfer places the ball on the tee he lights the fuse of the golf ball.

The fuse keeps smoking until you find it and put out the fuse.

A local wag asserts that the first time that Kane used this new type of golf ball he put an entire field on fire and had to run for his life.

About a year later another golfing enthusiast got a patent on a golf ball that glowed in the dark.

He merely painted the golf ball with a luminous application and provided it with a transparent covering to protect the paint. Its flight is thereby more readily traced and the spot where it lies is lit like a Christmas tree until it is picked up. High grass and weeds would no longer hide the errant ball.

This inventor, Coffield by name, was years ahead of night baseball. Now we can look forward to night golf tournaments. Ben Hogan, here is something new for you!

Others may be satisfied with modern day power plants but not Edgar T. Lancaster of Palatka. Apparently he did not believe in the status quo.

He thought that power plants were too huge, used too much coal and other fuel. They were too noisy, caused a lot of dirt and poisoned the pure air.

His solution was a simple one. Just run electricity through cold water. No fuss, no bother and very economical.

So the U.S. Patent Office examined his claims!

" . . . it is the object of this invention to provide means whereby, without resorting to combustion, steam may be produced in a boiler or like device. Eliminates disasters arising from poisonous gasses . . . eliminates soot and smoke . . . can be used in aircraft . . . eliminates noise in the engine."

Simple as all that. Wherever you are, if you want heat or hot water or steam, just plug in a pot of cold water to an electric socket. Presto—power, hot water and what have you.

Although modern industry was not revolutionized by Mr. Lancaster's original idea, no one can tell what the future holds in store. In the meantime the inventor holds Patent No. 1,358,219 granted him on November 9, 1920.

No article about patents would be complete without telling again the story of the Congressman who, in 1858, sponsored a bill to abolish the Patent Office. He contended that all important inventions that were going to be invented had been invented. (Shades of the telephone, television, radio, etc.).

We seem to have had farsighted Congressmen in Congress in those days too.

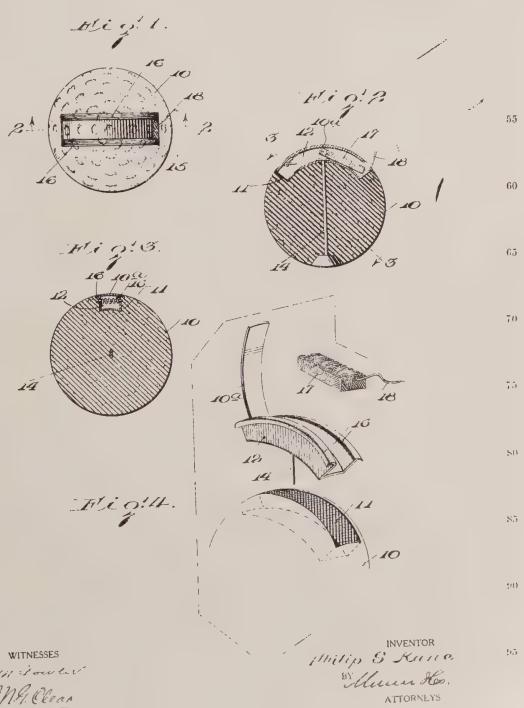

May 4, 1926.

MR. AND MRS. T. FRED JOHNSON OF DEAL, NEW JERSEY, IN PORT FOR THE SEASON AT THE PALM BEACH BILTMORE DOCKS ABOARD THE PICTURESQUE SLOOP DON QUIXOTE DEL MAR.

Palm Beach BILTMORE

OFF TO HIALEAH OPENING DAY amidst the usual fanfare with cameras clicking and newsreel and television men grinding away, departed some 500 turf minded residents and resorters of the Palm Beaches aboard the Palm Beach Biltmore "race special."

The speedy comfortable train inaugurated three years ago by Biltmore owner Daniel E. Taylor stopped at the fashionable polo playing community of Delray Beach to pick up race fans there who had reserved an entire car.

Royalty on board distinguished the inaugural run of the streamlined train. Mrs. Audrey Emery, escorted by Philip Livermore were in the club car party of Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick whose guests also included that lovely "dean of racing ladies" Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin and Dorr Newton of Philadelphia.

The youthful charming Baroness Dolores Von Furstenburg of Paris, France, travelled down with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loel Guinness and brother Philip Guinness. The foursome, who are occupying the luxurious State Suite at the Palm Beach Biltmore, are in Palm Beach for their first holiday and have been extensively entertained by members of the "Gold Coast" coterie. The opening of Hialeah particularly interested them—for Mr. Guinness heads the famous breeding stables of Haras de Piencourt in Normandy, France and this was their first visit to an American track.

The Munn clan, as in previous years, was out in full force—Mr. Charles Munn, Mr. Charles Munn Jr., and Mr. Gurnee Munn.

Always a "first runner," Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane of Brookmeade Stable fame had as her guests her sister Mrs. Wesson Seyburn, Crawford Hill and Edwin McIlvaine.

Poring over their racing forms, figuring "sure winners" were the Talmadge Woodwards, the duo who along with Fifi Widener Witchfeld really take their racing seriously. Others in the various club cars were the Messmore Kendalls of Palm Beach Playhouse fame, Arthur Pierson Jr., Mrs. Stanhope Nixon, former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Schwill, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Taylor, Commander and Mrs. John L. Rutherford. Also Mr. and Mrs. Leo Best, Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham and Mr. and Mrs. Orland S. Greene. An interesting duo from New Market, England were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Armstrong who are sojourning at the Everglades Club. Mr. Armstrong is one of the world's top trainers.

The Taylor family were out in full force and in their party were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor.

Particular interest surrounded this year's run for race-goers were to have their first view of the "new look" at Hialeah's flamingo studded track, the "new look" being the beautiful new clubhouse constructed during the summer months. Streamlined and modern to the "nth" degree with escalators and a magnificent new dining room, the opening day throng were thrilled with their new club-house.

Gone is the once exclusive top deck where only Hialeah Club members formerly gathered—this year the entire Clubhouse has gone "top deck" to accommodate its increasing number of friends. Private luncheon parties rather than the elaborate ones formerly given by President John C. Clark will be the order of the day.

Palm Beach of course, is noted for its large contingent of racing stable owners and among others is Forsythe Jerome McNulty and Mrs. McNulty whose horses from their Cross Bell ranch in Tulsa, Oklahoma will be run in some of Hialeah's "big stake" races. The McNultys entertained one of the largest groups aboard the "race special" opening day, and are always a welcome twosome, for what would an opening be without the ever smiling flamboyant McNulty.

Running time to Hialeah is but 85 minutes with arrival at one giving ample opportunity for daily double selections. The train returns to the Palm Beaches shortly before seven. Tickets may be purchased either at the Biltmore or the FEC station prior to departure.

While most of the islanders are turf-minded, a large contingent are lovers of the sea and some of the country's most luxurious yachts have been coming into port at the Biltmore docks. Elliott White Springs of Fort Mills, South Carolina, nationally famous for his self created sparkling "Spring Maid" ads, arrived with a large party of guests aboard his aptly named yacht the "Spring Maid." One of the most charming sea-going couples who will be at the Biltmore docks all season are Mr. and Mrs. T. Fred Johnson of Deal, New Jersey. Mr. Johnson is a retired Standard Oil executive and both enjoy fishing. The Leon Mandels, popular Palm Beach hosts, have been entertaining in their usual grand style aboard their yacht, the Carola, in port at the Biltmore docks for another season.

The Philip Fortins of Billings, Montana, members of the Everglades Club, have returned to the Biltmore after an absence of several seasons and are now occupying one of the Biltmore's imposing twin towered penthouses for the season. The E. Townsend Irvins of New York back in Palm Beach for their 32nd season are comfortably settled in their ocean front suite at the Biltmore. Mr. Irvin of course was formerly one of the world's most noted yachtsmen, winning many cups in the Vanderbilt cup races to England. Mrs. Irvin, who is happiest with a rod and reel in her hand, divides her time between fishing in the gulfstream and the Palm Beach Pier.

Interesting personalities dotting the always superb social scene at the Biltmore are Ed Brannick, secretary of the Major League Giants' team; Carolyn Schnurer, internationally known dress designer; Mrs. C. Drummond Jones of St. Louis, Missouri, who has taken one of the Biltmore penthouse towers for the season and Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser also of St. Louis, back for their fifth season at this lakeside resort. The Jack Fannings of New York, accompanied by the beloved Catholic prelate Msgr. Thaddeus Tierney, arrived early in February for their annual sojourn.

Nassau in the Bahamas

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES are reaching new heights here as the Nassau season hits its February peak. Constant streams of house guests come and go. Late-comers among the winter colony still trickle in. And, more than ever this year, new winter colonists continue to arrive for their very first Nassau winter season.

A colorful kaleidoscope of social brilliance is provided by this winter's round of gay social parties.

Following the holidays, January had more than its share of social comings and goings, with a record number of parties of all descriptions held during the month.

To date, February is no exception. The social merry-go-round, far from diminishing in tempo, shows signs of eclipsing the gaiety of all previous winter seasons. Undoubtedly much of the extra social activity seen this season in Nassau may be attributed to the appointment to office of the Colony's new governor and his lady—the Earl and Countess of Ranfurly.

Lord and Lady Ranfurly have already made a number of public appearances, and have graciously undertaken to serve as patrons of several distinguished charity events. His Excellency and Lady Ranfurly have already shown themselves as being keenly interested in all forms of community betterment, and are being supported wholeheartedly in their endeavors for charity by the entire winter colony.

The biggest event of the social-sporting season took place shortly after the New Year, when Hobby Horse Hall opened for an unprecedented season of twice-weekly race meets. The track opened January 12, and a record number of winter colonists were at hand for the first meet. This year, the track is being operated by local enterprise, and a number of improvements have already won the acclaim of this season's race-goers. One of the most enthusiastic followers of the twice-weekly meets is Sir Victor Sassoon, whose life-long interest and experience in raising champions of the turf makes him the most sought-after authority at the Nassau track.

The start of the racing season was followed by the opening of the Bahamas Winter Fishing Tournament, an event keenly participated in by members of the winter colony. This year's big fishing event opened on Jan. 17, and will run through March 28. Prizes and citations are awarded for any of 30 different species of game fish caught in any of three different tackle categories. Such ardent angling enthusiasts as Mr. and Mrs. Carl Holmes, with their yacht, "Bubbles," or Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Stewart with their "Jessica S." are expected to take part in this year's tournament.

Tennis fans among the winter colony enjoyed the Eighth Annual Nassau Tennis Tournament held on the courts of the British Colonial Hotel from January 24 through January 31, and tennis pro Lloyd Budge, who taught his famous brother, Don, the game, has a number of other exciting events planned for the courts later on in the season.

The year's yachting season opened for the Bahamas with a new event, the Fort Lauderdale-Great Isaac sailing race. This event took place January 29 from Fort Lauderdale, and replaces the old Fort Lauderdale-Cat Cay race. The event will be followed by the Miami-Nassau Ocean Race, one of the world's great sailing classics, which begins this year on February 9 from Miami.

The Colony Hotel

MODERN IN ARCHITECTURE AND DECOR, The Colony is paradoxical in the old-fashioned southern hospitality, which is the "hallmark" of this smart and gracious hostelry. According to Bernard Cooley, president and general manager, "the guest is usually right and everything is done for visitors here, whether their stay is for the season or several days."

If "new timers" to the resort have a yen to know what Palm Beach looked like in "the good old days," the colorful historical murals which dramatize the hotel lobby, cocktail lounge and Terrace Club, will give a vivid idea of the scene "way back when." They are as interesting and informative as they are decorative and set the mood for the merger of tradition and modernity.

The mural in the lobby depicts the Palm Beach scene from the beginning of this fascinating little "Paradise of the Atlantic" . . . the story of the first cocoanuts which floated ashore from the Providencia . . . the picturesque horse cars . . . the famous Poinciana Hotel . . . wheel chairs, which are still an important part of the Palm Beach scene . . . bicycle riders.

The roster of The Colony reads like a "who's who in society and the world of celebrities." Every season brings "names," famous in both America and the other side of the globe. The peak of the season finds a capacity house this year, as usual, including many former guests, who winter here every year. Besides the gracious and complete service, which distinguishes this smart hotel, it is in close proximity to just about everything: shopping districts and "little Wall Street," golf courses and tennis courts, clubs, the beach.

Elou Williams, sophisticated singer of songs, a number of which have been composed especially for her, returned to The Colony this season by popular request. Miss Williams plays her own accompaniment on a portable little red piano, and alternates between the dining room and cocktail lounge.

Late in the evening, the lounge is a popular rendezvous for discriminating colonists, who sometimes join in the entertainment. Miss William's repertoire is as extensive as it is interesting and she never has been stumped by a request for a favorite selection.

Par Avion from Paris . . .

ANY CHANGES MADAME RENE COTY makes in the Elysee Palace will probably be in the housekeeping department. The new First Lady of France is definitely domestic; on her first tour of the palace she spent more time looking at the kitchens than at the nymphs and roses on the walls of Empress Eugenie's celebrated bathroom.

To live in the Elysee Palace, much less to do it over, has never been one of Madame Coty's ambitions. When the presidential voting was finally over, and her husband telephoned home from Versailles to say that, to his complete astonishment, he had been elected President of France, Madame Coty's first question was a purely domestic one—what would they do with their winter's supply of coal which had just been delivered to their Paris apartment?

The palace into which the Cotys have just moved and in which they expect to celebrate their golden wedding, is one of the historic houses of Paris. Its red-striped sentry boxes, and grenadier guards with bayonets, are on the rue Faubourg Saint Honore but it looks onto the Elysee gardens, with a private parc and beautiful old trees between. Built 236 years ago for the Count d'Evreux, the palace has housed a half dozen women, from the Marquise de Pompadour to one of the remarkable Frenchwomen of our generation, Jacqueline Auriol. As young Madame Auriol's sole ambition is to conquer the air, she left few traces of her occupancy on the palace, but her mother-in-law, with reserved good taste, made some well thought-out alterations in the Court of Honor and restored the old part of the palace to its original aspect.

Ex-president Auriol did even more—it was he who installed the royal apartments for the entertainment of visiting sovereigns. Until then, royal guests were put up elsewhere in rather haphazard fashion. But on a visit to the British court, M. Auriol was so handsomely installed in Buckingham Palace that, like many a well-housed houseguest, he resolved to do something immediately about the guest room situation at home.

To make alterations in an old palace isn't easy. M. Auriol found a way to build into the second floor, planning the apartment around Empress Eugenie's bathroom. A large room with four big French windows looking onto the park became the bedroom for any visiting queen. The walls are done in green damask, a Louis XVI bed is canopied in pale yellow silk to match the window curtains. The furnishings are all museum pieces, of which the French government has an enormous store. The bath needed no embellishing. Louis Napoleon Bonaparte had it installed a hundred years ago for his fiancee, Eugenie de Montijo, who came from Spain with her mother to stay in the palace for a few weeks awaiting the wedding which was to make her Empress of France (and the inspiration of Empress Eugenie hats). Any bathroom was a sensation in those days—this, with mirrored walls and gold woodwork, painted nymphs and birds and garlands, has always been a show piece of the palace. Over the doors of Eugenie's rooms the Emperor had placed gold crowns with the combined initials "E" and "N".

For queens' husbands, M. Auriol considered moderne more suitable. The king's bedroom is done very simply in pale gray and gold, the modern tile bath is light green. What is perhaps most remarkable about the renovations is that the work was done in exactly one month, an all-time record for France. Infra-red rays were used for the first time to speed up the drying of the plaster.

It took the Marquise de Pompadour ten years to carry out her ideas; when she died and the palace was returned to her king, Louis XV, the dispersion of her furniture went on for a year. The next woman to keep house in the palace was the Duchess of Bourbon, and after her came the revolution. In 1805 Napoleon I gave it to his sister, Caroline Murat, who did over the vestibule, added the grand stairs, the reception room on the second floor and the Salon Murat. After the Emperor divorced Josephine, the palace was given to her for consolation. Eventually Napoleon took it back, to live in briefly, with his new Empress, Marie-Louise. Successive occupants were the Duke of Wellington, the Duc de Berry and Napoleon III, and, beginning with the Third Republic, all presidents of France.

The president's family, including married children and grandchildren, are entitled to quarters in the palace. Like all French families, and especially Normandy families, the Cotys assemble their children and grandchildren every weekend and keep at all times as many members under their roof as they can. Their two sons-in-law, a doctor and a construction engineer, are busy with their professions, but ten grandchildren, including a pair of twin girls, age 16, will keep the presidential couple from feeling lost in the big palace.

The twins, Helene and Beatrice Egloff, have a 14-year-old sister, Marie Gabrielle, and three older sisters, Annie Marie, 18, Francoise, 22, and Janine, 23. Janine and Francoise are both engaged and perhaps will be married from the palace. Francoise's fiance, Jean-Claude Helary, a soldier at Versailles, presented arms to Mr. Coty on election day, he and Janine's fiance, Jean Paul Lemarechal, also in the army, were given special 24-hour leaves, signed by President Auriol, to spend Christmas en famille with the Cotys. Francoise, who has dancing dark eyes and dimples, seems to be the belle of the household. The children of the Cotys' other

Mrs. Harrison Williams' Christmas present to the American Library in Paris was a valuable tapestry from her Paris apartment, and the promise of a painting, both of which the library will sell to buy books. Mona Williams and Mrs. Margaret Biddle and Mrs. Isaac Doughten II, who left Paris recently, are among the decorative American women interested in the library. During the occupation it was kept open, under difficulties, by the Countess Aldebert de Chambrun, whose husband was equally busy running the American Hospital after the American staff was forced to leave.

The touching custom of going to the grave of a parent after a wedding was followed by the royal couple, Archduke Robert of Hapsburg and Princess Marguerite of Savoy, after their marriage in Bourg-en-Bresse, December 29. They flew to Kenya where the bride's late father, the duke of Aoste, who was viceroy of Abyssinia, is buried. His death, in captivity, took place in a prison camp in Nairobi during the war.

The journey of the newlyweds was a token call upon a father who did not live to see his daughter in her mother's bridal veil—magnificent Brussels lace woven with the royal crown and the arms of the two houses, the fleur-de-lys of France and the cross of Aoste.

Marguerite's wedding gown was classically simple, with long fitted sleeves and tiny upturned collar. Loyal to the Italian couture, her mother had everything made by Gabriella Bellenghi of Florence. The bridal wardrobe was not elaborate: three tailored suits, two afternoon dresses, a black faille and a red duchess with bolero, a black duchess swagger coat with big silver fox cuffs, a strapless black taffeta cocktail dress embroidered with rhinestones, and two evening gowns—a strapless dinner dress of ivory tulle with dark brown velvet from midriff to hipline, and a gala white opera gown with a tulle train of fifteen rows of graduated ruffles.

In designing for Princess Marguerite, it is necessary to take height into consideration—she is six feet, 3 inches tall. Her bridegroom is almost two inches taller, and when they met for the first time, at the wedding of his brother Otto and the Duchess of Saxe-Meiningen, their mothers breathed a sigh of hope.

They liked each other at once. Marguerite says it was the dress she was wearing that won Robert's admiration. In any case the friendship continued, long distance, between her home, the Villa Arrighetti in Florence, and Paris, where he lives. He went to Florence for Christmas, she went to Paris for Easter, and finally they were married in the ancient church of Brou built by his ancestor, Marguerite of Austria, under whose patronage he has placed his hopes.

They had planned the usual quiet wedding, just the families—including an ex-Empress, an ex-King, two ex-Queens, six archdukes and a score of princes and princesses,—and a few friends. They were too optimistic. Three hundred Italian monarchists also arrived, carrying a flag 5 feet long which they bore down the center aisle, afterwards crowding around their ex-king Umberto, kissing his hands and crying "Viva Savoie!" Umberto thanked them, sadly. But for Queen Johanna of Bulgaria and her son, Prince Simeon, there was less pleasant attention. Word was sent to them that Bulgarian terrorists planned to kill them during the wedding, and a special detail of police had to be called. No uninvited Bulgarians came, but the police clashed with the hundred photographers that were frenziedly trying to get "just one more" picture.

Gertrude Schweitzer, internationally known American painter and a resident of Palm Beach, Florida, shown leaving Paris for America, following her triumphant one-man show at the Paris Galerie Charpentier. Miss Schweitzer, the only American artist to be so honored by this famous gallery, stated that two of her paintings were selected by the Paris Museum of Modern Art and the Muse d'Albi for their permanent collections. (Her show—containing 32 of her works—will be on view in Paris until the end of January). After a brief stay at her Hillside Home, Miss Schweitzer will return to Palm Beach where she will resume her painting of Southern scenes.

During the ceremony the bridal couple knelt on cushions filled with the soil of Austria.

They will be at home in Paris where the Archduke is attached to the director of a bank. To go to work every day is not a hardship for this grandson of Austria's late emperor Franz-Joseph. Robert, with his seven brothers and sisters, grew up in exile and suffered the strain of continuous uncertainty as their widowed mother, Empress Zita, found refuge for them, first in Spain, then in Belgium. His bride, too, has experienced the rigors of exile and war; for 15 months she and her mother were in a Nazi concentration camp. Like the Hapsburgs, the house of Savoy has had its tragedies. Princess Mafalda was denounced to the Nazis by her German husband, Philippe de Hesse, taken from her four children, and sent to her death in Buchenwald.

So, not only because they are newlyweds, but because they have known much trouble, this royal couple is receiving special good wishes for the future.

On the Sports Horizon

THE 46TH ANNUAL GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP for the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests was held January 16 to 23, brought to Palm Beach many outstanding men of the nation. The kick-off for the highly successful tournament was a get-together cocktail party at the Breakers, the headquarters for the event, January 16. The tournament was played over the beautiful Palm Beach Golf course. A. R. O'Neal of New York was the medalist for the event, qualifying with a score of 76.

The tourney was a handicap match play affair, with 113 Admen in the eight flights. Walter Pedersen, Wilton, Conn., defeated O. F. Woodward, 3d, Palm Beach, for the championship, in a match that ended on the 21st hole. Mr. Pedersen reached the finals by eliminating A. R. Robison, West Chester, Pa., 1-19; A. S. Hardart, New York, 1 up; B. C. Rae, West Newton, Mass., 2-1.

Mr. Woodward reached the finals by defeating George Benisch, New Rochelle, 1-19; Elon Ellis, Ridgewood, N. J., 4-3; Robert Lansdell, Hackensack, N. J., 4-3.

Winners and results of other flights in the tourney: Second flight, William Boffa defeated G. K. Blanchard, 2-1. Third flight, Hal Rich over T. K. O'Brien, 1 up. Fourth flight, J. M. McGrath defeated Paul Mooney, 1 up. Fifth flight, S. M. Paterson over Russell Lowell, 1 up in 19. Sixth flight, P. O. Daniels defeated J. J. Shea, 4-3.

Winners in the consolation flights were: (1) E. E. Ellis defeated A. S. Hardart, 8-6; (2) Ed Froelich defeated Joseph Lembo, 1 up; (3) J. A. Horn defeated William T. May, 1 up, 21; (4) J. J. Brown, Jr., defeated F. H. Voss, 2-1; (5) R. A. Kent defeated J. Barkley Eakins, 1 up, 19; (6) William Rebut defeated W. T. Armstrong, 2 up.

Winners in the beaten-eight flight were: (1) Paul Cushman defeated A. R. Robson, 3-1; (2) Fred Fehlhaber defeated K. S. Marks, 3-2; (3) U. G. Warren defeated S. R. Schulhazer, 1-22; (4) L. J. Gumpert defeated Jeremiah Burns, 2-1; (5) Joseph Janareli, 3-2; Don Eifert defeated Robert Stephens, 4-3.

Winners in the down-and-out flights were: (1) James McRoberts over Frank Dutcher, 1 up; (2) Col. M. G. Robertson over John Pulido, 1 up; (3) John Quinn over J. F. Nolen, 2 up; (4) J. F. O'Connel over A. W. Boettcher, 1-20; (5) Paul Nehring over C. A. Gennrich, 2 up; W. R. Brennan over T. C. Wieche.

Miss Alice Gray was the winner in the ladies' tournament with a gross score 253. Mrs. Fred Fehlhaber was runnerup with gross score 267. Mrs. Hal C. Rich was winner in the net score division with 240, Mrs. John Kadel being the runnerup in the net division with 241. The tourney was a 54-hole medal-play handicap affair.

Others playing in the ladies' tournament were Mrs. John Cushman, Mrs. George Benisch, Mrs. F. A. Dixon, Mrs. John McGrath, Mrs. Maxwell Geffin, Mrs. W. O. Smith, Mrs. S. M. Paterson, Mrs. B. G. Rae, Mrs. Joseph F. Cella, Mrs. Joseph Lembo, Mrs. Paul Black, Mrs. Frank Dutcher, Mrs. Fred Fehlhaber, Mrs. Greenfield, Mrs. Chocatell, Mrs. Eggers, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. F. S. Dickerson, Mrs. J. W. Barnhardt, Mrs. E. E. Ellis, Mrs. Shep Barnes, Mrs. Russell Lowell, Mrs. C. S. Shields and Mrs. John Prizer.

The third annual member-guest golf tournament was played during the last week in January over the beautiful Everglades Golf course. The event featuring 36-holes, best ball, net medal score play, under handicap.

Among the many members and their guests playing in the tournament were Charles H. Bliss and his guest Billy (Dynamite) Goodloe; Woolworth Donohue and his guest, Frank Stranahan, Richard A. Reese and his guest, Hobart Manley; Thomas H. Shevlin and his guest, Tommy Goodwin; P. B. Smithson and his guest, Leon Sikes, Sr.; Douglas Doherty and his guest, Leon Sikes, Jr.; Robert Sweeny and his guest, Dan Topping; Hal C. Rich and his guest, Les Handt.

Robert Sweeny, playing with Dan Miller, won the event last season with the score, 60-63-123.

Leading in the tourney after first 18 holes were Beverley Bogert and guest, Mike McLaney, who had been given little consideration by the experts to win the Everglades tourney. Also setting the pace the first day were, R. A. Raese and guest, Hobart Manley, both twosomes turned in a net score of 63 for the first round. Out of first place by one stroke after 18 holes were the favored Bob Sweeny, former British Amateur Champion, and his guest, Dan Topping.

Thomas H. Shevlin and guest, J. Van Zant moved ahead in the final round of the tourney to win the E. G. Howes Memorial Trophy. They were one stroke out of first place after the first round. By posting 64 on the first day and 62 on the second day, gave them 126, which was good enough for first position. O. F. Woodward, 3d, and James Cleary ended up in second place in a tie with Beverley Bogert and Mike McLaney, both twosomes posting 127. Sweeny and Topping ended the 36 holes play with 128.

Engagement stars are in the eyes of Miss Florence Lainhart and Roger Thiele, as they watch the golf match Everglades Club members played for the E. G. Howes Memorial Trophy.

America's greatest in feminine golf. Such renowned stalwarts as Glenna Collett Vare, Virginia Van Wie, Maureen Orcutt, Helen Hicks, Babe Didrickson Zaharias, Patty Berg, and a host of others as well as Bessie Fenn, the present professional at the Palm Beach Golf Club, have participated and have won this tournament. The history and tradition of this competition rank with the finest in the land.

The thirty-sixth tournament in February will be fully as replete with the women stars as previous competitions. Miss Polly Riley, member of the United States Curtis Cup who has won the tournament twice is expected to return here on Feb. 9 to defend her laurels won so brilliantly last year. The little Texan is playing as well as ever and will be the player the others will have to beat to win the championship.

However, Polly will have unusually keen competition this year from several new up and coming stars as well as from a number of her contemporaries. Of the latter most of the competition is expected from Mary Ann Downey, Mrs. Maurice Glick, Carol Diringer, Mary Agnes Wall, Barbara Dawson, the long hitting Californian; Marjorie Burns, Ellen Gery and Edean Anderson. These, like Polly, are now considered veterans inasmuch as they have been playing competitive golf nationally for the past six or eight years.

But much can be expected from some of the new stars; two particularly are sure to stir interest in the Palm Beach colony in February. They are Pat Lesser of Seattle, Washington, who played so spectacularly in the National this past year, and Margaret "Wiffi" Smith of Quadalahaya, Mexico, daughter of an American army colonel.

Another great young star is due to be heard from the long driving Barbara McIntire of Toledo, Ohio. And finally there is the popular California stylist, Barbara Romack, who, many predict, will win the National within the next three years.

The tournament program calls for qualifying round of eighteen holes, medal play, on Tuesday, Feb. 9 with the low thirty-two scores making up the championship flight. Two other flights of sixteen also will qualify.

The first round of match play in all flights will be played on Wednesday, Feb. 10, and on Thursday there will be two rounds, the second and third, over 18 holes each, morning and afternoon. The semi-finals round will take place on Friday and the final round of 18-holes for the championship will be played on Saturday morning, Feb. 13.

It is expected that the annual entertainment in honor of the girls will take place on Wednesday evening in the Starlight Room of the Garden Terrace lounge in the Breakers.

Tennis, one of the more popular sports, is played daily on all of the many fine courts throughout the Palm Beaches. Mixed round robin tourneys are held each Saturday afternoon at the Everglades Club, a junior tourney each Saturday morning. The Bath and Tennis Club holds weekly tourneys each Thursday. Charles M. Wood, expects to have the Kramer World touring pros at the Coral Beach Tennis Club later in the season.

Listed among the many tennis players playing regularly this season are Dr. A. McGee, M. H. Grace, Jr., Frank Murphy, Mrs. A. Parker Bryant, Miss Ann Shonnard, Mrs. Fred Tuck, Miss Diane Tillman, Mrs. E. B. Van Voorhees, Keith McLeod, Merle Tuck, Bruce Farrell, Jay Powers, Richard Howard, and Ann Fuller.

Many outstanding tournaments are scheduled at Palm Beach later in the season, which are expected to attract many internationally known stars.

There's a new regime at the West Palm Beach American Legion Arena, for years the Friday night rendezvous of resort sports fans.

The veteran Al Caroly has stepped down because of illness after directing the Arena boxing shows for a dozen years and Chris Dundee, the highly successful promoter at the $2,000,000 Miami Beach Auditorium, has taken over as matchmaker.

While Caroly is one of Palm Beach's beloved sports figures and the fans will regret to learn of his departure the grand old man of boxing still will be around in an advisory capacity to Dundee.

Dundee, with his widespread connections, and assured of the whole-hearted cooperation of Jim Norris, head of the International Boxing Club, will have the talent with which to present excellent cards throughout the winter season.

Orchestra leader Sammy Kaye was among the list of notables that participated in the Everglades Member-Guest tournament. Kaye is shown here with his hosts, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Pace on the Everglades putting green.

Thomas H. Shevlin, Palm Beach sportsman, who is better-known for his big game hunting and fishing is shown congratulating his guest Jack Van Zant of Los Angeles and Wichita, Kansas, after the twosome won the Everglades Member-Guest Tournament.

Polo fans are witnessing some of the finest high-goal polo of their spectator careers this season at Gulfstream Polo Club. The club is being represented by two teams — Gulfstream and Delray — composed of some of the country's highest-ranking players.

On the Gulfstream club squad are Stephen "Laddie" Sanford, Stewart B. Iglehart, Juan Rodriguez, Mike Phipps, George Oliver, Jules "Tiger" Romfh, Charles "Chuck" Bernard, Len Bernard, Bill Mayer, Mike Healy, Tom Healy, Lyle Phillips and Major Fred C. Collin.

Now in progress is a three-game series between Gulfstream and the San Antonio Polo Club of San Antonio, Texas. Starring for the invading team are Harold Barry and Clarence Stark.

Next to invade Gulfstream will be the famous Oakbrook Club of Hinsdale, Ill., led by Cecil Smith and Paul Butler. Also scheduled is a three-game match against Meadowbrook, L. I. Scheduled to appear on the Meadowbrook team are Al Parsons, Charles Leonard, Phillip Iglehart and Henry Lewis.

A colorful wind-up for the current season is planned with an international tournament in March between Gulfstream and Ciudad Trujillo team representing the Dominican Republic. Fans will remember the three-game series last year when the invading Latin Americans won two out of three matches. Leading the team again this year will be the young Dominican general, Rafael Trujillo.

"Impresario" of the Gulfstream Polo Club this year is Stephen Sanford, whose famous Hurricane teams have won renown both here and abroad. In 1952 the Hurricanes, with Sanford, George Oliver, Juan Rodriguez and Major Fred C. Collin, won the International Gold Cup at Deauville, France.

Resort sports followers are turning out at the Palm Beach Kennel Club — the world's most beautiful greyhound course — in ever-increasing numbers.

The smart glass-enclosed clubhouse has been the scene of many gay parties on recent nights and the grandstand has been packed to capacity every night since the track opened on Dec. 26. Another popular feature of the kennel club is the 140-foot mezzanine floor, which, like the clubhouse, is heated on chilly nights and is an excellent vantage point from which to watch the canines rocket around the racing strip.

The greyhound racing season, which continues through April 10, seems certain to produce new records for both mutuel handle and attendance. The new owners of the track, John Boggiano, Paul Cleland, John Masoni and Sam Lombardo, are highly pleased with the public response thus far this winter.

The new owners, all liberal and progressive men, have indicated their intention of upholding the best traditions instituted by the previous management. They plan to keep the sport of greyhound racing on the highest possible plane and to improve operations and plant facilities as progress dictates.

Calibre of racing at the Palm Beach Kennel Club this season is unquestionably the highest in the 22-year history of the track and this is due in part to the efforts of Leo Hartwell, nationally known racing official and long time West Palm Beach resident. One of the first moves of the new owners after their purchase of the track in December was to name Hartwell to the important post of director of racing.

YACHTING

PALM BEACH is a place of progress. Forever expanding in spectacular fashion, this comparatively young town is constantly plagued by the law of supply and demand. What was "too much" yesterday, is found today to be "not enough."

This constant need for expansion—the call for something bigger and better—exists not only in commonplace fields, but in facilities for luxury, as well. It doesn't concern the average Palm Beacher, but there's a problem among yachtsmen.

Palm Beach doesn't have enough docking space to accommodate all who want to spend their winters here aboard their luxury craft. Walter Goebel, master at the Australian-Brazilian Ave. docks, says there is sufficient space for the 20-odd large vessels that are brought here each year, but applications have to be turned down for 15 or 20 smaller craft—those 30 to 50 feet in length—seeking docking space.

This need for more and more space is increasing every year, even though, in recent years there has been much dock expansion. Activity in boating in Palm Beach waters is rapidly increasing, and on the lake or ocean, throughout the year, there always is some kind of sports or competition. Organization of the Palm Beach Power Squadron has added scores to the list of boatmen, and women, in the squadron's Auxiliary, are adding to the interest.

Recently the squadron announced a course in piloting at the Flotilla Club, and its organizers were amazed when 105 men and women enrolled. Others were told they would have to wait for a second session, probably in July.

One of the most interesting yachts in local waters this season is Lester M. Sears' 70-foot "Makairo", out of Cleveland and based at the Australian Ave. dock. The "Makairo", known in Palm Beach for many years, isn't the old "Makairo" at all, but a vessel almost 80 per cent rebuilt. The "Makairo" was out of the Palm Beach picture last season because in September, 1952, while docked at Bayhead, N.J., it caught fire from a yacht burning in an adjacent slip and was badly damaged. But on the shining, sleek, new "Makairo" there is left no evidence of fire.

Interesting, too, are the Canadian yachts in Palm Beach waters. There is Francis Farwell's 112-foot Arara, out of Hamilton, Ont.; the 112-foot Osceola, owned by the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Co.; Allan Manus' Explorer IV, out of Toronto.

Sight-seers, interested in yachting, ask many questions about the Canadian vessels, and are surprised to learn that luxury yachts are "kept ready" in that country's plans for national defense. A private yachtsman in Canada, they are told, may own only about 65 per cent of their vessels—the government owns the rest. In a national emergency, then, the Canadian government may step in and appropriate its own "share" of every private yacht—which means, naturally, the entire boat. There is interest, too, in differences in flags flown by Canadian craft. Some fly the Canadian ensign, a red flag with the Union Jack in the upper corner, the Canadian coat of arms in the opposite corner. The Canadian "blue" indicates the owner is a member of a royal yacht club, such as the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club. These vessels, in event of an emergency, automatically are turned over for Canada's use.

One of the largest vessels at the Australian-Brazilian docks is James H. Rand's "Galaxy", a 130-foot beauty out of Mr. Clyde Sidney Pelton, of Madison Golf Lake Lands, Ohio, and Palm Beach, is about to board his yacht "Clydema" at the dock near "Villa Banyana," his residence on North Lake Trail at Tangier.

Stamford, Conn. A newcomer this season is the Spriggs Steamship Company's "Lion's Whelp", a trim, sturdy vessel that carries a touch of "navy".

Although all docking space is already reserved, and most of the boats are in, many of them are flying the blue flag indicating "owner not aboard," and the height of yachting activity is still to come.

However, there has been plenty of action in recent weeks, with the annual Silver Sailfish Derby under way, and the Power Squadron's participation in events.

Those motorists who complain of the long wait on Royal Park bridge while the draw is opened to permit passage of a yacht should know that only two or three vessels at the Australian-Brazilian docks are small enough to sail under the bridge without calling for the draw to be opened. Boats at these docks are required, if equipped with fishing outriggers, to be able to lower them while passing through the draw—but most yachts are big enough to require bridge opening.

The arrival of any "unusual" vessels in Palm Beach waters is certain to attract attention here, both among yachtsmen and those who are not particularly interested in boating. Recently there were three arrivals that sent land-lubbers on interesting inspection tours.

One of these was the 55-foot luxury sailing craft, the "Groote Beer"—Dutch for "Great Bear"—which originally was intended as a pleasure boat for Reichs-marshall Herman Goering, and it is now owned by Charles M. Donnelly of Greenwich, Conn. The Nazi leader never enjoyed the "Groote Beer," for its builder purposely delayed construction, at the risk of his life, and it was not completed until 1948.

A later arrival was the British frigate HMS Veryan Bay, which was in port for six days while on a training cruise.

Here at the same time was the U. S. submarine Guavina, in for a week-end visit. The Guavina, commissioned in 1943, holds an outstanding war-time record. On six patrols in the Pacific the sub sank six Japanese vessels totaling 34,366 tons.

Officers and men of both Naval vessels were entertained and shown the sights of Palm Beach during their visit here. Reciprocating, officers of both vessels welcomed inspection tours by Palm Beachers and there was a constant stream of visitors, indicating unusual interest, in this area, in the activities of those who "take to the water."

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Chabot are enjoying Florida's glorious sunshine at their beautiful home at Vero Beach.

The many wonders of the Sunshine State are only a short drive from any place in Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Boye, of Vero Beach, are starting a sightseeing trip in their snappy sports roadster.

Vero Beach

AMONG THE MANY INTERESTING events of the season at Vero Beach were the recent wedding and reception of Miss Mary Lusk and Mr. Arthur Hecker. The bride was lovely in a Grecian styled chiffon dress and her mother, Mrs. Lusk, was charming in black, with white accessories and white orchids. The Misses Shaefer were flower girls for their aunt, and were adorable in crisp green taffeta. Following their wedding trip, the Heckers established their permanent home in Shaker Heights, Ohio.

One of the delightful parties in honor of Miss Lusk just before her wedding was given by the Joseph Michaels at their beautiful residence on the Indian River, where there were huge open fires and delicious food. At this enjoyable affair the Michaels served delicious Indian River oysters, which they had gathered themselves, and the many guests enjoyed a delightful buffet supper.

Also in honor of Miss Lusk and Mr. Hecker, Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Semon entertained at a buffet luncheon at the Rioman Club beach. The weather was delightful and the food from the fine cuisine of the club, transported to the beach, was delicious.

Many winter residents of the Vero Beach area have returned and are enjoying a pleasant season.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Walton of St. Davids, Pa., and Mrs. William A. Wiedersheim, II, of St. Davids and Hobe Sound, with Mrs. Wiedersheim's daughter-in-law, Mrs. William R. Wiedersheim, III, of Chicago, visited the Joseph W. Waltons of Floralton Beach who are their brother and sister-in-law.

Among those who recently returned are the Holly H. Howes of Chicago who are in residence in their home on Acacia Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDougal of Peoria, Ill., in their ocean front residence, "White Caps."

Mr. and Mrs. McDougal spent the new year in Miami, as usual, attending the Orange Bowl game and all the accompanying festivities.

The Richard Wheelwrights from Greenwich, Conn., have returned to their ocean front residence on the south beach.

Among recent guests at the Driftwood Hotel have been Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Osborne of Lake Zurich, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne, better known as Lea and Tek, are nationally known artists to industry.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Boye, who are much interested in sport cars and sport car racing, are planning to attend meetings of Sport Car Racers. Last fall they attended the ones at Albany, Ga., and Columbus, Ohio. In between the racing meets they are enjoying their home on the ocean with their two children, Chari and Bill.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Chabot, formerly of Darien, Conn., and Rose Lane, Haverford, Pa., have recently moved into their new home in Veromar, and it is a pleasure for both their old and many new friends to visit with them and enjoy their gracious hospitality, especially in such pleasant surroundings.

The many parties which have occurred already seem to be an indication of a very pleasant season with much tennis, golfing, swimming, boating and fishing.

A good many more people are now arriving for the season, some old visitors, and some new. It's a funny thing about Vero Beach: if anyone once spends a season here, he always comes back and brings his friends.

The Windswept Hotel is getting into full swing, with delicious Wednesday night buffet suppers. It has a new and excellent chef, and the buffets are most popular.

Some of the most recent arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brisson, of New York. Mr. Brisson is a popular musician and a shining light in the theatrical world.

Others are Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gaither of Newton, NC.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ceresole of Concord, Mass.; Mr. Harry Monier of Champaign, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. John Buzzetta of Long Island, N.Y.; Mrs. O. W. Noel of Pekin, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Margolies of New York; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. McGough of Philadelphia; Mr. A. W. Alesbury of Summit, N.J.; and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Edwards of Sayville, Long Island, N.Y.

On January 17th, Col. and Mrs. Joseph W. Walton gave a surprise birthday party for their daughter, Miss Florence Walton. It was small and only casserole dishes and a birthday cake were served, but Miss Walton certainly was surprised. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Winnie Harshbarger, Miss Connie Ingalls, Mr. and Mrs. James Kressler, Mrs. Nancy Sheaffer, Mr. David Sawyer, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tameling, Mrs. Richard Wheelwright, Miss Nancy Wheelwright, Mr. Alexander J. Snow, Mrs. Virginia McGrath, Mrs. Harold P. Lusk, Mrs. Ralph Rega, Mr. Burton Nausbaum and Mr. William J. Rega. After the buffet was served there was dancing in the loggia of the Walton home, "Floralton".

The Randolph Lomas of Baltimore and Eagle Drive, Vero Beach, gave a party to celebrate Mrs. Lomas' birthday. About sixty guests were entertained for cocktails and buffet supper from six to eight o'clock.

"The Cottage" has had some extremely interesting guests, among them Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Donoghue of McKeeport, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John F. Watson of Oklahoma City and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Palmer, well known editors and publishers, of Barnesville, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Paul N. Stone of Washington, D.C. also enjoyed their stay at "The Cottage."

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Fry of Chicago and Vero Beach are in residence at their home on Porpoise Point and expect to be here until April or May. They will be joined in February by their daughter, Miss Janet Fry, and still later by their son, Bill.

Mr. and Mrs. William Irons of Bronxville, N.Y., and One Reef Road, Floralton Beach, are also here until April and recently had as their house guest, Mrs. Dorothy H. Pierce.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gabel have moved here from Hamilton, Mass., and have rented Mrs. Charles Mitchell's home on the beach while they are building first their guest house and then their own home, also in Floralton Beach.

Mrs. Richard Wheelwright of Riverside, Conn., has arrived with her two lovely daughters, Miss Nancy Wheelwright and Miss Sally Wheelwright. They will soon be joined by Mr. Wheelwright.

One of the nicest parties given so far this year was the one given by Major General and Mrs. Karl F. Haushauer of Buffalo, at their beautiful new home in Indian Bay. Their residence is on a point overlooking the Indian River and all the guests enjoyed the sunset over the water. General Haushauer is the commanding general of the New York National Guard and served during the war on President Eisenhower's staff. Former Mayor of Vero Beach and Mrs. Louis G. Burger received for General and Mrs. Haushauer for about eighty guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Mailer and Mrs. Raymond Allan of Montreal, Canada, are at the Windswept Hotel and spend most of their waking hours sunning themselves by the beautiful pool..

Here is a typical Florida scene, while blizzards rage in the North. Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Osborne are acquiring real suntan on the oceanfront at Vero Beach.

WHEN THE PALM BEACH POWER SQUADRON celebrates its 10th anniversary in November, the ladies counterpart, the Women's Auxiliary to the Palm Beach Power Squadron, will be starting its fourth year.

The formation of auxiliaries is a comparatively new movement within the Power Squadrons throughout the country. The idea originated in Miami with the WAMPS (Women's Auxiliary to the Miami Power Squadron) and has spread from Florida to the state of Washington. It is interesting to note that District 8, which comprises the whole state of Florida is 100 per cent auxiliary organized. Each of the eight squadrons in the state has an auxiliary.

During the administration of the late Commander Todd H. Green, who served from 1950 to 1952, the Women's Auxiliary to the Palm Beach Power Squadron came into being. It was patterned after the WAMPS and formed to serve a dual purpose—(1) to assist the squadron in any manner they may request and (2) to sponsor a teen-age educational program.

The organization meeting was held at the home of Mrs.

TYING UP FOR A PALM BEACH POWER SQUADRON RENDEZVOUS are, left to right: Roscoe T. Anthony's "Blue Heron," Squadron Commander John O. Manning's "Sea Phantom," Richard Rhinehart's "Megunticook" and P-Cmdr. George C. T. Remington's "Kenhyrd." The auxiliary served buffet supper aboard "Sea Phantom" for 93 people who were "crew" on these four boats and six others not shown. Not pictured, Lt. Cmdr. John Lawson's "Nosotros," Beaumont Davison's "Cherub," J. Deane Rucker's "Marcoura," Leroy Gross "Ponnie," Howard Turner's "Olde Salte" and Herbert Rissier's "Pop's Dream."

Leroy Coates Gross, Peruvian Avenue, Palm Beach in April of 1951 and Mrs. Todd H. Green was elected the first commander of the auxiliary by the six charter members present. Mrs. John O. Manning succeeded Mrs. Green and is now serving her second term as commander.

Growth of the organization has, to outward appearances, been slow, since membership is now only 19, but, unlike most other auxiliaries where a woman is entitled to membership because her husband, father or brother belong to the men's organization, in the auxiliary, taking and passing the piloting course is pre-requisite to membership, just as it is for men in the squadron. After passing the piloting examination, women are then eligible to continue on through all of the other seven courses offered by the Power Squadrons, namely, Seamanship, Advanced Piloting, Junior Navigation, Navigation, Weather, Sail, Engine Maintenance. There is also an Instruction or Training Course for those women interested in teaching classes in the teen age educational program.

The auxiliary is not a social organization, though much of the planning and detail work for the social activities, such as dinner dances, card parties and rendezvous, is carried out by the women in the auxiliary.

For those "landlubbers" who may not know just what a rendezvous is, nautically speaking, the yachts meet at or proceed in company to a designed anchorage where the craft tie up, abreast, and the "crews" are able to move freely from one boat to another. Some kind of entertainment and/or water sports is usually planned, followed by a buffet supper served aboard one of the larger boats in the fleet.

Each year pleasure boating is becoming more popular and more and more families are enjoying this sport together.

It, therefore, becomes increasingly necessary that women as well as men learn the proper handling of boats. It is also just as important that youngsters have the "know how" in respect to safe boat handling, whether they are just accompanying parents on a cruise or taking it up as a sport.

The auxiliary, working with the National Girl Scout Council, is offering such an educational program, based on the piloting class offered by the Power Squadrons but given in elementary form.

This past year, the WAMPS were awarded a citation by the National Girl Scout Council for the work they have done with the teen-age group—both boys and girls—in Miami.

This educational program is also important in that it is another means for combating juvenile delinquency in this age group. If these youngsters are given something new and interesting to do, such as learning how to handle small boats, tie knots, read charts and compass, etc., they will become absorbed in this work and, consequently, will not have so much leisure time in which to get into mischief.

The Women's Auxiliary, through the welfare committee, has assisted locally, in the Community Chest, Polio and Heart Drives by contacting people living aboard their boats at the various docks in the area. This group of boat owners have long wanted to do their share in these fund raising drives and have, so often, been overlooked. The auxiliary, noting this, offered their services, this year, to correct this oversight.

The Women's Auxiliary has gained invaluable wisdom and experience in these few short years of existence and is confident it will prove a definite value to the Palm Beach Power Squadron, to the teen-age element in this area and to the community.

Washington Letter

Dear Dora:

Well, Washington's back in business again! Legislating is this town's business and business looks good! So do the legislators who have returned for a very unusual and interesting session of Congress. At a recent dinner party given by the Women's Press Club for members of Congress, Senator William F. Knowland of California majority leader pointed out that he occupies a unique position in history, being the first majority leader without a majority.

Strapping Lyndon Johnson, minority leader referring to the frequent support the President received from the Democrats during the last session, answered in humorous satire: "I understand the only thing that worries the President is the sabotage indicated by Len Hall's remark that he's going to increase the Republican ranks in Congress this year."

Continuing, the towering Texan drawled: "There is no longer any need for concern. The Republicans have restored confidence by telling the nation: 'There isn't going to be any recession—and besides, we're going to do our best to stop the one we're in now.'"

Much in evidence at the same dinner was the Speaker, beloved Joe Martin of Pennsylvania, one of Washington's most proposed-to bachelors. He assures me he only receives proposals in leap years, but he can't kid me: I'll bet he's proposed to every day—politically, that is.

Also giving forth with language on this occasion were the majority and minority leaders of the House. Loud and gusty were the remarks of the perennially up-and-coming young-man from Indiana. Representative Charles A. Halleck. If vocal volume were the measure of success, "Chuck" Halleck would steal the show. The majority leader called attention to the likelihood of this being the most completely reported session in history since there are over two hundred more reporters accredited to Congress than there are members of Congress itself.

The minority leader, former Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn, who has served 21 consecutive terms in the House, was late arriving because of an earlier party given by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Miller in honor of his arrival on this earth seventy-two years ago. Everyone present united in wishing "Mr. Sam" a happy birthday, and party differences were forgotten in the warmth of his genial personality. Seventy-two is a truly wonderful age to be if you grow up to it as Sam Rayburn has.

Senator and Mrs. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire welcomed newly-appointed Senator and Mrs. Robert W. Upton of the same state at a reception in their honor at the 1925 F Street Club on January 4th. Robert Upton, who's nearly seventy, replaces the late TV star and Bible-quoter, Senator Charles Tobey. Vice President and Mrs. Nixon headed the list of guests, and Chief Justice and Mrs. Warren were there, as were Secretary of State and Mrs. Dulles, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Summerfield, and Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Mitchell. Republicans of both the Senate and House were well represented and there was a sprinkling of non-official Washingtonians, including Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Tankersley, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Henle, Mr. and Mrs. William Dolph, and former Senators James Kem, Harry P. Cain, and Owen Brewster, and their wives.

The "Departmental" reception which took place January 12 is the third of a series of five being given by the President and Mrs. Eisenhower this season. It featured the secretaries of the Treasury, Labor, Commerce, Agriculture and Interior and their wives, as well as the Postmaster General and his wife and the Secretary of Welfare. Although 1,400 guests were invited, only 963 showed up because of the heavy snow and ice covered streets.

Secretary Hobby lived up to her recently polled place in the count of the "ten best dressed" women, appearing in a handsome blue-gray gown, and wearing an emerald sapphire necklace, the Christmas gift of her husband, former Texas Governor William P. Hobby.

"My teen-age daughter," said the only woman Cabinet officer, "claims she ought to have won the title instead of me. She says she's the one who selects my clothes. She did choose three of my dresses and they weren't bad."

Lovely Mrs. Charles R. Hook, Jr., wife of the Deputy Postmaster General, looked most attractive in blue slipper satin designed by Josephine Bertoli and styled with a pleated bodice.

Much criticized liquor-serving Republican Capitol Hill Club (now located in ex-Congressman Charles Dewey's old home) had a cocktail party to welcome members back to town and the bone dry Congressional Club staged its annual big congressional tea a week later.

The lure of Washington is very great when you've lived here as long as the widow of late Senator Robert A. Taft, and Washingtonians are delighted to learn that, although the Taft home in Georgetown is to be sold, Martha Taft has decided to return to our town, where she will live in one of the spacious apartments at 2500 Massachusetts Avenue.

If Washington's weather doesn't improve, I'll be tempted to join you in Florida. This capitol is a mighty interesting place right now despite its snow, sleet and slush, so I'll compromise: You enjoy Florida for me and I'll stay here and write to you about Washington.

Sincerely, RUTH

Mr. George Howe, of Washington, D. C., is pictured on his Fulton, Maryland farm, "Holly Home" where he spends much of his time writing such books as "Heart Alone." Mr. Howe is a well known architect, and first rang the writing bell with his novel "Call It Treason" which was published after the last war and then made into a movie called, "Decision Before Dawn."

Pictured above, in the sub-tropical setting of the Palm Beach Patio Restaurant, are, left to right, Col. Leon Mandel, Mrs. Robert Carr, Mr. Peter Moon, Mrs. Carola Mandel and Mr. Robert Carr.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, who are spending the season at The Colony, often are noted at the Patio.

THE PATIO RESTAURANT, long a favorite among those Palm Beachers who enjoy an excellent French cuisine topped with fine music and lively entertainment, again is a center of resort night life in its 24th year here.

For almost a quarter-century the Patio, at North County Road and Sunset, has attracted the prominent names of the social, business, sports and entertainment fields, and this season numerous guests of past seasons again are making the colorful restaurant their favorite gathering-place. Many of Palm Beach's hundreds of newcomers have "discovered" the Patio and they, as do the regular guests, select it for dinner parties to entertain their families and friends.

This season the Patio has scored three outstanding hits. On its informal opening night the restaurant was filled to capacity; New Year's Eve saw another record turnout of merrymakers. But the big event of the season to date was the formal opening January 27th, a brilliant event in the Patio's history.

First and foremost at the Patio is the fine food and service, combined with the enchanting dinner and dance music as played by Maestro Val Ernie and his Society Orchestra.

Recent Patio guests include:

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Welles, Count and Countess Jose Dorelis, Mr. Woolworth Donahue, Col. and Mrs. Leon Mandell, Mr. Milton Holden, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lansiedel, Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Cernandos, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip R. Phillips, Miss Lynn Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Forsyth McNulty, Mr. Elmer Rich, Mr. John Boggiano, Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge Woodward, Mr. A. Laughlin Alexander, Mr. Edward T. Brannick, Mrs. R. U. FROM THE SWEET, SAD STRAINS OF GYPSY MUSIC to the impelling rythms of modern popular tunes, diners in Miramar's well-known Florentine Room and tropical garden have a tuneful diet to accompany their evening pleasure. Any request for a special favorite is treated as a command performance by the Famous Gypsies, who stroll from table to table serenading their appreciative audiences.

Music, no matter how beautiful, will not satisfy a gourmet if his dinner or after-theatre supper is not up to expectations. In Miramar's Florentine Room and outdoor dining garden, as well as the special party supper-room, the food and drinks are designed to meet the demands of the most exacting diner, and to send him home with the feeling that he has dined superbly.

From the busy kitchen come the ingredients, the home-made pastries and the vegetables. At the table are prepared the wonderful steaks, cut and cooked to order, the stimulating salads and luscious desserts. From the bar come drinks of every variety for before, during and after-dinner enjoyment to the guest's complete enjoyment.

Training and dedication to the job will tell, and nowhere more than in a restaurant. Miramar staffs are carefully trained, most of the members under continental masters of cookery and service. Every staff member feels it his personal duty to send every guest forth with the feeling that epicurean satisfaction has been his.

Among recent diners in Miramar have been Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peter Prudden, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Granville O. Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Blabon, 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Raese, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Frank Black, Miss Mary Howes, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah D. Maguire, Mr. and Mrs. Messmore Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. CLUB DU MOULIN ROUGE, atop Nino's original Continental restaurant, on North Olive Ave., officially opened on January 28th, is the latest addition to the many excellent places in the Palm Beaches for dining, dancing and entertainment.

New members continue to be added almost daily. Nino who is celebrating his 12th anniversary in the Palm Beaches this season, is welcoming to Moulin Rouge patrons of current and past seasons.

Patrons who have been going to the Continental for many years are delighted with this new club, which was initiated for the pleasure and entertainment of the Palm Beach colony. All members are being given guest cards for friends and visitors who may be in the Palm Beaches for only brief stays.

The spirit and decoration of the new club, which includes dining room, bar and foyer, are completely based on the work and times of the artist Toulouse-Lautrec. Zito, artist and son of a famous architect, who has created the Club du Moulin Rouge has had a life-time admiration for the work of Lautrec and spent several months in Europe and particularly Paris last summer making preparations for doing these Toulouse-Lautrec rooms. In them he has caught the feeling of the Paris of the late 1800's when Lautrec was a famed habitue of the Moulin Rouge and Maxim's. Zito has created the Moulin Rouge as the only night club in the world whose decoration is completely dedicated to the life work of one famous artist.

Members of the club include: Mr. A. Laughlin Alexander, Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler, Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry Buhl, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Bulman, Mr. Paul Butler, Mr. Beverly Bogert, Mr. Hugh Dillman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bartlett Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas, Mr. John Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Igor Cassini, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Mr. Christopher Dunphy, Mr. Woolworth Donahue, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Fenno, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, II, Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Wrightsman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Emilio Tagle, Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Heminway, Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien.

HERE ARE SO MANY THINGS to do in Miami, so many activities during the winter season take place in the glittering city on Biscayne Bay that an outstanding place to dine between afternoon and evening events is a must. Such a place is Maxim's, French as the Eiffel Tower and gay as a Parisian revue. Vacationers making the rounds of Miami and Miami Beach have discovered Maxim's Gallic charm; authentic French food and incomparable continental atmosphere. They return again and again to the home of fine wines and perfectly mixed cocktails. Maxim's cuisine sends them into the night replete, and promising themselves a repetition soon. Conveniently located at 95th and Harding Avenue, Surfside, Miami Beach, the happy choice of dining places is a gathering place for the smart set visitors to all south Florida.

PALM BEACH COLONISTS and other distinguished guests look with favor on Maison Lafitte and its zestful French cuisine served by Charles and Melchior, proprietors.

Culinary art adds magic to one's filet mignon and, on occasions, Lafitte's famed bouillabaisse is served. For those who get a nostalgic feeling for the Left Bank there is at one's bidding, escargots bourguignonne which are snails baked in a dressing of shallots, garlic, lemon juice and butter.

Seafood specialties at Maison Lafitte involves no risk, for all shrimp, lobster and fish are served the same day as received via air express, and such rapid transportation as the product demands.

In the alluring atmosphere of Via Parigi and the gay colorings of table arrangements one is sure to think of crepes suzette as the meal ends. These tiny pancakes are created at one's table under the watchful eye of Charles, whose skill with spatula and shafing dish is known to thousands. Wines and beverages are of the finest.

Patrons entertaining there include Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Gulbenkian, Mr. and Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Mr. and Mrs. Martin F. Reddington and party; Mr. Lewis S. Rosenstein with a group; Mrs. Grace McAfee, Mr. and Mrs. Benson Ford, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ferst, Mr. B. H. Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Schooley with several friends; Mr. and Mrs. Irving H. Isaacs, Mr. W. L. Hanley, Mr. Alfred Feltman, Mr. B. F. Paty, Mr. J. R. McLean and party, Mr. V. M. Green, Mrs. Robert V. Wharton with a small family group.

PALM BEACH'S NEW FRENCH RESTAURANT, Gregory's Maison Royale, on Royal Palm Way, is one of the resort's popular restaurants.

The cuisine is entirely French, and each dish is expertly prepared by experienced French chefs, and meticulously served. On warm, balmy evenings, the Parisian terrace overlooking beautiful Royal Palm Way is the gathering place of the elite for dinner. When the weather is cool, the indoors dining-rooms, with two huge woodburning fireplaces, is a delightful rendezvous for friends to meet and dine. The charm of old France and the tropical beauty of south Florida, with its palms and colorful foliage, all lend to the charm of Maison Royale.

Gregory, the owner, is well-known to Palm Beach, where he has been affiliated for the past fifteen years. Many resorters also remember Gregory in England from the Savoy Hotel, the Ritz and at the famous Ciro's in London. He is a true restaurateur, having inherited his trade from his family, which has been in the restaurant business for generations.

Among the guests recently dining at Maison Royale are Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Inches, Mr. and Mrs. Ayv Barrell Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Winston P. Ayres, Mr. A. Laughlin Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bartlett, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Allison Armour, Mr. and Mrs. John Archbold, Mr. and Mrs. Morton H. Fetterolf, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Drake, Mrs. Walter S. This pleasant and comfortable lounge, overlooking the ocean, is at Liggett's new South Ocean restaurant.

There's a "different" atmosphere in this Marine Dining Room at Liggett's new South Ocean restaurant, across from the Lake Worth Casino.

Here is the attractive bar at Liggett's South Ocean Club, where guests may sit and watch the Atlantic.

LHE LUXURIOUS NEW Liggett's South Ocean Restaurant and Cocktail Lounge has "arrived"—for resort residents and visitors alike are realizing the fact that this newly-remodeled spot offers a perfect setting for cocktails, dinner and dancing.

The elaborate remodeling of this ocean-side restaurant since William J. Liggett, operator of the famous Liggett's Holiday Inn at Burlington, Wisc., took it over this fall, has done much to enhance its popularity.

And the old saying, "it takes an outsider to appreciate your situation" is particularly true in this case. For Mr. Liggett had the huge bamboo-thatched bar built directly facing the ocean so that his clientele might take advantage of this rather outstanding view.

Focal point of the extensive remodeling is the new cocktail lounge, tastefully decorated in the tropical vein, with the yellow leather-covered rattan chairs and huge tropical planters combining to form a strictly Florida-like setting. The lounge adjoins both the bar and the Marine Dining Room, which has been refurbished completely to offer a luxurious setting for dining. The dining room is open daily from 5:30 to 10:30 p.m., and on Sunday's from noon to 10 p.m.

Now playing nightly from 7-9 for dinner in the Marine Dining Room is "The Bellaires" duo, an organ and piano combination, which also starts in at 10:30 p.m. for dancing. Menu highlights here are roast prime ribs from aged western beef and Maine lobster.

Liggett's South Ocean offers even more than the above-mentioned—for the Submarine Room is available in the downstairs section with a more informal-type atmosphere prevailing.

This room especially has been "prettied up" and considerably enlarged and now boasts a dancing trio of its own—the Frank Rizzuto "Rhythm Deans." This trio, which has been with Mr. Liggett for six years at his Wisconsin resort spot, is a very danceable little outfit—playing from 10 p.m. to 3 a.m. nightly—with the result that the Submarine Room is catching on as a good informal night-spot. A short-order type menu is featured here throughout the evening and early-morning hours. And the specialty? Submarine sandwiches, of course!

With the complete facilities offered at Liggett's South Ocean, private group parties are fast becoming a specialty of Liggett's South Ocean.

For example, Miss Mae Andrews recently was hostess at a cocktail party for more than 250 persons. To further enhance the restaurant's beautiful new decor, a different variety of orchids was flown in from Hawaii for the affair.

Noted dining recently at Liggett's South Ocean were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pults, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Horton, Miss Alice P. Work, Mrs. Josephine Hammonds, Mr. and Mrs. Manley Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Zebras and Abyssinian asses find the passing parade of visitors as interesting as visitors find the animals in the transplanted veldt of Africa, U. S. A.

Safari in Safety

SINCE RECENT MOVIES have thrown so much light on the dark continent even the small fry are familiar with names like Tanganyika Territory, Mt. Kilimanjaro and Masai Land; magic names inspiring travel lust in the most sedentary soul.

Distance, Mau Mau and inoculation requirements keep an African safari from being a pleasure jaunt for the whole family any time in the near future, but some of Africa's most interesting features are now within thirty minutes drive for Palm Beach colonists. Just a tribal war whoop from the fabulous Boca Raton Club visitors to the new three hundred and fifty acre development called Africa, U.S.A., get a safe and comfortable ride through the veldt.

Part of Africa, U.S.A., is surrounded by a clever double fence, and inside the fenced area African wildlife roams freely, as in its native habitat. From the moment the adult-sized, rubber tired train leaves on its trip through the jungle, surprises are in store at every turn. One of the first is "Machakas, the Masai Warrier," a tall, impassive native who opens the gate to Tanganyika Territory, and will, if urged, give forth with an impressive speech of welcome in his "native tongue."

Actually Machakas, or Willie as he is known to his family in Pompano, Florida, is the only bit of make-believe in the veldt. His "native tongue" is Japanese, picked up with the occupation forces, but he delights children and camera fans.

As the train proceeds past Nairobi City Limits animals begin to come in sight. More Grevy (pronounced gravy) Zebras roam here than exist in all the zoos and circuses in the United States, combined.

Cavorting in the veldt and captivating everyone who sees him is "Tiger", the only Zee-horse in existence. Off-

Peering shyly at onlookers in one of his infrequent expeditions out of the sheltering bush is a Sitatunga, an antelope from the swamps of central Africa.

Placid Elands, vividly marked, bask in the sunshine at Africa, U. S. A. Related to the Brahman of India, they are the beef cattle of the African native.

spring of a Grevy Zebra father and English race horse mother, "Tiger" is the result of a mesalliance contracted in Kenya Colony. All other efforts to breed horses and zebras have failed.

It is a disconcerting sight to round a bend in the jungle road into sight of the largest flock of North Kenya ostrich in captivity. Most zoo and circus ostriches are the smaller South African variety. Brought to this country as babies, the ostriches in Africa, U.S.A. have now attained most of their adult size of four hundred pounds and nine to ten feet in height. Curious, stupid and potentially dangerous to a lone man in their midst, these birds allow themselves to be bossed and badgered by a little crested crane of many colors named "Ichabod."

Here in Africa transplanted the visitor sees the docile and appealing biblical, or Abyssinian asses, direct descendants of the ones mentioned in the bible. With their sad, wise brown eyes and the distinct cross on their backs, they are the most memorable of Africa, U. S. A.'s animals, though not the most striking.

The whole of Africa, U.S.A. is a camera hobbyists' paradise, and nowhere more than from an electric boat that cruises between flower covered banks to Lake Nanyuki, where tame alligators beg for bread; and where punctually every thirty-two minutes Watusi geyser erupts to a height of one hundred and sixty feet.

Miziwa springs, from which flows over six million gallons of water daily, and Zambezi falls, a graceful thirty-five foot drop, are located in the botanical gardens where visitors may wander on foot inspecting fifty-five thousand tropical and sub-tropical trees and shrubs. There are over a thousand fruit trees and the gamut of utility plantings. Coffee, tea, vanilla, tapioca, lemon extract, oil of citronella, kapok, camphor, licorice, cadjuput, oil, rubber, henna dye, butter and margarine coloring, sugar, sisal, ginger, castor oil, pineapples, pepper, chicle, tung oil, dates and pepsin are grown here, in possibly the largest aggregation of practical botanical species gathered in one place, in the world.

A "native village" built in exact replica of ones in the African bush country, shelters the monkey colony of Boca Raton's new tourist attraction.

THE
Colonial

... in the finest tradition!

It's a delightful place . . . a wonderful combination of continental charm, modern luxury, and noteworthy cuisine . . . just a step from the heart of old Nassau . . . yet secluded in a magnificent tropical estate with a superb view of the Harbour.

There are two creamy-white private beaches for swimming and water sports . . . a sparkling pool, largest in the tropics . . . championship tennis courts . . . guest privileges at the Bahamas Country Club . . . instruction by top-ranking pros . . . a lively but unobtrusive social program . . . dining and dancing in the air-conditioned Continental Room . . . everything, in fact, to make your stay at The British Colonial Hotel memorable!

Lago Mar Hotel ~ Fort Lauderdale

ERNIE WARREN, REPUTED TO have played the longest engagement of any musician at Billingsley's famed Stork Club, is now adding Florida East Coast success to his list of triumphs.

He made his Florida debut on New Year's Eve as new orchestra leader for nightly dancing in the Lago Mar Hotel, Fort Lauderdale, and already he has become a favorite among Lauderdale's sun colonists.

Throughout the season, Ernie's baton will set the pace for gaiety in Lago Mar's Silhouette Room and on the patio overlooking the sea. Many of the hotel's New York and Long Island guests remember Ernie from his appearance at the Little Club and the Sands Point Club, as well as the Stork.

French chanteuse Helene Aimee is another entertainer at Lago Mar who is well known to Gothamites. She has just returned to the hostelry after a top-flight run at the Viennese Lantern in Manhattan.

As brilliant as its night life is Lago Mar's daytime scene of tennis, golf, swimming and water skiing. Weekly contests on the putting green are making fast friends of enthusiasts from coast to coast who brought their clubs for their Lago Mar vacation.

Young-set athletes are keeping tennis pro Igor right on his toes. He says he's beginning to wonder who is out for practice—he or they.

Norm Jackson, maestro of the water skis, is doing the same kind of wondering. His pupils on Lago Mar's Mayan Lake are pliable as well as plentiful.

Which pool to use, or possibly the ocean, is a question that all Lago Mar guests ask themselves daily. With the choice of two pools—one salt and one fresh—plus the Atlantic sparkling along a half-mile of private beach, it's like opening the closet and finding so many gowns you don't know which to select.

Dining in the Starlight Room presents a similarly enjoyable problem. King of the cuisine this year is Alphonse Dennis. Born and reared in France, where cookery takes a proper place among the arts, Alphonse enhanced his birth-right by training under Escoffier at the Savoy in London. After that he scored success on his own at the George V Hotel in Paris and the Great Britain in Malta. Excelling too in the preparation of seafood, Alphonse was chef at the Prunier Restaurant, which heads the seafood houses in Paris.

In New York Alphonse was with Charles a la Pomme Souffle, and the famous caterer Robert Day Dean.

Another much-traveled newcomer on the Lago Mar staff is Estelle Olin, social directress. Having worked with Ken Arnold when he managed the British Colonial in Nassau, Mrs. Olin is known to the Nassau visitors who have been taking frequent trips to Lago Mar since it opened last year.

The Ritz in Paris, London's Savoy, Cairo's Continental and the Excelsior in Venice are among the other cosmopolitan meeting places with which Mrs. Olin has been associated.

Two New England Artists at Mayo Hill Galleries

WO IMPORTANT New England painters—Henry Varnum Poor and Conger Metcalf — were featured in the fourth exhibition of the season at the Mayo Hill Galleries in Delray Beach.

Metcalf, who was seen last year at the Galleries and proved to be immensely popular, is an artist who finds his greatest pleasure in drawing. A graduate of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts School, he works and lives in Boston, and teaches art at the Dexter School in Brookline.

He frequently works in a mixed technique, combining crayon and pencil, or ink and paint, and portrays children with great sympathy. The subtlety of his stroke is particularly apparent in his "trompe l'oeil" still lifes.

Henry Varnum Poor is intimately associated with the famous Skowhegan

School of Painting and Sculpture. He was born in 1888 of a Maine enterpriser who had picked up and moved to Kansas, and of the daughter of a "Forty Niner" who had turned back from the Far West to a Kansas homestead. With this heritage, Poor has lived close to the earth, and enjoyed all parts of the United States. Especially he has loved and painted the American countryside with a richness that springs both from his native roots and from his art studies in Europe.

A versatile artist he is well known as a teacher, and for his paintings, his murals, and his ceramics inspired by the art of Crete.

The Poor-Metcalf exhibition scheduled closed Saturday and will be followed at the Mayo Hill Galleries this month with works by Xavier Gonzales, and his wife, Ethel Edwards.

THE GROWING TREND TO LINCOLN

Furniture, courtesy Knoll Associates, Inc.

What started the big move to the new Lincoln?

Why have sales of this fine car more than doubled in two short years?

The answer lies partly in the new and imaginative ideas inspired by modern design, modern architecture, modern living.

Notice the clean-lined new front grille, the expansive new rear deck, the brilliant new styling all around, the exciting new colors and interiors. Then try this new Lincoln.

Its action and its handling tell you why Lincoln won the Mexican Pan-American

Road Race two years in a row—sweeping the first four places in the stock car class.

The matchless Lincoln V-8 engine gives you new response with its new automatic 4-barrel carburetor. Handling is effortless; for Lincoln is the only fine car with ball-joint front wheel suspension.

Isn't a car as ahead-of-the-times as the new Lincoln worth an in-person look and a drive? You're invited to visit your Lincoln dealer.

Cadillac

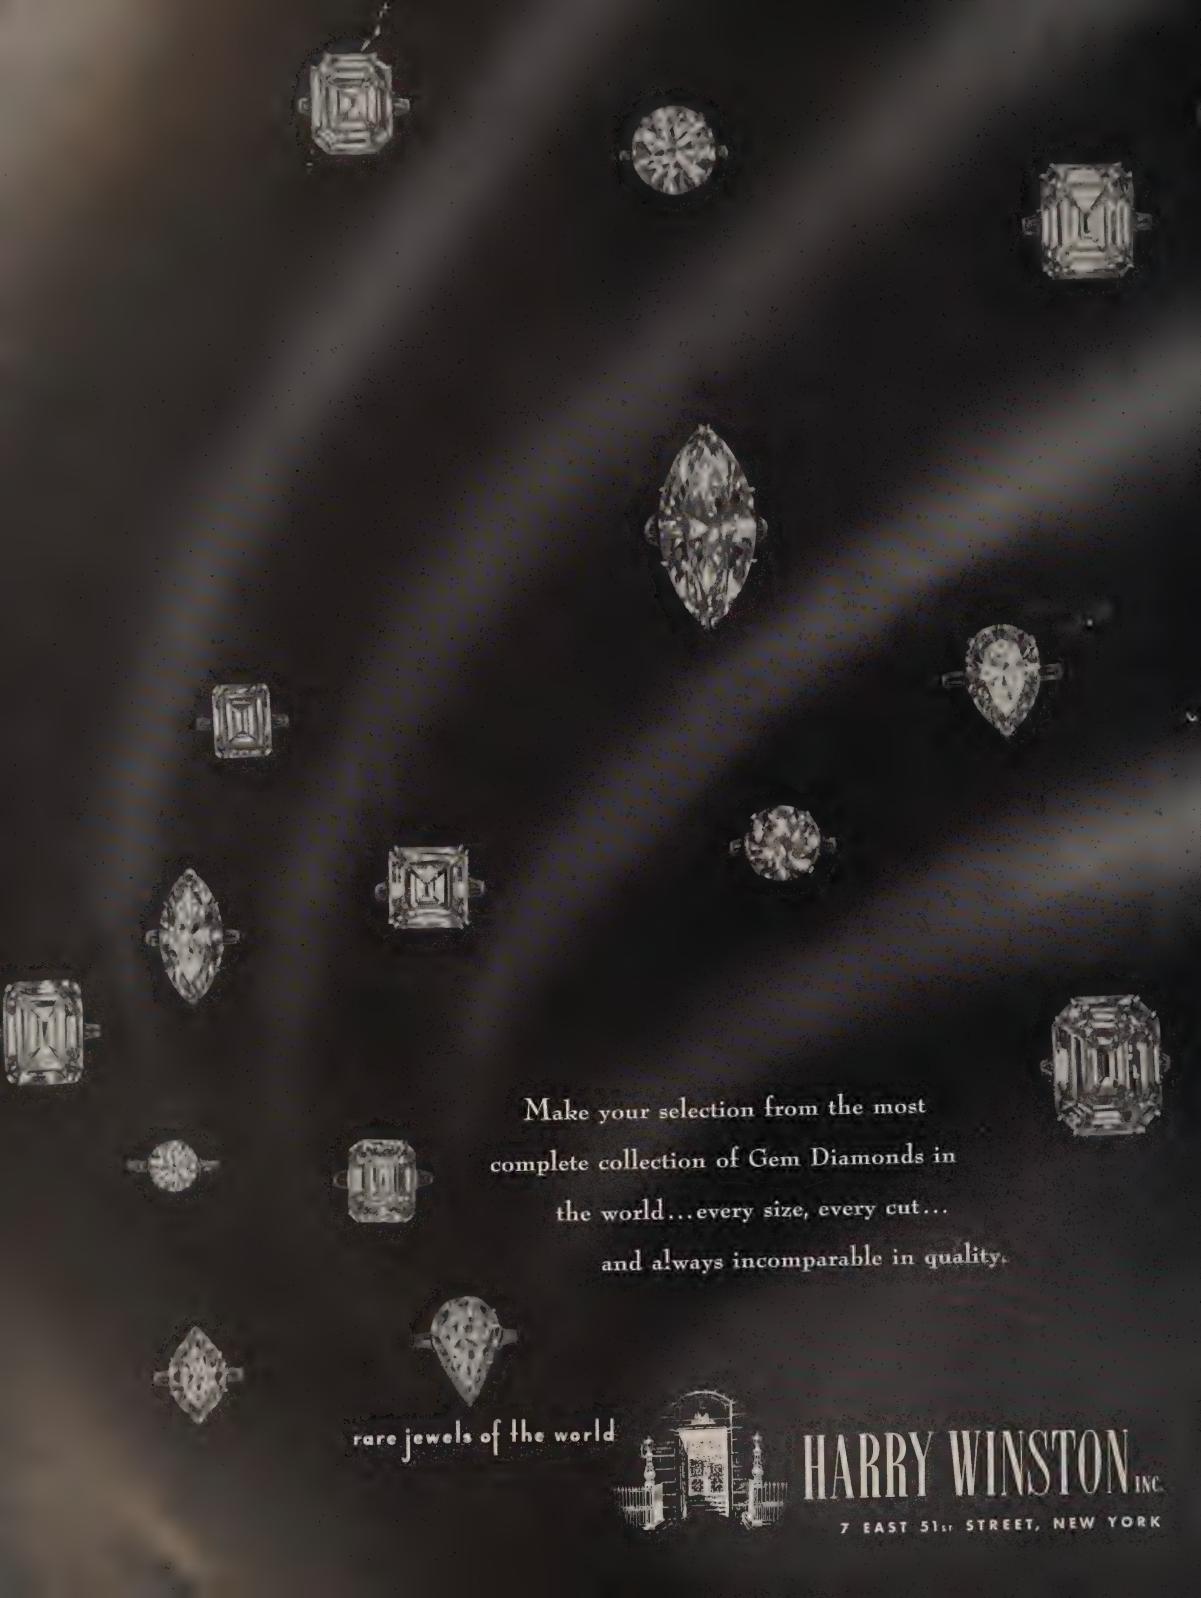

Worth Its Price in Prestige!

If a motorist wanted to make the move to Cadillac solely for the car's prestige—he would most certainly be justified in doing so. For the rewards which grow out of Cadillac's unprecedented public acceptance comprise the rarest and greatest satisfactions in all motordom—an inescapable feeling of pride, a wonderful sense of well-being, and a marvelous feeling of confidence and self-esteem. Those who presently enjoy these unique Cadillac virtues will tell you that they are, in themselves, worth the car's whole purchase price. Of course, most motorists would hesitate to take such a step purely for their personal edification. But in Cadillac's case, this wonderful prestige is actually a "bonus"—an extra dividend that comes with every Cadillac car, in addition to its magnificent styling, luxury and performance. Have you seen and driven the 1954 Cadillac? If you haven't, we suggest you come in and see us soon for a personal inspection and demonstration.

Out Island Regatta

AMERICAN YACHTSMEN visiting in the Bahamas will gather at George Town, Exuma, next month to witness probably the most novel sail racing event ever organized.

Participating in the "Out Island Regatta" will be the work boats of all the Bahamas, where thousands of families, living on hundreds of remote islands and cays have no other form of transportation than sail. Their owners and crews use their sail boats for crawfish, turtle and crab catching, fishing for the hundreds of palatable fish of the region, bringing conch up from the floor of the broad Bahamas banks and for the transportation from place to place of passengers, freight and all types of island produce.

Each day hundreds of the picturesque smacks, sloops and schooners back in to anchorages along the dock of Nassau's age-old and colourful waterfront market. Cane, plantains, pineapples and citrus, as well as vegetables from small remote truck farms are sold from the deck. Shoppers can select fish from the deep live wells and the fish are killed and cleaned to order.

Ardena Invisible Veil

Invisible Veil is new in concept... new in its secret process of manufacture—a powder of such complete invisibility that it actually becomes the very texture of a woman's complexion. Invisible Veil covers shadows, refines pores, and gives a look of luminous clarity—never flies or mists. In ten beautiful shades.

Elizabeth Arden has captured this translucent veil of beauty and put it in creamy solid form in a beautiful Napoleon Compact.

Cat Cay

WHEN IT COMES to personalities, you can't beat Cat Cay. Chances are, there are more big names per square foot on this tiny tropic resort island, than anywhere else in the world. Roster of the Cat Key Club there sounds like who's who of America's industrial and scientific realm.

Take, for instance, James Rand III, who during his Cat Cay vacation is more concerned with skeet shooting than just about anything else in the world. Mention that name to a scientist, and like as not he'll know immediately the Cleveland resident is the one whose latest brain child is "Millium Cloth". He is at the present time, deep in research work on cancer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross D. Siragusa, are vacationing in Cat Cay with their off-springs, Dick and Suzi. Mr. Siragusa is more deeply concerned with deep sea fishing than any electrical appliance he can think of. The Siragusas, with their prize winning boxer, Dagmar, planed into Cat Cay the other day from their Chicago home on the "Admiral Flagship" and will spend most of the season at their beautiful Cat Cay home, Pop's Place. Almost every day you can find this fishing family in the blue waters around Cat Cay, fishing aboard the "Suzi III".

Mr. Gordon Stouffer, now in Cat Cay, is more interested in skeet than in dishes for which his eating spots are famous.

Arthur E. Pew, Jr., oil magnate from Philadelphia, is more concerned right now with keeping rod and reel, and other fishing equipment oiled up so he and his family can continue their fishing aboard the "Hazel Mack", than he is with those derricks that pump oil out of the ground, and money into his pocketbook. Mr. Pew and his family are Cat Cay regulars—own a home on the island.

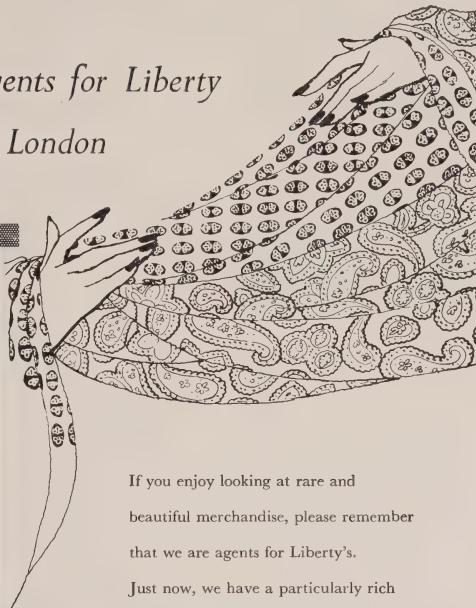

From ship to shore on frequent fishing jaunts is an apt expression to use right now in regard to Henry D. Mercer of shipping renown. At the present time fishing boats and fishing at Cat Cay, where he is vacationing, are on his mind a lot more than ocean liners.

Sometimes Dr. Frank Elton Perkin of Grosse Pointe, Mich., gets called to Washington for conferences with President Dwight Eisenhower, and while such confidence is flattering, he's probably hoping such won't be the case during the next few weeks—fishing is too good right now at Cat Cay.

New Flight makes weekend commuting Easy and Practical

NEW 3 HOUR AND 20 MINUTE DC-7 flights by National Airlines to and from New York are making weekend commuting to Palm Beach easy and practical.

Many business and professional people living in the New York area are now leaving New York's winter weather on Friday night or Saturday morning for a weekend in the Palm Beach area. With the inauguration of National's non-stop DC-7 flights, weekend commuters have from Saturday noon until Sunday evening to enjoy Palm Beach's warm and sunny winter climate.

The morning "Star" flight by DC-7 now leaves New York at 10:30, arriving in Palm Beach at 1:50 in the afternoon. Evening "Star" flights leave Palm Beach daily at 5:45 p.m. and arrive in New York at 9:05 p.m. More and more snow bound northerners are discovering just how close they are, by air, to Palm Beach.

Airline flights in and out of Palm Beach are a Who's Who of the United States during the winter season. Air travelers are often treated to the sight of a Hollywood star, a high Washington official, a well-known Senator or a foreign dignitary at West Palm Beach's busy international terminal.

But National does more than fly the DC-7 to and from the Palm Beaches. Daily DC-6B direct flights service Washington and New York. Fast Convair 340 flights wing people in from New Orleans, Tampa and Jacksonville. All Florida is linked by daily local flights through interchange equipment with other leading airlines and can fly passengers as far as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Dallas, Detroit, Milwaukee and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

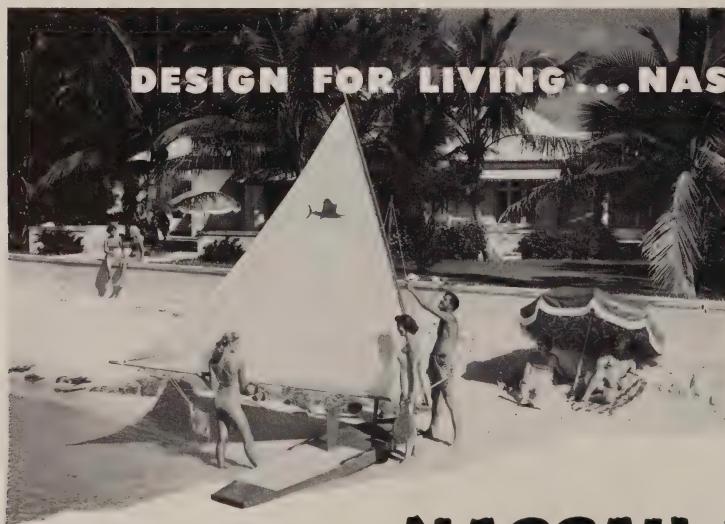

Most air passengers never take time to look behind scenes to see what made their flight comfortable and enjoyable. Air travelers usually begin their journey by contacting a friendly reservations agent or a local travel agent. They seldom see the vast network of communications needed to instantly confirm the air travelers' reservation or request it from other airlines.

Filet mignon dinners, cocktails, music, flowers and red carpet arrivals and departures are a regular part of National's "Star" flights, but a visit to modern kitchens that prepare food and shops that keep up the first-class appearance of National's aircraft is an eye opener which shows passengers the lengths NAL goes to provide true luxury air travel.

Most air travelers do not realize the thousands of hours of training behind every airline flight and ground crew, or the many hundreds of people whose function it is to keep in touch with the flight, handle its many details, and expedite the plane along its way without confusion or delay.

The luxury theme of National's "Star" service symbolizes the ultimate in comfort and speed many airline passengers demand. Regular airline travelers feel the DC-7 flights represent a pinnacle of first-class air service.

When next you take a trip by National, ask your crew to show some of the working details of an airline. Flight crews and station personnel will be glad to show you around. Perhaps it will help you to better understand why flying is the fastest, easiest and most comfortable way to travel.

GASPARILLA CARNIVAL

Even when he suspended his piratical doings long enough to rest, sleep and hence to dream, Jose Gaspar, infamous buccaneer of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries, could not have dreamed what the city of Tampa would do with his name and story.

Nor could Jose Gaspar have visualized the pirate ship bearing his name, which sails the bounding main of Tampa Bay. He would have looked askance upon the three hundred and fifty pirates manning the good ship "Jose Gasparilla", and would have passed over them as being far too good natured and peaceable, in picking a crew.

He might have been gratified by the fact that his old profession has gained, this year, the first ship specifically built for "piracy" in nearly two hundred years; but the boat, with steel hull and three steel masts, yet drawing less than two and a half feet, would have appalled his soul. A ship built at a cost of one hundred thousand dollars, a sizeable sum even in pieces of eight, should be completely seaworthy, he would maintain. Instead, the "Jose Gasparilla" was specially built to sail only twelve miles a year, and that in the sheltered waters of the bay.

Ye Mystic Krewe of Gasparilla, however, did not intend open sea piracy in building their new ship to sail in and out of Tampa at the beginning and end of the golden anniversary celebration of Gasparilla Week. After the salty old three-master formerly carrying Tampa's businessmen-pirates in their invasion of Tampa and their escape a week later, gave up the ghost two years ago, a new and better vessel had to be obtained. One that would look like a pirate ship, yet be able to land directly on the shore must be constructed, and it was.

The new pirate ship adds tremendous color to the traditional Gasparilla Festival which each year brings thousands of visitors to Tampa. After the ship lands and three and a half hundred dastardly pirates have taken over and paraded through downtown Tampa, events follow in almost bewildering succession. A coronation ball glitters; Pirate Fiesta torchlight procession passes through Tampa's Spanish section, Ybor City, and a gigantic fireworks display lights up miles of Florida's west coast. Jose, in common with today's visitors, would have enjoyed the whole thing.

On the sterns of these boats are the names of ports stretching from one end to the other of the 700 mile long archipelago which makes up the Bahamas. To many of the sailors the ship is their home. They sleep in the cockpit and cook in a charcoal pot on deck.

It was J. Linton Rigg, American author and yachtsman, who conceived the idea of pitting the craft against each other in a series of sailing races. Dividing the group up into several classes by keel size and sail area, it was decided to have prizes for each of the classes. American yachtsmen, among them Ward Wheelock of Philadelphia, donated sufficient money for a prize fund of more than £700 ($2,000). In each class prizes of £100, £50, £25 and £10 will be awarded. Bahamian merchants have also posted more than £300 in merchandise prizes and groups in the various island areas will add to the prize money with cash awards for the best showing made by boats from their own fleets.

Most yachtsmen who think of racing craft as sleek hulls with expensive sails cut by masters would shudder to think of racing the rough work boats in which the Bahamian sailors do their daily work. Yet these boats are fast and responsive, despite their outmoded bald-head and gaff rigs with bellied sails which were probably made right on the boat by the master or his mate. Few sails do not show patches upon patches. In addition many of the boats have live fish wells which slow down the movement of the boat through the water. Very few have auxiliary motors.

Despite these handicaps, the boats are fast and maneuverable. As one American yachtsman expressed it: "They look as though they can't get out of their own way, but they move like scared rabbits when they want to get somewhere in a hurry."

Most of the craft were built in native shipyards of native woods. On Man-O-War Kay, Eleuthera, one family has been building fine boats for many generations and their finished products will match in craftsmanship the work of the finest shipyards of the world. While the woods, from Abaco and Andros islands, are hard and strong, a few seasons of banging against docks gives them a deceptively fragile appearance.

The work boat skippers, crews and their families will share a three day festival on the parade grounds of George Town during the regatta on March 26 to 28.

of "Knollcrest," Burton Road, Grand Rapids, Mich., who with Mr. Miller spends the winter at their home on North Lake Way. They belong to the Everglades Club, Palm Beach and the Penninsular and Blythfield Country Clubs of Michigan.

PALM BEACH, ACCLAIMED THE RIVIERA OF AMERICA, continues to uphold its title. The queen of winter resorts is not only a haven for members of the international smart set, but is playground as well for celebrities of the political world, stage, screen and radio stars, luminaries of art and literature and families whose names are household words of two continents.

Recently Col. and Mme. Jacques Balsan were hosts at a dinner at "Casa Alva," their lovely estate on Hypoluxo Island for Mme. Balsan's son, the Duke of Marlborough, Lady Caroline Waterhouse, and Major Hugo Waterhouse; Lady Rosemary Nuir and Mr. Nuir, of England and Mr. Philip W. Livermore, of New York, all of whom are visiting the Balsans. A delightful recent affair was the luncheon given by Mr. Harvey S. Ladew, at "Pier a Mer," his home at Gulf Stream for Mr. and Mrs. Alden Blodgett, of New York. Mrs. Blodgett is the famous Cornelia Otis Skinner. Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen were hosts at a luncheon recently at "Casa Primavera," their lovely home on El Bravo Way. Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wentworth Noyes gave a large dinner party at "Mar-Cielo," their home in Delray Beach, for Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton in celebration of the Hutton's wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cameron Clark entertained for dinner at their home on Middle Road in honor of their house guests, the Marquis and Marquise de la Roziere, and Mrs. Nathaniel Hill, of New York City. Mrs. Dodge Sloane gave a dinner party and tea at "Concha Marina." Mrs. Drew Pearson was the honored guest at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lihme at their home on Clarke Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton gave a large buffet supper at "Four Winds," following Cornelia Otis Skinner's performance at the Society of the Four Arts. Mrs. Harold Fitzgerald gave a dinner at her ocean front home in honor of Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody's house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Peabody and Mr. and Mrs. Hart, of San Jose, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Rea, of Devon, Pa., who have taken a house on North Lake Trail this winter, after spending several seasons at the Everglades Club, gave a dinner at their home for their house guests, Mrs. Beatrice Moresby, of London, England, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paul Suelka, of Collingswood, N. J.

Among others entertaining recently were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Rutherford, of South Ocean Blvd., Col. and Mrs. Harold Fowler of El Brillo Way, Mrs. Donner Hanson, of South Ocean Blvd., the Walter S. Gubelmanns, of North Ocean Blvd., Mrs. John H. Packard, 3rd, of Middle Road, the Roscoe Tate Anthonyms who entertained for their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Tate Anthony, Jr. in celebration of the young people's wedding anniversary.

Major-General and Mrs. Ralph K. Robertson gave a tea at their ocean front villa, "Casa Della Porto." Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hawes, who digressed from bridge which seems to be the popular game this season in Palm Beach, to having six or seven tables of canasta, had additional guests drop in for tea later. Several marriage engagements have been announced! Dr. and Mrs. Bailey Brown Sory, Jr., of Wells Road, told of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Long Sory to Mr. Thomas M. Keresey, Jr., son of Mrs. Kelly Keresey, of 988 Fifth Ave., New York City and Mr. Thomas M. Keresey, also of New York. An early spring wedding is planned by this young couple. Also Mr. and Mrs. Gustav A. Maass, of 120 Algoma Road, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Carolyn Jean Maass to Mr. William Russell Trezise, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Trezise, of Alliance, Ohio.

A wedding of much local interest took place on January 30th when Miss Helen Annette Reardon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Reardon, of Fond Du Lac, Wis., was married in Fond Du Lac to Mr. Edward Deal Lewis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lewis, of Royal Palm Way and Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack F. Chrysler, of New York City, are staying at "Casa del Sur," the ocean front villa of Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas. The Cernadas have taken an apartment at the Everglades Club. One of the interesting young couples visiting in the resort is Mr. and Mrs. Gerald S. Kendall, of Wooley Creek Farm, Southampton, L. I., who are visiting her mother, Mrs. Henry Paulson at "Ocean Edge," her ocean front home. Mrs. Kendall was the former Mrs. Phyllis Rainwater. She and Mr. Kendall were married at Mrs. Paulson's home on November 3rd. The Philip L. B. Igleharts, of Westbury, L. Mr. and Mrs. James Monahan are here for the month of February, where Mrs. Monahan (Lois Mattox Miller), who is roving editor of Reader's Digest, can enjoy a real Florida vacation. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yates Sanders with their two attractive youngsters, Eleanor and Roy, 3rd, have arrived from their home in Buffalo, N. Y., to spend the remainder of the season with Mrs. Sanders' mother, Mrs. Paul J. Rich at her home on El Brillo Way. The Donald Kilpatrics with their small son Kenneth and infant daughter, Virginia, have come from China where Mr. Kilpatric was head of the China Relief Mission, and economic advisor to the American Embassy while Dr. Leighton Stuart was Ambassador. They are enjoying the Florida sunshine at their home on Sea Breeze Ave. Mrs. Grant Warren Spear and her daughter, Mrs. E. Ferrier Spear of New York City, were early February arrivals, and are now nicely settled for the winter at "La Boliche," their home on North Ocean Blvd. Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry Buhl have come down from their northern home in Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., for their annual stay in the resort. Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo B. The Boca Raton Club

Setting for Polo Ball to be held Friday, February 26, for Benefit of Damon Runyon Cancer Fund

THE CALENDAR for the month of February will be filled with social and sports activities at the beautiful Boca Raton Club—but highlighting all activities there for the season will be the Inaugural Annual Polo Ball, to be held on Friday evening, February 26th, for the benefit of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. The ball is sponsored by the Gulfstream Polo Club. It will not only be the outstanding social event of the season—but will be, by far, the most gala affair ever held in the club's history. Over 1500 persons are expected to be in attendance that evening, with prominent socialites and winter colonists from Palm Beach to Miami Beach on the Committees, and on the long list of patrons.

The Duchess of Windsor is Honorary Chairman, and Mrs. Stephen (Laddie) Sanford of Palm Beach is General Chairman. Members of Mrs. Sanford's Committee includes Mrs. John R. Fell, Mrs. Winston F. C. Guest, Mrs. Leon Mandel, Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien, Mrs. Michael Phipps, Mrs. Porfirio Rubirosa and Mrs. Robert R. Young. Mrs. Stewart B. Iglesias is Chairman of the Delray Beach Committee, and assisting her are Mrs. W. Cottingham Allen, Mrs. Melville P.

Dickenson, Mrs. E. H. Gold, Mrs. George Oliver and Mrs. Wilbur Topping. The Miami Beach Committee is headed by Mrs. Jane Fisher, former wife of Carl Fisher, founder of Miami Beach. She is assisted by Mrs. George T. Baker, Mrs. John C. Clark, Mrs. Walter Hotchkiss, Mrs. Edgar A. Iglesias, Mrs. James L. Knight, Mrs. Horatio Luro, Mrs. Otto Milbrand, Mrs. Bryant Newkirk, Mrs. James Lowell Oakes Jr., and Mrs. Stefan Zacher.

Mrs. J. Myer Schine and Mrs. J. Stuart Robertson are co-chairmen of the Boca Raton area. Mrs. Leonard Bernard is Chairman of the Ft. Lauderdale area. Her members include Mrs. Donald Bathrick, Mrs. Harlow P. Davock, Mrs. Burns A. Dobbins and Mrs. Henry Wenger.

Mrs. Arthur J. Rohde is Chairman of the Hillsboro Committee, and assisting her are Mrs. Clinton King and Mrs. Lynn Timmerman.

The Opening Grand March will commence at 10 p.m., followed by an elaborate dinner, at 10:30 p.m., with the party lasting until 3 a.m. when a breakfast will be served. Highlight of the evening will be at midnight, when the Polo Queen,

Miss Cary Latimer, daughter of Mrs. Horatio Luro of Miami Beach, will lead a famous polo pony onto the ballroom floor. This will be the signal for the start of the Chinese Auction of an Alpine Eldorado Cadillac, upholstered with red leather, which will be given to the lucky winner at that hour. The bidding will be tense that evening for the Cadillac that was so generously donated by Mr. Don B. Ehrins of Detroit, Mich.

Before and after midnight, stars of stage, screen, radio, and TV will entertain the many prominent persons present. There will be continuous dancing by Tony Cabot and his society orchestra, who is well known to members of the Winter Colony set, from Palm Beach to Miami Beach, as well as summer socialites at Newport, Rhode Island. The music will be augmented with strolling troubadours, Hawaiian and Gypsy trios. The decor will be a la Polo, even to the entrance to the beautiful Patio Royale, which will be converted into a Tack room with box stalls and polo ponies.

The color theme for the Polo Ball is red and white, and all ladies attending that evening are requested to wear gowns of those colors. Black tie, with white or dark dinner jackets, will be worn by the gentlemen attending that evening.

Tickets to the Polo Ball will be $25.00 per person, with all proceeds going to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. They can be secured by telephoning the Boca Raton Club, asking for the Polo Ball Department. They will also be sold at the Gulfstream Polo Club polo games, and by members on the Committees.

Mr. J. Stuart Robertson, originator of the Polo Ball, is executive Vice President of the Boca Raton Club. It will be the first Polo Ball ever held in Florida.

Another highlight for the month of February at the Boca Raton Club will be the Annual Art Show and Exhibit, sponsored by the Boca Raton Art Guild, which will be held in the Art Gallery at the club on February 19th through February 28th. Proceeds from the show will go toward the building fund of the Boca Raton Art Museum and Library. Many leading artists from this area will exhibit their works of art that week at the club. Mrs. J. Myer Schine is Honorary President, and Mrs. Roy S. Patten, acting President. All works submitted including all forms of paintings, drawings, sculpture and craft, must be original and not have been hung in previous Art Guild exhibits. Each artist is limited to three works. The exhibition and sale will be opened daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Tuesday, the Delray Beach Playhouse presented "Blithe Spirit," by Noel Coward, directed by J. Stuart Warrington, in the Boca Raton Club's own theatre. Many guests and visitors made reservations for the popular show, and many entertained at dinner preceding the play. This is another innovation at the club this season, and due to the plays being so well received, others will be shown on March 23 and April 22.

The Gala Shows presented on Wednesday and Saturday evenings in the beautiful Patio Royale room, feature some of the best names in show business, and are attracting not only all the guests, but many members of the winter colony set, who are seen entertaining there frequently. Music is provided by Tony Cabot, his magic violin and 12 piece society orchestra.

Guests have had a treat in store for them all season at the Boca Raton Club, with many innovations being featured for their pleasure and enjoyment. Every weekday, excluding Sundays, a private Greyhound air conditioned bus, transports guests, their friends, and outside visitors, to and from the Hialeah Race Course. The bus leaves at noon and during the trip complimentary cocktails are served the guests.

TV Adds to Yachting Pleasure

CELEVISION MAY BE POINTED to with pride in one home, viewed with alarm in another; but undaunted, television even follows its fans to sea. To the delight of the children who spend their vacations cruising with parents, Hopalong and Space Man need not be left behind when familiar shores fade from sight. The captain misses not a punch in his favorite fights, and the first mate enjoys drama, fashion shows and Bing Crosby just as though she were ensconced in her frilly boudoir, instead of rocking gently in the Gulf Stream.

A television signal carries better over water than land. Splendid reception may be expected from the cabin-set miles from the sending point. On UHF bands, channels fourteen through eighty-three, there is no man-made interference such as ignition. An ordinary yacht power-plant, producing the regulation one hundred and ten volts is all the electricity needed to run a set.

Due to the weight factor, always present in considering what to take aboard, present installations of sets and antenna are being kept as simple and light as possible. Very few yachts are carrying console sets; more often the cabin television set is a table model, either anchored onto a small cabinet, or built in. Firms installing sets, regardless of kind or screen size, uniformly warn the yachting public that a built-in set must be adequately ventilated, because the considerable heat generated behind the instrument can be dangerous.

Antenna are usually fixed to the mainmast, as high as possible. For a UHF band, the usual yacht antenna installation is about eighteen by five inches, with ten to twelve arms. A UHF Yagi is in most frequent use in Florida waters. It is a conical-type, all-directional antenna, and a favorite with yachtsmen who have acquired their sets in the north before cruising to southern waters.

For use while running, the UHF Yagi is cut specifically for a particular band, and kept simple so it can be modified as the yacht travels. In houseboat, catamaran, sloop and yawl, as long as it has a power plant, TV goes to sea.

In the salon of the yacht "Capricorn" a television set occupies place where it can be seen from any position, yet is adequately ventilated. Television reception at sea is excellent.

Television viewing at sea, with good reception and no distracting influences, needs no embellishment as a nice way to spend vacation time. For the yachtsmen who want to round out the occasion with refreshments, however, there is the Carleton Mitchell suggestion carried in a recent national magazine—Rum Lime Cocktail. Mr. Mitchell, of Annapolis, Maryland and "Casa del Lago", Palm Beach, owner of the yawl "Caribbee", gave the following recipe for a cooling West Indies drink:

One part dark honey, one part freshly squeezed lime juice (small Cay limes), three parts light-bodied Puerto Rican rum, one part heavy rum. Shake long and lovingly with plenty of ice. For a tall drink, easier to serve aboard, he uses the same recipe but increases rum to six parts (four parts light-bodied Puerto Rican, two parts heavy rum) and adds soda and ice.

Mr. Mitchell, whose newest book, "Passage East" was published by W. W. Norton & Company last fall, is a yacht racing enthusiast. With a crew of nine on board the "Caribbee", he won the Southern Ocean Racing conference in 1952 and 1953. He has just added further luster to his yacht racing crown with the sought-after "first" in the Great Isaac Race, starting from Fort Lauderdale, touching near Great Isaac Light and return to Miami. Later in the year he will enter the "Caribbee" in the Miami to Nassau race and the St. Petersburg to Havana.

Among other honors garnered by the "Caribbee", fifty-eight feet of racing lines, was winning the 1952 trans-Atlantic race to Plymouth, England. While enjoying speed exploits and just loafing along, Mr. Mitchell has gathered information for his books, "Islands to Windward", "Yachtsman's Camera" and "Beyond Horizons".

The huge yacht "Galaxy", with Mr. and Mrs. James H. Rand on board, has returned from a visit in Fort Lauderdale. The "Galaxy", one hundred and thirty feet of comfortable living, is registered from New York as home port.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis V. Keeler have temporarily deserted their shining "Karina" for a trip home to New York; but they are expected back before the season is over.

The sleek seventy-foot yacht "Capricorn," designed by Chris. B. Nelson and built by Annapolis Yacht Yard, belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Gulbenkian, Larchmont and Palm Beach.

The "Tonda", Mr. and Mrs. David H. Knott's yacht, registered from Glen Cove, New York, has been cruising in West Indies waters. Mr. and Mrs. Orland S. Greene have also been cruising aboard the "Bink II"; but the "Binky" stayed in the Palm Beaches for the fishing tournament.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen A. Johnson's "Car-Al II", out of Mobile, Alabama, is cruising in the Keys with owners aboard. Missed from the Australian Dock is the "Full Moon", Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bates' yacht, which may be in the Keys vicinity also.

Dr. Armand Hammer brought his seventy-five foot "Lansdowne" back to Palm Beach recently from Miami, and has been using the boat for pleasure cruises.

Mrs. Harold C. Heermann has returned to vacation aboard the "Clare H. IV" at Brazilian Dock, from a trip to Philadelphia, and a stop in Vero Beach, Florida, with her son and family.

Mr. D. C. Ellwood and guests left the Australian Avenue dock for a cruise to Fort Lauderdale and nearby waters on board the "Curlew II". Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O. Wellman, Jr., of Boston, whose "Topsal" berths near the "Curlew II", returned to their northern home for a brief stay, but are expected back soon.

"Tamarac", Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wheeler's yacht, has been chartered by Mr. and Mrs. Elton Hoyt, who are cruising in West Indies waters. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Farwell of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, are also cruising. They have taken their "Arara" to the Keys.

Mrs. C. H. Bliss has arrived from Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan, to vacation aboard the "Maid Marion". Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Lontz are cruising to Daytona Beach, the islands and Keys aboard their sixty-two foot "Atta III".

The "Osceola", out of Toronto, Canada, has been spending many pleasant days in waters around Nassau with Mrs. Norris aboard. Using their "Aryne N" for short cruises has been a pleasant pastime for newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Aris Z. Nyad of Palm Beach.

Missed from Palm Beach social life this season is the sturdy "Sea Horse" where Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hughes of Richmond, Virginia, gave such enjoyable parties. The boat, purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Seth Pollard, is berthed in Delray, this year.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Porter are living aboard their sixty-one foot "Sea Dream", and taking leisurely cruises from time to time. Mr. Joseph Regenstein of Chicago, uses his trim "Box Office" for frequent fishing trips. Other fishing enthusiasts from Brazilian Avenue dock anchorage are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chilton, who take the "Sylvia H." out weekends to pursue their favorite sport.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Richards continue their pleasant custom of Sunday afternoon cruises, with friends along, aboard the "Huns Buddy III". Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beymer, Palm Beach, are week-end cruising enthusiasts aboard the "Penelope", and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Campbell of Larchmont, New York can be seen leaving the Brazilian Avenue dock aboard the "Rowdy" nearly every week-end.

The "Chickybill", with Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ritter aboard, has been cruising around Fort Lauderdale and Miami; and Mr. and Mrs. Porter B. Chase have taken their yacht "Electra" to the Keys.

A message from Mr. and Mrs. George Frank to Mr. Walter Goebel, dockmaster, gives the bad news that the "Sea Chest", sixty-seven foot, steel-hulled yacht will be unavoidably detained. The "Sea Chest" always attracts a lot of attention at Brazilian dock.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Rosenteil have put the "Holiday" in drydock in Daytona Beach long enough to get a new engine.

Lined up along the Brazilian Avenue dock are some of America's finest yachts, as well as many of Canadian and even farther distant registry. During the season they are the floating homes of colonists, and the focus of pleasant entertaining.

Worth Avenue Gallery

ARRAYED IN OPULENCE, explicit with meanings and overtones, deliciously rich or exquisitely simple as would be pearls strewn upon hand-woven linen, the French paintings, from the collection of M. Knoedler & Co., now showing at the Worth Avenue Gallery, shine forth from the walls they adorn and call one back again and again.

Each canvas, selected for its special merit, its unique excellence, its individual festivity or lasting flavor makes this showing an intimate exhibit of important art.

The theme is a self-contained one, an implicit one: the art of the French, contemporary or nearly so. However, no "difficult" painters are displayed in this selection. The artists chosen are moderns, none of them, in the works shown, is a modern-ist. A drawing of a harlequin by Pablo Picasso—the possible exception to this unity—dates from his almost classic period and therefore fits in perfectly with the rest.

The showing is almost equally divided between oils and drawings. Because of the stature of the artists there is no question, however, of that artificial distinction of values that often arises when opposing arbitrarily the two art forms.

The names: Renoir, Bonnard, Degas, Pissarro, Toulouse-Lautrec, Brianchon, Morisot, Cezanne, Derain, Vlaminck, Utrillo, Picasso and so on. Such an array suggests the wealth unfolded here and reminds one, because of the number of drawings shown, of Fragonard's belief that the drawings of a great painter can be even more fascinating as revelation of the processes of talent than are his more finished works in oil.

It is unfair in the presence of so many of the great talents to attempt to select an order of preference. Personal predilection must be as free in enjoying art as in enjoying food. The Knoedler showing is a varied array to tempt any number of tastes and sensibilities among which each spectator will select a personal scale of enjoyment.

If chronology were to serve as guide one might start by speaking of Toulouse-Lautrec, whose "Head of a Woman", drawn at the turn of the century has the enigmatic and at the same time revealing expression that is the specific gift of his genius.

One dares not speak of method before this little piece, rather is this head portrayed because of a personal way of seeing and feeling, so personal, in fact, that a signature would be superfluous. Every line reveals Lautrec.

The "Head of a Child" by Renoir, originally owned by

"STILL LIFE," BY ANDRE DERAIN.

"LA GRENOUILLERE." BY MAURICE VLAMINCK.

"DEFENSE D'AFFICHER," BY MAURICE UTRILLO.

Ambroise Vollard, Renoir's biographer and the friend of Cezanne, unlike the Lautrec head, was presumably made as a sketch for a painting. It is a tender work, very alive, very sensitive and very spontaneous. Auguste Renoir is further represented by four studies "Etude de Femme", also coming originally from the Vollard collection. Renoir's plastic sense is revealed here as the stages of revelation are shown in every process of development from pencil to pen. These are the drawings of a painter and a colorist who sees with a sculptor's eye.

Another drawing, this one by Degas of the artist's little niece, is an affectionate portrait of smiling eyes, naive and sensitive.

The "Tete d'Homme" by Paul Cezanne probably should be included in this group of drawings. First owned by Adrien Chappuis, the discerning author of a book on Cezanne as a draughtsman of genius, this piece reveals clearly the preoccupation of the Master of Aix with the geometry of space, the relation of planes and the magic of light.

A pastel on canvas, the "Portrait de Mlle. Blanche Pontillon" by Berthe Morisot represents the artist's niece as a little girl. The quietly dramatic composition, the beautiful handling of values make this deceptively calm work into something akin to a candid shot of the inner eye.

Landscape brings its own opulence of evocation to this showing—contrapunctal contrast in a piece of chamber music—diversity creating harmony.

Renoir's "Paysage" is a hymn to the sun in a voluptuous passion of foliage and growth.

"LA FORET DE RAMBOUILLET," by Maurice Brianchon.

"PAYSAGE," BY PIERRE AUGUSTE RENOIR.

The "fougue" of Bonnard's passion is on another plane. His "Landscape in Southern France" is an ecstatic poem of drenching light, prismatic, explosive, abundant, objects seen as means of revealing the cosmic wealth of light rather than as subjects in their own right.

Maurice Brianchon who, thirty years ago, won the Blumenthal prize, is getting constantly greater attention both in this country and overseas. In the Worth Avenue Gallery showing his "La Foret de Rambouillet", under a pale sky, shows him an important member of the French school that evolved from Manet and Bonnard, whose stature he shares.

Two drawings by Camille Pissarro, made at La Roche Guyon in 1859, show this sensitive painter as a remarkably able and deft draughtsman. One of them, devoted to a cluster of trees, reminds one of certain of Poussin's studies of the same subject and even of some of the sketches by the great "painter of the sun", Claude Lorrain.

Maurice Vlaminck's street scene, "La Grenouillere", is one of those brilliant exercises in sensuous painting that have given this master his eminence. Vlaminck is also represented here by a very handsome and vigorous still life, "Flowers", rich with all of the resources of the Vlaminck palette, the "brio" of his brush stroke.

In a comparable mood, Derain's small "Still Life" shows the difference in vision, if not in artistry and sheer delight in painting, of the two contemporaries. Derain, typically, has worked here in a medium much less dense than Vlaminck's, more evanescent. The voluptuousness of paint is of similar quality, nevertheless.

"PORTRAIT DE Mlle. BLANCHE PONTILLON," by Berthe Morisot.

New York Letter ~

Greetings: With the mid-season in full swing in Palm Beach, you must be head-over-heels in exciting social activities. From reports via letters, the grapevine and columnists, it sounds as though it is a very gay and interesting winter, with lots of celebrities and socialites from all over the world on hand, to lend atmosphere to the merry whirl.

We are sort of snitching some of your thunder here in Manhattan, by having a benefit tea for the Robert E. Lee Foundation: held at the home of Mrs. Thomas J. Watson, who incidentally is well-known in Palm Beach, as she and her famous husband have spent a number of winter vacations at The Breakers.

A feature of the "southern tea", was the showing of motion pictures of the famous and historic Georgian house and plantation of Stratford, which the foundation is interested in preserving and maintaining as a national shrine. As you undoubtedly know, but anyway since I have the time, will refresh your memory. Stratford Hall, the birthplace of Gen. Robert E. Lee and two signers of the Declaration of Independence, Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee, is located in Westmoreland County, Va., and was built in 1725-'30. It is owned by the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation Inc. which was organized in 1929 and is open all year for the benefit and enjoyment of the public. It is a fascinating place and do hope you'll visit it on your next trip North.

A unique school here, "The Viewpoint" for which there will be a benefit performance of "Ondine", starring Audrey Hepburn and Mel Ferrer, is causing a lot of interest among Manhattanites. Gene Tunney, who I understand has a winter home in Hobe Sound, is on the committee. The school which was incorporated in 1940 as an elementary and preparatory school for boys and girls, puts emphasis on discovering individual talents and interests of each student and developing them for future careers. The school scholarship benefit is not until April 8, so perhaps you'll be able to take part in the festivities.

It seems that virtually all of our social affairs are hinged on benefits of various kinds. Of course, it is a painless way of dispensing "sweet charity" and the smart affairs are always well-attended and interesting. For instance, the other night we went to the fourth in the series of "Enchanted Musical Evenings" at the Pierre, to aid the Hospitalized Veterans Service of the Musicians Emergency Fund. The soiree was titled, "A Night in Vienna" and actors and ballerinas included top names in the classical entertainment world. The list of table holders was equally impressive from a standpoint of society.

Another exciting affair of this kind, was the benefit performance of "Aida" at the Metropolitan Opera House, arranged by the Manhattanville College Alumnae Association with Francis Cardinal Spellman as honorary chairman. It was a gala occasion and I wish that you could have seen the gorgeous evening gowns . . . better than any fashion show I have viewed in a long time.

I was very much amused when I heard the story of how former U.S. President Herbert Hoover received the news that he had been named to receive one of the two 1954 awards of the American Good Government Society. According to reports around here, he was fishing down in the Florida Keys and heard the good news on a portable radio. Did he get to Palm Beach during this trip?

Noticed in the passenger list for the maiden cruise of the new motorliner Kungsholm to the West Indies, a number of your Palm Beach winter residents and visitors . . . Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, Mrs. Mable M. Sibley, the G. Hilmer Lundbeck's, who usually "drop in" at The Breakers for several week's holiday, the Reginald A. Batten's of Ontario, Canada. No doubt you'll be anxious to have a look at this gorgeous new ship, since you took a North Cape Cruise on the lovely old Kungsholm. This newest edition is really "out of this world" and all of the "rave notices" you must have read about it in the newspapers, are absolutely true; its a dilly.

A large subscription was reported for the cocktail-dance held aboard the new Kungsholm at Pier 97, North River and 57th street, for the benefit of the Travelers Aid Society . . . through the courtesy of the Swedish American Line. This took place the day after the ship returned from her maiden West Indies Cruise and a tremendous crowd dined and danced aboard the new luxury liner. It sure was fun and almost like taking a trip to foreign ports.

Suppose you have read "Orchids and Salami" by the unpredictable Eva Gabor, "who has been photographed, profiled, biographed, columned, analyzed and picture-storyed" everywhere from Life to the World Almanac. She now speaks for herself on "men, cooking, women, glamour" and according to critics, it turns out to be more salami than orchids. If memory serves, the fabulous Eva was starred in "Blithe Spirit", one of the productions at your Palm Beach Playhouse two seasons ago . . . and no doubt you had a chance to chat with her and find out what an utterly charming "screwball" she can be.

Understand National Yeast President Frank J. Hale, his good looking son-in-law Richard Walsh and George Englund, formerly actor-director of the Palm Beach Playhouse, created quite a sensation, when they arrived at the opening of the Playhouse in an exciting aqua and white car. Talked with George in New York before he headed South and he told me he had just returned from a trip to England, Spain and Morocco.

A rare treat the other night was the all-Chopin concert by Alexander Brailowsky at Carnegie Hall. An outstanding individuality among the leading pianists of our times and an artist who plays differently every time that we hear him. The program was rather of the smaller than the greater Chopin, although as we all know, the mere size of the composition, with Chopin, is no measure of inherent greatness. I won't go into the program "play by play", but suffice it to say, it was a musical evening well-worth while.

Going from the "sublime" to the more commonplace as it were, dashed over to the New York Historical Society to see their exhibition of "Early Americana", which incidentally will be a permanent show here. The exhibit proves that the early settlers were loaded with ideas for gadgets and gimmicks.

Went to the Barnard College luncheon at the Waldorf the other day and it was fun seeing all of the old crowd again. The occasion marked the 200th anniversary of Columbia's founding (your alma mater, right?) and was followed by Barnard's sixth annual forum. I felt in a serious mood that day so rather enjoyed the talks given by Agnes Meyer, Emily Mudd, Emily Kimbrough and George N. Shuster, president of Hunter College. All thought-provoking topics too.

I think this is a good place to call a halt to my "intellectual review of a New York winter" and hope to get in reply soon, an account of the "lighter side of life", as I know you must be experiencing down there in the sunshine.

Cordially,

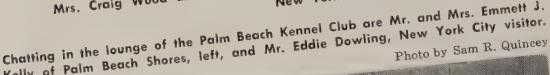

Katherine.

Havana

HAVANA SOCIETY IS JUST beginning to start that gay round of social affairs which forms such a glittering part of the life of the Cuban capital. Many prominent figures are now planning for the coming season, and a remarkable list of entertainments is slowly taking form.

Week-ending at the luxurious Hotel Nacional recently were Broadway showman Mike Todd and lovely film star Evelyn Keyes. Sports editor Marshall Smith and photographer Mark Kaufmann, who recently completed a color series for "Time" on President Eisenhower stopped off in Havana en route to Puerto Rico. They are doing a spread on baseball in the Caribbean. Other Nacional guests were sportscaster Jim Britt of NBC and former model and cafe society habituee Babs Beckwith, who spent a few days sunning in Cuba.

Mr. Edward McIlvain of New York and Palm Beach was the guest of American Ambassador to Cuba and Mrs. Arthur Gardner at the Embassy Residence. Secretary for Air and Mrs. Harold Talbott, as well as Deputy Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Roger Kyes plan to spend several days at the Embassy residence in late January.

Mrs. Joseph Davies, Mrs. Robert Taft and Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Marston were guests of Ambassador Gardner on January 30. They are making a Caribbean cruise and were dinner guests during their sojourn in Cuba.

Cuban President Major General Fulgencio Batista y Zaldivar celebrated his birthday at his country estate "Kuquine". Accompanied by his wife, First Lady Martha Fernandez Miranda de Batista and his children, the President received many friends and high government officials in celebration of the occasion.

Miss Joan Neilsen y Schueg, daughter of Mrs. Lucia Schueg Bacardi and Dr. Edwin B. Neilsen, will marry Mr. Luis de Hechavarria y Ferrer, son of Mr. Luis de Hechavarria and Emma Ferrer, of Oriente, in Corpus Christi Church in Havana.

The engagement of Miss Gracy Armstrong y Simpson, daughter of Dr. Tomas R. Armstrong and Graciella Simpson, to Mr. Enrique Camacho y Busto, son of Mr. Enrique Camacho and Georgina Busto, was announced at the home of Miss Armstrong's parents in Reparto Biltmore.

The debut of the Spanish company "Coros y Danzas de Espana" was attended by all Cuban society and was one of the most talked about events of the year. The proceeds of the opening night were contributed to a worthy cause, and tickets were sold under the direction of prominent Cuban society ladies. Among many prominent first nighters were Lily Hidalgo de Conill, Adelaida Falla de Gutierrez, Maria Teresa Falla de Batista, Condesa de Revilla de Camargo, Marquesa de Pinar del Rio, Josefina de Vega viuda de Posada, Nena Velasco de Gonzalez Gordon, Sylvia Hernandez viuda de Rivero, Elizarda Sampedro de Gomez Mena, Alicia Nadel de Menocal, Dulce Maria Loynaz de Alvarez de Canas, Hilda Oliva de Cuervo, Lolo Larrea de Sarra, Lola Colmenares de Casteleiro, and Maria Antonia Alonso de Aspuru.

Miss Blanche Piedra Acosta, daughter of Mr. Gabriel Piedra and Mrs. Guillermina Acosta, celebrated her birthday at her home.

Mr. Ben F. Meyer, Chief Correspondent of the Associated Press, and Mrs. Meyer are to leave Havana early next month for Washington where Mr. Meyer takes up a post there with AP. The Meyers have been in Havana for six years on the current tour of duty for AP, and once before were here for two years. During their stay in Havana Mr. Meyer has covered a wide variety of assignments throughout Latin America. Recently he was in Jamaica for the visit there of Queen Elizabeth, and later on spent some time in Haiti doing a story on that little republic which has just celebrated its 150th anniversary of independence.

Works of Art at NORTON COLLECTION

RETURNING TO THE DIRECTORSHIP of the Norton Gallery of Art, Willis F. Woods has completed the very delicate task of rehanging the Norton collection. Mr. Woods has accomplished the feat of showing all of the eclectic resources of the collection, retiring many works that had become familiar to Gallery visitors, selecting others from the rich reserves at his disposal and presenting the new ensemble with both distinction and harmonious discrimination.

Gallery No. 1, devoted to the old masters, has not been changed. In Gallery No. 2, ten new American oils are now on display, including two recent acquisitions.

The watercolors in Gallery No. 3 are, except for nine excellent papers, different from the previous showing although in certain cases, belonging to an artist previously represented on these same walls by another work.

The European oils in Gallery No. 4 have also been enlivened by new selections, while the American oils in the next Gallery have a renewed and unexpected diversity.

The rehanging of Gallery No. 6, with its 19th and 20th century European paintings, was, obviously, the most arduous task confronting Mr. Woods. Taking into account lighting, size, color harmonies and relative importance, one has to bow to the tact and discernment displayed.

The sculpture exhibited in Gallery No. 7 has not been changed, except for the addition of the Gaston Lachaise head of John Marin.

"The Sailors' Barracks," by Giorgio de Chirico, belonging to the experimental period of the painter before acquiring his later poetic freedoms.

"Draped Figure," a rhythmic marble by Ann Norton, resolving with originality many age-old problems of the sculptor's art.

"The Rose," painted by Henri Matisse in 1907, forecasting the artist's predilection for strong color vigorously composed almost independently of the subject.

"MEN FIGHTING IN A LANDSCAPE" BY MITCHELL JAMIESON, AN INK AND WASH DRAWING OF GREAT GRAPHIC POWER AND MYSTICAL INTENT.

"The Tower," by Carl Knaths, American contemporary, a very dynamic set of color harmonies, actively patterned, among the new acquisitions of the Gallery.

"Ranshos Church No. 1," by Georgia O'Keeffe, typical of the artist's sense of patterned texture and sensuous use of light.

The New Look at the Norton Gallery

PROMINENT IN THE "NEW LOOK" of the Norton Gallery of Art are the recent acquisitions to the permanent collection, adding their luster, interest and diversity to the riches already accumulated in these walls.

With the exception of the deeply sensitive bronze head of John Marin by the sculptor Gaston Lachaise, these new works are all reproduced herewith. As can be seen, much of lasting importance and beauty has been acquired with careful attention to maintaining the balance of the collection as a whole. An early Matisse is representative of the decorative trend in contemporary painting stressing color and color pattern as a main source of delight.

An early de Chirico explains the roots of much symbolic realism—realism transfigured, on the one hand, and organized, on the other, into patterns of dynamic balance.

Georgia O'Keefe's "Ranchos Church No. 1" is important, both as an example of a great American's art and as part of a trend towards the simplification of statements derived from external reality into terms of permanence.

"The Tower", by Karl Knaths, besides being a very stimulating piece by the artist, is also representative of a trend and a manner of seeing. The organization of rhythms, both linear and chromatic, in this canvas belong to that field of expression which springs from the chaotic of the casual to emerge with the order of the organic.

Mitchell Jamieson's "Men Fighting in a Landscape" is a tantalizing piece of what may, eventually, be called the new humanism. In this piece certainly man, oblivious of the Cross that dominates humanity, is sensed in his strivings. The meaning implicit in such works can only merge as the artist develops. In this as in many works of contemporaries one can not forecast to what we are being led: will a philosophical art be born of these visions or, and more simply, an art seeing man as the expression of all the plastic problems of beauty or communication?

Ann Norton's "Draped Figure", a bold and monumental piece of direct carving, offers many rhythmic solutions to age old problems of providing, from the transitory, statements of the ageless.

The renewed richness of the Norton Collection is thus enhanced by many works that add to the historical, the esthetic and the human value of this living institution.

The art of displaying works of art is the least recognized by those who derive the most from it: the viewing public. Short of a brutal lack of taste, the visitor to a museum such as the Norton Gallery of Art will never question consciously the manner and the order in which a sequence of paintings is displayed.

However the sum of enjoyment and enlightenment arising from a casual or a studious tour of such a gallery is, actually, dependent upon the taste of the director and, more importantly, upon his subtle use of the psychology of seeing of which the viewer is never aware.

In the rehanging of the Norton Gallery Mr. Woods has exercised rare talents in this direction. The fact that this is not strikingly apparent is the proof of his ability. The visitor is carried from one painting to another by what seems a natural and effortless logic of appeal, diversity and harmonious progression. One has but to think of the empty walls, a stack of two dozen or more rich works of art, piled, without order, in some corner, to realize the extent of the director's qualities in meeting his challenge as a revealer of the messages entrusted to his care.

Miami — The Magic City

HIALEAH'S TOP RACING ATTRACTION, the $100,000 added Widener, for three-year-olds and up, is Saturday's (Feb. 20) feature in bustling Miami.

The Widener will be followed Feb. 27 by the $100,000 added Flamingo for three-year olds. These two races plus the Black Helen, March 1 for $25,000 and the $50,000 added Hialeah Turf Handicap March 3 climax an outstanding season for the track.

Music will occupy the spotlight between Hialeah's two main races.

Liberace, one of America's leading pianists, will appear here Monday through Wednesday (Feb. 21-23). This will be the TV star's first appearance in Miami.

Orchid growers and hobbyists will display more than $1,000,000 in blooms at the International Orchid Show, Feb. 26 through March 1, at Municipal Auditorium in Miami's Bayfront Park.

The Opera Guild of Miami will present Verdi's "Il Trovatore" Feb. 27 at Dade county auditorium. Four Metropolitan Opera stars are cast in the leading roles. They include Jussi Bjoerling, tenor; Astrid Vernay, soprano; Robert Weede, baritone, and Clairamae Turner, mezzo soprano.

The "Holiday on Ice" review of 1954 opens tonight (Feb. 19) through Feb. 26 at the Coliseum. The review features a cast of 125 and will present 28 acts, including an interpretation of George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Two top boating events are slated during this period. They include the Comet National Midwinter Championship today (Feb. 20) and tomorrow and the Biscayne Bay Yacht Club Sunburn Regatta.

Many of the nation's top amateur tennis stars are scheduled to participate in the third annual City of Miami Invitational Tennis Championships, beginning Monday (Feb. 22) and running through Sunday at the new Henderson Park Tennis courts here. The group will be led by defending champion Gardner Mulloy and Wimbledon champion Vic Seixas.

The Dublin Players will present "Pygmalion" in Dade county auditorium March 4. This day will also mark the opening of modern Gulfstream Park Race course.

The Breakers' Cabana Club

FRONTING THE ATLANTIC, the huge circular array of cabanas at The Breakers is one of the most picturesque spots in Palm Beach. Each cabana has its own private beach, plus a wide expanse of beach with colorful chairs and umbrellas, right on the ocean. For those who do not care for this type of sunbathing and swimming, there is a beautiful Roman pool, with a special miniature pool for the children.

Gabrielle's seaside restaurant is a popular rendezvous for cabana club members, for luncheon and snacks. Flanked by the ocean on one side and the Roman pool on the other, it is ideally located. Famous for food and beverages, it is also delightfully informal. . . . one may drop in here in bathing and sun clothes. Like the cabana club, this al fresco restaurant is also a tradition in the resort.

Members of The Breakers Cabana Club for the 1954 season, of which Mr. E. Thompson Starr is secretary include: Mr. J. Rhoades Berdan, Phila.; Comd. and Mrs. Webb Hayes, Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Kimmel, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. McKenna, Phila.; Mr. and Mrs. Eben H. Ellison, Miss M. G. Haines, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Heingartner, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Parade of Sports

BOLLOWING WHITE CLOUDS and azure skies provided a perfect backdrop for the star-studded events that headlined the Palm Beaches' accelerated sports program. Topping the list was the 36th annual Palm Beach Women's Amateur Golf tournament played over the sun-drenched Palm Beach Golf course and the Everglades Club's 19th Annual Invitation Mixed Foursomes tourney.

The Palm Beach event, which is the oldest women's tournament in the state, opened its qualifying rounds on February 9 and continued with match play through February 13. The glamorous field included such ranking amateurs as Mary Ann Downey, Mrs. Murice Glick, Carol Diringer, Mary Agnes Wall, Barbara Dawson, Eden Anderson, Barbara McIntire, and Barbara Romack.

Equally star-studded was the Everglades Club's Mixed Foursomes, which opened right on the heels of the PBGC's featured event. Many of the lady golfers who played in the Palm Beach tourney switched courses and joined their male counterparts in the annual competition for the Alan Howard trophies.

The Everglades stellar event was under the direction of Messrs. P. P. Prudden, Jr., J. E. McAuliffe, Dr. H. W. Corya, E. B. McLean, Hamilton Pell and John Dimick. A gala annual dinner kicked off the event on February 15 at Colony Hotel. In charge of arrangements for the dinner were: Messrs. J. E. McAuliffe, chairman, Paul Cushman, Shelby Greer, P. P. Prudden, E. B. McLean, Hamilton Pell, O. F. Woodward, Jr.

The Old Guard Society of Palm Beach Golfers' annual Member-Guest tournament on February 4 was won by the duo of Earl A. Ross and Tony Masten. They posted a neat 64, barely edging a pair of twosomes who tied for second with 65. The second place honors were bestowed on Norman C. Schmid and James Sturrock, Jr., on the strength of a better card over the team of Albert Boettcher and L. J. Gavin.

Part of the fun of following the players is observing the smart spectator clothes of fellow-gallerites. Mrs. Kathy Henderson MacLean and Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas exhibit chic tag-a-long styles as they follow Everglades members and guests in the third annual tourney.

In the Old Guarders' Senior Tournament played over a three day period on the Palm Beach Golf Club course, J. F. Ferguson's 76 was the winning score.

Play at the plush Seminole Golf Club started with weekly Sunday tombstone tournament heading the list. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Guest won the final two tourneys in January. On January 31, they combined their 52 strokes to reach a point 25 feet short of the 11th green, edging Mr. and Mrs. Abram Nesbitt, who were 175 yards from the 11th with 48 strokes.

Other results in the tourney were: Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, with 49 strokes 25 feet from the 10th; Mr. and Mrs. William Klopman, 49 strokes 190 yards from the 10th; Mr. and Mrs. George Meehan, 50 strokes 200 yards from the 10th; Mrs. C. Markham Langham and Mr. S. van Swoll, 51 strokes, 10 feet from the 9th; Mrs. James W. Sibley and Mr. Hamilton Pell, 52 strokes 30 feet from 10th; Mrs. Hamilton Pell and Mr. James W. Sibley, 40 strokes in the 9th cup; Mrs. Michael Phipps and Duke of Roxburghe, 50 strokes two feet from 9th.

The Palm Beach Country Club held its formal opening, and as soon as the members' score cards are collected and tabulated so handicaps can be assigned, the club will start out on a light tournament schedule.

Pretty Carey Latimer, the 1954 Polo Queen, was featured in the "Le Grand Concours d'Elegance" at the opening of the polo season at the Gulfstream Polo Club on February 7. The 17-year-old queen also will rule over the annual Polo Ball, which will be held later in the season.

Morris Brown, president of the ultra-modern country club, which has just completed $750,000 worth of remodeling, reported the club would wait a year before staging any big tournaments.

The beautiful weather brought a flock of people to the tennis courts about the resort. At the Everglades Club, Herman Petersen started a doubles league to give the better men players in the area a chance to play against players of their own calibre. They play each Wednesday and Sunday.

The weekly round robin tournaments in both the senior and junior divisions have proved extremely popular at the Everglades Club. But the big event for the club is on the distant horizon, as the tennis committee composed of A. Parker Bryant, chairman, Mrs. A. Parker Bryant, Miss Gloria Butler, Mrs. Barron Collier, Jr., George W. Clark, Valentine Ely, and A. D. Wilkinson are completing arrangements for the Everglades Invitational Tournament in March. Big named stars in the tennis world that have already signed includes Vic Seixas, Art Larsen, Gardner Mulloy, Sven Davidson, Swedish champion; Kurt Neilson, Danish titleholder, who was a surprise finalist in the Wimbeldon.

Charlie Wood at the Coral Beach Club staged a round robin tennis tourney on January 31, with 13 teams entered. Here too, everyone is looking to the future, when Charlie plans to bring in Jack Kramer's touring group of professionals. No date has been set yet, but the veteran pro, who has twice before played host to the group is looking forward to a big turnout.

Mrs. James Howard will be the defending champion when the Everglades Club plays its annual Ladies' Championship tournament on March 1-4. Mrs. Howard captured the club title last year when she defeated Mrs. Valeair Smith, 3 and 2 in the final round. Eighteen holes of medal play for qualification will start the tourney off, and it will be followed by 72 holes of match play for the championship.

Long-driving Barbara McIntire, of Toledo, Ohio, one of the nation's ranking women amateurs, was among the star-studded field that participated in the 36th Annual Palm Beach Women's Golf tournament, over the Palm Beach Golf Club course.

Pert Mary Agnes Wall was among the bevy of women amateurs that participated in the Palm Beach Championships on February 9-13. Miss Wall, who hails from Menominee, Mich., qualified for the championship flight with a 77, but was dropped into the consolation flight.

Frank Voigt at the Bath and Tennis Club reports play at their courts has been very good.

Frank and his assistant, Mitch Gornto, played a special exhibition match before a large crowd at the B & T. They teamed together in doubles to whip Fred Perry of the Boca Raton Club and Bill Kenney of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, 9-7, 6-1, 6-3.

Polo took over the sportslight too, as the season opened February 7, with Gulfstream playing host to the San Antonio Polo Club in a three game series. Two seven-goalers, Harold Berry and Clarence Stark, starred for San Antonio.

The famous team from Oakbrook Polo Club of Hinsdale, Ill., invaded the Gulfstream Club next. Playing for the visitors were two polo greats, Cecil Smith and Paul Butler.

Gulfstream polo fans will see the well-known Meadowbrook team in the near future. Playing with the famous Long Island group will be Al Parsells, Charles Leonard, Henry Lewis and Phillip Inglehard.

The current season will wind up in March with an international tournament between the Ciudad Trujillo team of the Dominican Republic and the Gulfstream squad. The Dominicans will be led by young General Rafael Trujillo, who led his quartet to victory in the three games series with Gulfstream last year.

Delray Beach will also field a team against high ranking outside competition.

Curious Inventions of Creative America

POPULAR OPINION has it that inventors are queer disengaged little men who tinker in disorderly laboratories with all kinds of crazy gadgets. But actually most inventors work in the upstairs attic or in that narrow basement room next to the coal bin or in the rear of the garage.

Not all inventions were great. Some were very ordinary. Many that must have seemed odd in their day still seem queer today. These are the ideas that shall be added to the American folk lore. It is real Americana, the warp and woof of a great and growing nation. Dreams interwoven with pathos and with threads of humor that are still being dreamt over and over again.

Monsieur Edmond R. Mallet of Switzerland, who was residing in San Francisco, was concerned about all the energy one uses while in swimming. And he worried about the number of people who drowned while in the water. He had a great idea. If motors can be attached to row boats to save wear and tear on the oars, why not the same idea with humans.

He went to work and came up with a new "Swimming Apparatus". This gadget consisted of a mechanism fitted to the body of the swimmer and connected to the feet with cords. Also a pair of propellers were provided to round out the apparatus.

You moved your feet. The cords pulled on the propellers which started the motor and off you went. You steered with your feet in any direction you desired to go. The propellers gave you speed and movement similar to an outboard motor.

Nobody ever saw Monsieur Mallet putting around in the bay as he quietly disappeared after the patent office granted him Patent No. 468,989 on February 16, 1892. Neither do records show whether or not this gadget was ever used on Lake Geneva in Switzerland near Mallet's ancestral home.

It was a good thing that this invention was never mastered by any inmates at Alcatraz.

To provide some fun in between a hand of bridge why not try Danny Kaye's invention?

Instead of tickling the nose of one friend with a blow-out toy with a feather at the end, "tickle three of them at a time". Danny's design was patented on February 21, 1951.

Many are the inventions for the safeguarding of money at banks. Included among these is the "Man-Tank Trap" which opens under the feet of a bandit when the cashier presses the button. He can either be drowned or electrocuted in this trap. Or the mat on which the bandit stands is highly electrified to end his existence when he utters "Hands Up."

But Samuel M. Lonyd of Detroit merely takes away the temptation by not having displays of large sums of money. His invention under No. 1,575,776 takes the money out of the cashier's cage and puts it into an elevated armored chamber. This chamber is situated on the ceiling of the bank and is connected to the teller's cage by pneumatic tubes, pulleys and wire baskets.

When the depositor desires to cash a check he merely hands it to the teller who deposits it in a pneumatic tube and off it goes to the cashier in the armored cage. The desired money returns the same way or via a wire basket which is shielded from public view.

Deposits are made in a reverse manner. In this fashion there will never be an excess amount of money in any teller's cage.

Incidentally, the armored cage high above the bank's floor has slots through which the cashier can easily shoot down any robber who doesn't take the teller's word for the lack of cash on hand.

W. C. Fields was also a maker of gadgets. He invented an alarm device to get a wordy visitor out of his hair if he gabbed more than five minutes.

It consisted of a club over an arm chair. When the visitor was announced Fields would adjust the alarm. If he stayed over the five minutes the club would hit the visitor on the head.

True to form, Fields was his own first victim. He fixed the alarm and mistakenly sat in the wrong chair.

Later, with a knob on his head, the comedian characteristically laughed it off, "Well, I didn't listen to him for more than five minutes, anyway."

Ft. Lauderdale

BASKING IN SUN-DRENCHED ELEGANCE on an island of its own, the Lago Mar Hotel in Fort Lauderdale is aglow also with a galaxy of guests from Canada and all parts of this country.

Occupying one of the large oceanfront apartments as their winter home are the charming Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Harris of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

From Ontario are the W. L. Duffields and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Williams. A lively family group from Montreal are Mrs. Bilodeau, her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bilodeau with son Michel, and his aunt Miss Raymonde Rivard.

Dr. Lon Grove, a leading surgeon of Atlanta, Georgia, and Mrs. Grove, guests at the hotel, celebrated their thirty-second wedding anniversary there. Marking the occasion with them were the F. S. McGaugheys, Atlanta friends who are also at the Lago Mar. Appropriate setting was the Starlight Room with its oceanfront picture windows framing a moonlit sky. Mrs. Grove is nationally noted for her books and articles on art. Also from Atlanta is the attractive Joseph Meade family.

Sun seekers from Baltimore at the Lago Mar include Dr. and Mrs. James B. Helme and the Richard A. Snyders.

Among other guests adding southern chic to the hotel's social scene are Kentuckians Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Killian of Owensboro and the J. J. Bleakleys of Louisville.

From Charleston, W.Va., is the prominent L. G. Guter family, and from St. Joseph, Mo., the J. R. Taliaferros.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Biggers and their family, of Dallas, are at home until the end of March in a luxurious Lago Mar suite.

Escaping New England's winter are Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Spaulding, Paxton, Massachusetts, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross B. Warren of the young married set in Keene, New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Keating of Wynnewood, Pennsylvania, are at the hotel for a February summer. From Jenkintown in that state are Mr. and Mrs. William Steltz, and from Philadelphia the J. J. Monaghans.

Among the Lago Mar guests who are frequent dinner party hosts in the Starlight Room are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dockery of Upper Montclair, the Tom Abbotts Jr., Fort Worth, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. DeFord C. Mills of Park Avenue, New York.

Recently entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Mills were the Harold Hutchinson Everetts of Manhasset, Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Montgomery of Detroit number among the Midwesterners who have adopted the Lago Mar as their Gold Coast habitat for the entire season.

February fugitives from that region's frost include Mr. and Mrs. Paul Berry of Barrington, Illinois, and from Anderson, Indiana, the John R. Oughtons with their young daughter Nancy Beth.

The camera finds Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Eldridge and son Bud, of New Bedford, Massachusetts, gazing at Lago Mar's half-mile of private beach.

Strolling on the waterside palm terrace of Lago Mar are Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Atchison of Chicago.

Vacationing at Lago Mar are Mr. and Mrs. William K. of Cleveland, Ohio.

"The Moon Is Blue"

at the Palm Beach Playhouse

THE PALM BEACH PLAYHOUSE opened for the third year with a pretentious program for the 1954 season and a remodeled theatre. The Playhouse is more intimate and attractive, the acoustics are immeasurably improved and with the removal of the side section seats, virtually every chair is within range of sight and sound. The new revolving stage lends expediency and helps to step up the tempo of the plays. The addition of a curtain, formerly it was an arena-type stage, is another professional touch, appreciated by the spectators.

It will be a ten-week season, featuring Broadway successes, with topflight stars of the stage and screen in the leading roles. The formal opening February 1, was a gala occasion with numerous celebrities and socialites in the huge crowd . . . flashbulbs for the famous and interesting conversation during the intermissions.

"The Moon is Blue," the hilarious comedy by F. Hugh Herbert, was the opening play, starring two members of the New York cast, Donald Cook in his original role that booked laughter for Broadway for three years and who stole the show in the Palm Beach production; Janet Riley, re-playing her New York part; Jackie Cooper, handsome young star of stage, screen and television.

Arriving at the Palm Beach Playhouse, for the opening show of the season, "The Moon Is Blue," Mr. and Mrs. Thorne Donnelley.

It is a play for sophisticates and judging from the response of the first nighters (and throughout the week's run), the audiences were definitely in that class. The sparkling dialogue provided a laugh with almost every line and an evening of hilarious fun.

"I Remember Mama" by John Van Druten, starring Margaret O'Brien and Blanche Yurka, the second show on the Playhouse agenda, was in direct contrast to "The Moon Is Blue" . . . the sponsors of the theatre planning to present a diversified series of plays, in order to provide varied entertainment and reach all theatre preferences.

A "flash back" sort of melodrama, with San Francisco in 1910, as the background, a middle-class Norwegian family as the theme and "mama" as the focal point of interest, the story furnished situations, running the gamut from drama and pathos to mild comedy. A homey setting, with a family album type of characterizations, Katrin (Margaret O'Brien) the eldest daughter, acted as narrator, as the yarn unfolded.

"Mister Roberts" with Charlton Heston, popular star of stage and screen, who had the top role in John Patrick's "Hasty Heart" at the Playhouse last year, will be the third play. Making their Palm Beach debut in "Born Yesterday," Paul Douglas in his original Broadway role, his wife Jan Sterling, who played in a revival of the show in New York and Chicago and Charlton Heston, is fourth on the agenda. Next will be Robert Cummings, stage, film and television star, who comes direct from Hollywood to appear in Broadway's comedy success, "The Male Animal."

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lawrence Parish of Palm Beach and New York, among the first nighters, at the opening of the 1954 season at the Playhouse.

Five more weeks of great theatrical personages and great plays, yet to be announced, will complete the season's plans. And, according to Paul Crabtree director-producer of the Playhouse, the last half of the season's program, will be in keeping with the high standard set by the theatre.

The triumvirate of experienced showman-sponsors for the Playhouse, the guiding lights who have directed the forward strides of the theatre, include Miss Mary Howes, Mr. Messmore Kendall and Mr. Jeremiah Maguire. Mr. Kendall, a practicing attorney in New York, is keenly interested in the theatre and has produced numerous plays in both the U. S. and England. A former president of Goldwyn Pictures, he is a pioneer in motion pictures and was responsible for the merger of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Builder of the Capitol Theatre in New York and owner of the largest private theatrical collection in the world, his interest in the Palm Beach Playhouse stems from civic pride in the resort, where he has long been a winter resident.

In sponsoring the Playhouse, Jeremiah Maguire brings a wealth of business experience to its development. He is head of a bank in New York, a graduate engineer and has held many public offices of importance.

Mary Howes carried out a dream of her father, the late Ernest G. Howes, to bring professional plays to the resort and thus the Palm Beach Playhouse materialized. A former actress of stage and radio, she is now preparing to widen her production activities to include a New England Summer Playhouse and to establish an American version of the European Festival of Music and Drama.

Mrs. Herbert J. Adair and Mrs. Madelaine Gordon, appear for the Playhouse opening, in two of the most striking costumes noted at the smart social event.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Maguire of Greenwich, Conn., and Palm Beach, chat during an intermission of "The Moon Is Blue," the opener for the Playhouse this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Pierson Jr., whose summer home is "Kenellyn," Fort Hill, N. J., and Palm Beachers who are enthusiastic patrons of the Palm Beach Playhouse.

Ponte Vedra

PONTE VEDRA, a resort whose varied charms attracts people of all interests, has played host this season to many famous visitors.

The Inn served as sacred grove for a meeting of savants conferring on a program of "better minds for better politics." Sponsored by The University of Florida and The Citizenship Clearing House, a notable group of professors and politicians convened to discuss the problem of preparing college students to participate effectively in the political life of their communities after graduation. Ralph E. Page, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, University of Florida, served as Conference Chairman. Among the guest speakers were Mr. J. Thomas Gurney, past President of the Florida State Bar Association, Mr. Donald K. Carroll, former Commander of the American Legion, Mr. Nelson Poynter, Editor of The St. Petersburg Times, Millard F. Caldwell, former Governor of Florida, R. A. Gray, Secretary of State of the State of Florida, Mr. E. B. Donnell, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and Mr. C. Farris Bryant, of the Florida House of Representatives. Meetings and Conferences were followed by gatherings for cocktails and dinner parties. The program in Florida, which will lay the basis for a continuous exchange of information and materials among individuals and groups for university use, is made possible by a generous grant from the well-known Maurice and Laura Fall Foundation of Pittsburgh.

Also enjoying meeting at The Inn during this season were the leading industrialists of the nation, participating in the fourth Southern Conference. Meetings were relieved by rounds of golf, tennis games, and social gatherings. While their husbands were in conference, the ladies enjoyed "antique-ing" in nearby St. Augustine, bridge games, and shell-collecting on the beach. To list only a few of the seventy prominent men of business present: Mr. C. E. Woolman, President of Delta and C & S Airlines; Mr. K. Keith Funston, President of the New York Stock Exchange; Mr. J. L. Coker, President of Sunoco Products Company; Mr. S. Bayard Colgate, Chairman of the Colgate-Palmolive Company; Mr. Gaylord Davis, Vice-President of American Enka Corporation; Mr. Irene du Pont, Councillor of the National Industrial Conference and Director of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company; Mr. R. O. Huffman, President of the Drexel Furniture Company; Mr. Ellison McKissick, President of Alice Manufacturing Company; Mr. Bowman Gray, Vice-President of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company; Mr. A. D. Davis, President of Winn & Lovett Grocery Company, and Mr. John S. Coleman, President of the Birmingham Trust National Bank. Perfect Florida weather welcomed the gathering and those who had not been to Ponte Vedra before joined its cult of admirers.

There was also a Board of Directors Meeting of The Pullman Company during this month. Mr. Byron Harvey, President of Fred Harvey Dining Cars, Incorporated, and Mr. Carroll Harding, President of The Pullman Company, were present. A cocktail party for eighty guests was given at The Inn.

Bishop F. H. Hall, of New Hampshire, and his charming wife enjoyed a vacation at The Inn. They were entertained at a series of parties given by colonists, and Bishop Hall graciously accepted an invitation to deliver the sermon at Christ Church of Ponte Vedra on Epiphany Sunday. His subject was "Victory Through Christianity" and a record attendance was thrilled to hear him. The Halls, both ardent swimmers, enjoyed the surf daily.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. C. Ewing, of Bedford Village, New York, stayed at The Inn on their way south to inspect their orange groves at Winter Haven. The Ewings are frequent visitors to Ponte Vedra.

Mr. Kelsey Devereux, who divides his time between Fort Lauderdale and Ponte Vedra, returned for a visit and a few rounds of golf on his favorite course. Mr. Devereux's residence on Solano Road, designed by the well known architect Simonson of Palm Beach, features a glassed-in patio large enough to house a wonderful assortment of shrubs and trees, and it is considered one of the most beautiful homes along the Florida Coast.

Miss Nadine Conner, Metropolitan Opera Star, was featured as guest artist with The Jacksonville Symphony and enjoyed several trips to the beach. A luncheon was given in her honor at The Inn by Mrs. Francis Baldwin, Chairman of the Symphony Hospitality Committee.

There were also numerous houseguests on the scene. Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cody of Rapon, Wisconsin, and Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Cook, of New York City.

Mr. Robert Trent Jones, world famous golf architect, considers a few changes in the course with Mr. J. R. Stockton, president of Ponte Vedra Club.

Doctor and Mrs. Max Burnell of Flint, Michigan, are caught basking in the sun. Doctor Burnell is medical director for International General Motors.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Crane, of the colony, had as guests Mr. and Mrs. William Powers, of Denver, Colorado, who stopped for a visit and a week of golf on their way to Nassau. The Cranes gave a large cocktail party in honor of their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Rickert Marchessau, Mr. H. Frellson Page, Jr., and Miss Jean Hunter, all of New Orleans, enjoyed a houseparty at "High Dune," the home of Mr. D. V. Edmundson.

Sir Charles and Lady Nottingham of New Milford, Connecticut, are photographed before dinner at the Inn. With them are Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hartz of the Ponte Vedra colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Blevin vacationed at The Inn and were welcomed by many old friends. Mr. Blevin has written a new book, "The Wonderful Writing Machine" which will be published by Random House in May. A well-known humorist, Mr. Blevin has had stories appear in The New Yorker, Woman's Home Companion, and has one currently in Esquire Magazine. The Blevins agreed with everybody else that the sun never felt better, and Ponte Vedra was exactly the remedy for New York's long cold winter.

Washington Letter

Dear Dora:

Forget your rhumba, now; your tango, now—but do get on with your "Merengue." Just in case you're thinking a "Merengue" is something that might be on top of a pie, it isn't. It's a dance, introduced to Washington at a recent embassy party by the handsome new Dominican Ambassador, General Manuel A. DeMoya and his very chic and pretty wife, Anna Maria.

It is a very old dance, and one which for some reason hasn't been discovered by "new dance scouts," as were the rhumba, tango, samba, etc. A combination of Spanish dances and those of the native Carib Indians, it has a lilting sway, lots of hip movement and an accent on knee-drop. The music is slower than most Latin American dance tunes, the steps simpler and easier to learn, and Washingtonians have gone all out for spreading the "Merengue."

They've gone all out for the very attractive De Moyas, too, who are experts in a great many things besides the "Merengue."

"You see," explained the Ambassador, who was former Governor of Cuidad Trujillo and one time secretary of agriculture, "our country, small as it is, was the first discovered in this hemisphere. It was on our island that Columbus landed four and a half centuries ago, and it is from Santo Domingo that even the great "conquistadores" spread out to South America, Mexico and Central America." The Ambassador speaks with authority being himself from a very old and long prominent Dominican family. A Spanish ancestor of his, Casimiro De Moya, made the first map of Santo Domingo.

I also learned that the Dominican Republic is free of debt, both internal and external, and also free of Communists; that it welcomes American tourists and does not require passports for entry. It is a very clean, healthy place with many splendid hotels and excellent fishing. The Dominicans are unhappy, however, because they buy more things from us than we buy sugar from them. In fact, they sell most of their sugar to England. A former member of Congress who just returned from Santo Domingo informed me, "It's a very stable government. The country has a great future, and I think American capital will richly benefit from any investment made in Santo Domingo."

Madam De Moya, who was educated in Connecticut, Paris and Switzerland, accompanied the General when he went to London as President Trujillo's special ambassador to the Court of St. James at the time of the coronation. The De Moyas are grandparents, having a married daughter who lives in Santo Domingo, but their two sons, 14 year old Tony and 9 year old Raphael, are here with them studying at Fork Union Military Academy.

Another Dominican has been much in the news lately, Porfirio Rubirosa. Baroness Garnett de Stackelberg, Times Herald columnist, was the first to tell of his impending marriage to Barbara Hutton. One secret Garnett refuses to scoop the world on: how bride, Barbara, broke her leg.

Speaking of wedding bells, Brig. General Burdett Fitch, ex-husband of Joe Davies' daughter, Rahel, was recently married in Salem, N. J., to Mrs. Campbell-Campbell. It might be another trip to the altar for Mrs. Rahel Davies Fitch, too, since she's frequently seen in the company of attentive, good-looking widower and lawyer Fontaine Broun of the Cravath firm.

Two important sales in smart Kalorama Circle took place recently. Colonel and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick sold the house they bought when they moved to Washington with the new Republican administration. The former Montgomery Blair house, overlooking the northwest grounds of the French Embassy, although completely renovated, even including the installation of an elevator, proved too small, so a larger residence on Benton Place was purchased. New purchaser, Mr. Art Landa, of the Joe Davies firm, just bought another beautiful house too. It's right there in Palm Beach.

Mr. Eric Johnston acquired one of the two Kalorama Circle houses of Mrs. Leland Harrison. Mr. Art Landa previously owned one of these.

Tilden Street in Washington's Spring Valley is taking on new importance since former minister Perle Mesta bought an estate there a couple of blocks from Vice President Nixon's modest home. Mrs. Mesta had hoped to obtain the magnificent close-in Adams residence, but the Dominican Ambassador was there "firtest with the mostest," so the "hostess with the mostest," her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Tyson, moved out to Tilden Street.

When Mrs. Francis Biddle (Katherine Garrison Chapin) gave her poetry readings at the Library of Congress the other evening, she laurel-ized Clinch Calkins, another Washington poet. Apart from iambic pentameters, Clinch is Mrs. Mark Merrill of this city.

Glimpsed in the audience too was one of society's grande dames, Mrs. Truxton Beale, who otherwise leads a pretty secluded existence barricaded by butlers and secretaries in historical Decatur House on Lafayette Square. Poetry also brought out Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips who are scarcer at parties these days than footmen in knee breeches.

According to those fortunate enough to get tickets, the dramatization of the novel "The Caine Mutiny" at Constitutional Hall was absorbing entertainment. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence "Chip" Robert, Jr. of Washington and Atlanta had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone Williams and Miss Elinore McClatchy, owner and publisher of several California newspapers.

A week earlier, Washingtonians hadn't known whether to go or not to go to Constitutional Hall to hear Leopold Stokowski conduct the National Symphony Orchestra. Twenty-five hundred finally made up their minds. They went and were rewarded when Stokowski retreated in his controversy over the sound absorbing curtain on the stage after first delivering a twenty minute plug for a suitable music hall for Washington. I hope he's started the ball rolling.

The United States Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. Winthrop Aldrich were after theater supper guests of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Neil Phillips following the opening of "Dear Charles" at the Shubert. All the cast came, also the producers, Richard Aldrich and Dick Myers who brought his wife, the former Countess Suzanne de Gonzalow of Paris. Another guest was author Thornton Wilder who recently has spent much time in Florida working on his new play "Emporium" for next fall's opening.

Fashion conscious Washingtonians are hoping that "Coco" Chanel, now nearly seventy, won't drop a style bombshell when she reopens her dressmaking salon in Paris this February after having abandoned the field at the start of the war in 1939 leaving only the haunting fragrance of "No. 5" to keep her name before the public. When I mentioned my despair at trying to keep up with fashion and my envy of the woman of India and her timeless style in the sari at a recent luncheon, Madam Pandit, wife of India's Ambassador to this country, quickly informed me that I was quite mistaken and that there was as much constant change in sari fashion as in woman's clothes anywhere. Whereas the silhouette of the drape remains constant, variation is achieved in the fabric itself; its weight, color, pattern and design. You just wouldn't be caught dead in India draped in last year's out moded bold print. Seems there's no escaping the dictates of Dame Fashion in this whole world.

His Excellency, the new Dominican Ambassador and Madam De Moya who are apt to become Washington's most popular diplomatic couple.

Expected to return soon from a honeymoon in St. Moritz, Paris and London are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dean. He is the former head of the Atomic Energy Commission, and she the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Gore, and niece of Tennessee's Senator Albert Gore. The newlyweds will make their home in New York City where Mr. Dean is now associated with a banking firm. Somehow the idea of an expert in the bristly new atomic energy field applying himself to the crusty world of banking makes me wonder what sort of chain reaction might be started in those hoary vaults.

Goodby for now, Dora. Washington is in the midst of a whirl of parties for Turkey's president and I'll tell you all about that in my next letter. We're also six inches deep in snow again, and it's still falling. Lucky you in Palm Beach.

Sincerely yours,

Ruth.

The Chinchilla . . .

Glamour Rodent

MOVE OVER mink, beaver, fox, otter and even royal ermine. Make way Sable and Persian lamb. The newer fur sensation, chinchilla, demands a place in the chic fur salon; slung over a chair back at El Morocco; trailing from fashionable shoulders in the lobby of the Met. Soon many graceful figures will be swathed in the distinctive blue-grey fur and many appreciative fingers will caress the silky pelts. Many a husband's checkbook will reel, too, under the impact of the furrier's bill—but what matter when Milady is so glamorously clad?

Luckily for England's tax-ridden peers chinchilla fur had not been discovered at the time ermine, then the most precious of furs, was decreed as trimming on state garments. Rabbit made a creditable substitute for ermine on many a robe worn in the coronation ceremony of Elizabeth II, but there is no substitute for chinchilla. Nothing in the fur world even remotely resembles its marvelous color and density.

While the fur of the chinchilla is unique, in appearance the small animal would seem to be a relative of squirrel or rabbit. Actually it is a rodent, and its nearest American relative is—of all things—the porcupine. Never has a furrier suggested, however, that porcupine be substituted for chinchilla.

Although there are only two full length chinchilla coats now in existence, stoles, jackets, capes, neckpieces and muffs are coming from fur workrooms in increased quantities. It is estimated that a half million animals are now distributed on chinchilla ranches throughout the United States, Canada, Alaska and Hawaii. Some ninety of them are being raised within a few miles of Palm Beach. Most of the ranch chinchillas are still earmarked for breeding, but fine skins reach the fur centers, to be made into gorgeous raiment.

Chinchilla fur is extremely fine, with as many as fifty to sixty hairs growing from one follicle, or hair cell. Fiber length is between three-fourths and one and one-half inches, with the greater length, next to the skin, being a distinctive blue-grey. A band of white through the center of each hair, and a tip of jet black give chinchilla fur its misty appearance. Cell structure of the hair forms a solid fiber instead of a hollow one as is common with most other furs. The guard hairs are slightly heavier and longer than the underfur.

Not noted as a hard-wearing utility fur, chinchilla needs careful and competent handling. The fact that there are at least thirty antique chinchilla wraps in existence in the United States today is adequate proof that it will last when properly handled.

Chinchilla fur is first supposed to have reached Europe a century and a half ago, when a Spanish gentleman traveling in South America wished to send a memento of his explorations to his queen. Selecting handsome native jewelry, he looked around for something sturdy as a wrapping. A lap robe-sized fur piece made up of many tiny pelts intricately sewn seemed to answer his need. He entrusted his gift to a friend who was returning to Spain on the next ship.

This mighty mite nestled in the hands of a female admirer is worth seven hundred and fifty dollars on his tiny hoof.

When the ship reached Barcelona, emissary and jewels were gone, only the fur, addressed to the Queen of Spain, remained. When she received the remainder of her gift, the queen, with a woman's sure instinct for beautiful furs, was so thrilled by this new variety that she had the robe made into a jacket. All the noble ladies of the court were thrown into a jealous frenzy, and chinchilla was on its way to becoming one of the royal furs of the ages.

The trickle of chinchilla furs from South America was slow, in spite of great demand in European markets, and later the United States. Records show that the firm of C. M. Lampson, London, handled five hundred chinchilla pelts in 1833; over eight hundred in 1853 and six hundred in 1873. All chinchilla pelts came from Chile, Bolivia, Peru and Argentina. By 1920 these countries had passed laws entirely prohibiting the trapping and export of chinchillas.

In 1923, after endless patience in dealing with South American authorities to get a permit for trapping them, a North American mining engineer, Mathias Farrell Chapman, succeeded, with a crew of old-time trappers, in catching sixteen of the small rodents alive. Keeping them alive down the volcanic slopes from their home in the rarefied atmosphere of the high Andes into the hot, humid plains below was another test of patience and ingenuity. After the ocean trip to Southern California only eleven chinchilla remained, to form the nucleus of today's chinchilla ranching industry.

Chinchillas are not difficult to raise, requiring little care as long as they are kept in cool, scrupulously clean quarters. Naturally fastidious about their bodies and food, they ask only that their cages be kept neat; that water be in constant supply and food to their liking. They eat vegetables, fruit, hay, grain and a special pellet produced for them by a well-known breakfast food company.

Mating for life, chinchillas produce from one to five young in a litter, and from one to three litters a year, under favorable conditions breeding back the second day after young are born. Both chinchilla parents take great pride in their children, and equal responsibility in caring for the babies. At six weeks the babies are weaned, and often at six months are ready to begin families of their own. The average life span of the animals is sixteen years.

There seems to be no difference in the breeding habits, life span or quality of the fur of chinchillas raised in subtropical Florida from the ones raised in much colder climates. Florida-bred animals have shown fur superior to that of northern cousins, so long as first-class breeding stock was used, and favorable climate maintained in their cages.

With the price of breeding pairs ranging from nine hundred and fifty to two thousand dollars per pair, it is little wonder so few pelts have reached an eager fur market, or that garments made up of ten to one hundred and twenty of the precious pelts are so expensive. Tremendous strides made in recent years in feeding, upbreeding and care of the animals insures a more steady and increasing supply of the furs in the future.

THE Colony HOTEL

WITH THE SEASON IN FULL SWING, The Colony is enjoying capacity bookings and a full program of entertainment activities. By popular request, Elou Williams, one of Palm Beach's favorite entertainers, has returned to the cocktail lounge for the remainder of the season. A sophisticated song stylist, who plays her own accompaniment on a little red portable piano, she is definitely individual and her inimitable interpretation of songs, is a topic of conversation in the resort.

Miss Williams' extensive repertoire this season includes popular tunes from Cole Porter's "Can Can," Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Me and Juliette," John Murray Anderson's "Almanac," a group of French songs she popularized during her several engagements at the Chez Paree in Montreal and a number of songs that were written especially for her. Her background also includes work on radio and television and singing roles in several Broadway musicals.

The roster of The Colony reads like a who's who in society and the world of celebrities. Each season finds scores of notables here for the season or winter holidays. This year is no exception and the hotel has been host to numerous famous personages and society leaders from all over the world.

Gen. Charles P. Romulo, former Ambassador of the Philippine Republic to the United States and United Nations former president of the General Assembly, was at The Colony for several days. While here, he had a happy reunion with his first American school teacher in the Philippines, Mrs. Leo L. Grove of Ovid, Mich., who has a winter home in Delray Beach. He paid her a glowing tribute when he said, "she taught me to read and write and the basic principles of Americanism." Gen. Romulo plans to return in the spring with his family for several week's holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Bitting 3rd, who were married in New York at the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral, spent their honeymoon in Palm Beach at The Colony, later going on to Nassau. He is the son of the former president of the U. S. Sugar Corporation at Clewiston and is well-known in the resort. She is the former Miss Polly Aaron of Princeton, N. J.

Miss Margaret O'Brien of the films and Broadway stage, who starred with Blanche Yurka in the second production of the Palm Beach Playhouse this season, "I Remember Mama," was at the hotel during her Palm Beach stay; accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Gladys O'Brien.

Mrs. C. Aubrey Cartwright of New York and Cap d'Antibes, France, is occupying her usual penthouse for the third season. Mrs. Lyttleton Fox of New York will be her house guest for several months. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Russell of Dallas, Texas, who were absent from the Palm Beach scene last year, have returned and will be at the hotel for the remainder of the season. Major and Mrs. Horace E. Dodge are permanent residents of The Colony; they have one of the luxurious penthouses.

Other Colony guests include: Rear Admiral R. P. Kauffman of St. Louis; Mr. Frank Hale, president of National Yeast Corporation and a sponsor of the Palm Beach Playhouse; Mr. and Mrs. Max Pray, Chicago socialites; Dr. John F. Pick, noted surgeon and author, also from Chicago; Mrs. E. P. Cassell of Providence, R. I., who has her usual penthouse atop the hotel; Mr. Raymond Bill of New York; Mr. Louis Stoecklin, New York socialite, who is spending a winter vacation here; Mr. Manuel de Moya of Washington, D. C., ambassador from the Dominican Republic; Mr. and Mrs. M. Jay Turner of Evanston, Ill. He is vice-president of Magnus Metal Corporation.

Mr. John Bradford Milliken, noted television executive of New York; Mrs. Harmon Spencer Auguste, season guest from New York; Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Bailey of the same place; he is men's fashion editor of several national magazines; Mr. George Englund, also from Manhattan, well-known actor-producer and formerly associated with the Palm Beach Playhouse; Mrs. Evelyn Sharp, owner of the Stanhope Hotel, New York; Mr. P. M. Cassidy of St. James, N. Y.; Miss Julia McCarthy, society editor of the New York Daily News; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Putman of New Hope, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. L. Taylor of Germantown, Tenn.; Mr. William Douglas McAdams, New York; Mr. Lawrence Jones, Cincinnati, O.; Mr. Edwin R. Ives, Westbury, N. Y.

Going along with the times, The Colony is modern in architecture and decor, a smart contrast with the Addison Mizner influence which formerly dominated the scene. Dramatizing the hotel lobby, cocktail lounge and Terrace Club, are colorful and authentic murals of old Palm Beach . . . a good way to check up on your resort history. They depict the story of the beginnings of Palm Beach when the Providencia went aground on its shores and the first cocoanuts floated ashore . . . the beginning also of the glorious palm trees which now are so important in the resort picture; the famous old Poinciana Hotel; wheel chairs which are still popular here; the picturesque horse cars of the days "back when"; bicycle riders of pioneer times.

Although The Colony is modern in its physical aspects, it is old-fashioned in gracious southern hospitality, the "hallmark" of this exclusive hotel. As Mr. Bernard Cooley, president and general manager points out, "the guest is usually right and everything possible is done for our guests, whether they stay for the season or for a short holiday." The atmosphere here is more like that of a private club than a hotel, literally "a home away from home."

In close proximity to just about everything, The Colony is strategically located . . . the beach, golf courses and tennis courts, shopping districts, churches, "Little Wall Street," smart night spots, private clubs. If you are in the habit of taking a daily "constitutional," there is no more beautiful atmosphere and scenery for walking . . . miles of ocean walks or lovely palm-shaded avenues.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Bitting 3d of New York City, who were married in the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral there, January 21. They spent their honeymoon at The Colony, later going to Nassau. Mr. Bitting's father was former president of the U. S. Sugar Corp. at Clewiston, Fla., and spent many winter seasons in Palm Beach.

Mr. Manuel de Moya of Washington, D. C., Ambassador to the Dominican Republic, who stopped in Palm Beach for several days holiday, enroute to Latin America.

Mr. Louis Stoecklin, New York socialite, who is spending a winter vacation at The Colony.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Jay Turner of Evanston, Ill., photographed in the patio of The Colony. Mr. Turner is vice-president of Magnus Metal Corporation, a division of National Lead. They were at the hotel for a several week's vacation, going on to Nassau before returning home.

CHICAGO

Letter...

WE'VE HAD SOME SNOW FLURRIES and one day South Shore drive was closed because of ice, but snow-melting sidewalks keep LaSalle Street clear. You don't need those in Palm Beach. So here's about Boul Mich this month, gay, colorful, exciting, nostalgic Boul Mich:

The Passavant Hospital Fifth Cotillion at the Conrad Hilton, was attended by 1250 guests. Mrs. Stewart Harvey designed the motif for the ball, and her co-workers, Mrs. Leon Mandel and Mrs. Gardiner B. Van Ness, Jr., worked since last March to make this Cotillion one of the most beautiful that has been given. This year as the orchestra started to play "It's a Great Day," which is the traditional opening music for the ball, Miss Letitia Dick on the arm of her father, Mr. Edison Dick, president of the men's board of the hospital, led one wing of the grand march. Miss Martha Swift, whose grandmother, Mrs. Alden B. Swift, is past president of the woman's board, led the other wing with her great-great uncle, Mr. Harold Swift.

An international note was seen in this year's Cotillion, as the daughter of the French Consul, Miss Yvonne Briere, and the daughter of the Belgium Consul, Miss Sybille d'Eeckhoutte, marched in with their fathers. Both girls have interesting family histories inasmuch as the name of one of Miss Briere's ancestors is on the Arc of Triumph in Paris, and Miss d'Eeckhoutte can trace her ancestry to the Crusades. The Far East is represented by the ward of Colonel and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Miss Edith Wu, the daughter of the former governor of Formosa. Miss Wu comes from one of the most important and oldest families in the Orient. Miss Wu's gown made in oriental style was of white satin embroidered in pearls and was made in China for this special occasion. Miss Elinor Ketting has a special tie to the Cotillion this year as her great grandfather, Dr. Ralph Isham, was one of the founders of Passavant Hospital and the Northwestern Medical School.

The 22 Debutantes and their escorts for the ball were:

Miss Yvonne Briere, Mr. William D. Kimpton, Mr. Willard Fry; Miss Patricia Collins, Mr. John Siragusa, Mr. Richard Platt; Miss Mary Ann Colwell, Dr. Peter Bigler, Mr. Charles Shedd; Miss Sybille d'Eeckhoutte, Mr. Uberto Bozzini, Mr. Edward Connors; Miss Letitia Dick, Mr. Scott Hodgkins, Mr. Robert Hodgkins; Miss Florence S. Dillingham, Mr. Hays MacFarland, Mr. Ward Farnsworth; Miss Jane K. Doolittle, Mr. John McLaughlin, Mr. David M. Scott; Miss Betsy T. Geraghty, Mr. Roger White, Jr., Mr. John Marquardt; Miss Lynn P. Kelley, Mr. William D. Cox, Jr., Mr. Bernard F. Rogers; Miss Elinor Ketting, Mr. Gordon Lang, Jr., Mr. Samuel M. Yonce; Miss Patricia A. Livingston, Mr. Bennett B. Harvey, Mr. William Wallace.

Miss Patricia B. Moulding, Mr. Thomas M. Hibben, Mr. Charles B. Hinshaw; Miss Judith A. Norton, Mr. Houston Clinch, Jr., Mr. Donald Ross; Miss Shelia Reynolds, Mr. William Howenstein, Mr. Peter Davis; Miss Deborah W. Ross, Mr. Joseph Hartnett, Mr. Emmett Tracy; Miss Mary M. Schmick, Mr. Charles DeWitt O'Kieffe, III, Mr. Richard O'Toole; Miss Sarah N. Shambaugh, Mr. John M. Kellogg, Mr. Philip W. Shambaugh; Miss Martha H. Swift, Mr. William Stagg, Mr. Harold S. Russell; Miss Marshall Tyler, Mr. Ralph Mills, Jr., Mr. Thomas P. Gorter, Jr.; Miss Carolyn P. Ullmann, Mr. William Emery Ullman, Jr., Mr. George W. Moxon, Jr.; Miss Julie Van Alyea, Mr. Horton Conrad, Jr., Mr. Jeffrey P. Carstens; Miss Edith Wu, Mr. Charles Bowen, Mr. W. Ellis.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isham with Mr. and Mrs. William Wood Prince chaperoned the dinner given at the Conrad Hilton Tower Suite for the girls taking part in the Cotillion and their escorts, just preceding the ball. Mrs. Homer P. Hargrave served as honorary chairman of the 1953 committee, and Mrs. Henry P. Isham, as chairman. Mrs. William Wood Prince and Mrs. John G. Searle were co-chairmen, and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid was executive chairman. Mrs. Isham has announced that the proceeds from the ball were $50,046.72.

Square dancing along the North Shore has proved so popular that subscriptions to the Country Cotillions' spring dance series, have been closed and a waiting list of names has been set up for the parties to be given next fall. On the Country Cotillion board, and the communities represented, are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Frisch of Wilmette; Dr. and Mrs. J. Peerman Nesselrod of Winnetka; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Anderson of Evanston; Dr. and Mrs. F. Seaman Barry of Glenview; Mr. and Mrs. John Bland Townes of Kenilworth, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Howard, of Lake Forest.

John Bland Townes of Kenilworth, who has done some research on the evolution of squaredancing, identifies the quadrille, varieties of the Virginia Reel, and contra dances, in the complicated figures of the modern cotillion. Dances will be held the first Saturday each month, February, March, April and May.

To a visitor in Chicago, Friday, January 8, The Blackstone lobby must have seemed like one of those jumbled dreams the psychiatrists dissemble, analyze, and put together with meaning. This nightmare, however, was the arrival of some 450 masqueraders at the Twelfth Night Ball. Domino decorations set the backdrop for some original, beautiful, amusing, and startling costumes. The ball's secret committee is complimented on the largest attendance ever enjoyed at this traditional subscription supper dance. Masques are removed at midnight. A group depicting Miss Clavell and twelve students from Lud Bemelman's "Madeleine" won first prize for the William K. Volckens group. Mrs. Volckens, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus MacKinnon, the Matthew L. Rockwells, the Francis Stantons, the Robert Ingersolls, the Ted Ballards, and Mrs. James P. Baxter were the students. Mr. Volckens was Miss Clavell. Other prize winners were Robert Anderson as Gargantua, and Mrs. William J. Carney in a pink ballerina costume. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse came as Mickey and Minnie Mouse, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Culbertson II came as black and white scotty dogs, and the Gail Bordens were Alice in Wonderland characters.

Clockwise (far left) Mrs. David Mayer, Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr., Mrs. Arthur Hall, Mrs. Hughston McBain, Mrs. John T. Pirie Sr., Mrs. Marshall Field Jr., Mrs. Elmer Stevens, and Mrs. Willard Cole (back to camera) attended the Centennial Dinner.

Chauncey McCormick, president of the Art Institute, and Mrs. McCormick graciously acknowledged congratulations as some 1500 socially prominent Chicagoans attended the opening, January 13, of the exhibit of paintings from the Sargent, Whistler, and Cassatt collections. Among Whistler's paintings are "Portrait of the Artist's Mother" purported to be one of the most popular in the world, and "Portrait of Thomas Carlyle". Curator Frederick Sweet is complimented on the magnificent nine gallery exhibit. Among prominent guests attending the opening were Governor and Mrs. Stratton, and Francis Henry Taylor, Director of the Metropolitan Museum.

The current inspiring exhibit of stained glass pieces by Andre Girard, Adolph Gottlieb, Hans Moller opened with a tea at the Arts Club last month.

Nassau

IT'S EASY TO SEE why February is the peak of Nassau's season. For one thing, the month is shorter than any of its fellows, and consequently more activities have to be crammed into its 28 days. For another, February is the month when most of the season's outstanding activities take place.

And lastly, by February, even the latest of late arrivals has returned to Nassau, and the ranks of the social colony are complete.

This year, the largest social colony ever to winter here has made this season far and away Nassau's gayest ever. An impressive number of bright social events have contributed to the success of the season to date, and February has been filled with gay winter colony happenings.

Most recent was the Headress Ball, held again this year in the British Colonial Hotel by the Bahamas Humane Society. The big charity event, which provides funds for the Humane Society's vital animal welfare work throughout the Bahamas, was attended by a record crowd which comprised almost the entire winter colony. The Ball was held under the distinguished patronage of the Rt. Hon. the Earl and Countess of Ranfurly in their first major charity benefit appearance of the year. It was the first Headress Ball that His Excellency the Governor and Lady Ranfurly had patronized, and both are keen animal lovers whose interest in animal welfare work is well known.

The number of ingenious headdresses displayed at this year's Headress Ball made the affair the most talked-about event of the month's social activity. As in previous years, prizes were awarded for the best headdresses in a number of different classifications, and this year, more members of Nassau's social colony participated than ever before.

This annual charity ball always succeeds in realizing a substantial sum for the hard-working Bahamas Humane Society, and this year's Headress Ball was no exception. Nassau's winter colony never allows an appeal to charity to fall upon deaf ears, and this year's Headress Ball resulted in a record sum being raised for the Bahamas Humane Society.

The big date on the season's social calendar, following the Headress Ball, is Washington's Birthday. The date itself is the old-time, traditional peak of the social season here and is celebrated with considerable social activity by all members of the community. This year, the date also marks the opening of the First Annual Bahamas Agricultural Fair, an event expected to be well attended by horticulturists and amateur agronomists among the winter colony. Chief enthusiasts are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sigrist, whose exhibits in the annual Nassau Garden Club's exhibit have always attracted wide attention; Mr. and Mrs. J. Roland Robinson of London and Nassau, who have done much to beautify their lovely Nassau estate, "Star Acres"; and Maj. and Mrs. Herbert Holt of Montreal and Nassau, whose Nassau home, "Ballycrystal", boasts some of the loveliest gardens in the Colony. For Mr. Robinson, Washington's Birthday and the Bahamas Agricultural Fair are dates shared on his calendar with his birthday, which also falls on February 22, but his interest in agriculture will undoubtedly prompt him to visit the fair, which will run through February 27. It comes as no surprise to his friends, who are well aware of his authoritative knowledge of farm and garden, that a position Mr. Robinson held with distinction in the past was president of the Royal Lancashire Agricultural Society.

Hotels and guest houses in Nassau will celebrate Washington's Birthday with customary gaiety and special menus for the day. The larger hotels will offer special entertainment, and the whole town will be en fete for the occasion.

The month's entertainment schedule opened most auspiciously with the re-opening of the British Colonial Playhouse for an eight-week season of theater-in-the-round which began February 1. The first play of the season, "Pygmalion", played to a packed house, night after night, as Nassau's social colony flocked to the theater to see Shaw's brilliant comedy performed by a troupe of outstanding Broadway artists. Lovely Miss Leuen MacGrath played the role of Liza Doolittle, with Mr. Murray Matheson co-starring as Peter Higgins. They were ably supported by a distinguished company.

"Pygmalion" was followed by Ferenc Molnar's fable of international intrigue, "The Play's The Thing", which starred the vivacious Miss Magda Gabor, and the third play of the season, the controversial play, "The Lady's Not For Burning", by Christopher Fry, co-starred Miss Uta Hagen and Mr. Herbert Berghof. Playgoers are now anxiously awaiting the next play of the season, scheduled to begin on Washington's Birthday, but as yet unannounced. This production will be either "A Bill of Divorcement" or "Gig", and Miss Phyllis Kirk, newest Hollywood star, will play the leading role.

about a resumption of the custom of theater suppers and gay pre-theater cocktail parties, and the eight-week cycle of legitimate theater was launched with a cocktail party in the patio of the British Colonial Hotel at which more than 150 guests attended.

The winter colony is expected to welcome a distinguished guest some time during the season, when His Excellency the Governor of Northern Ireland, Lord Wakehurst of Ardingly, visits Nassau. Lord Wakehurst, who was appointed Governor of Northern Ireland in 1952, is also a former Governor of New South Wales, Australia. His visit to Nassau will be the climax of a tour which has taken him all through the United States.

Seasonal arrivals to date include Mrs. Albert E. Worwick of Palm Beach and Nassau, who has returned to her Cable Beach home; Mrs. Francis S. Whitten of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who has opened her "Caprice" for the season; Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel III of New York and Nassau, who has opened her Cable Beach home for the winter; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Shirres of Montreal, who are spending part of the season in Nassau, having arrived recently aboard their yacht, "Hyannis"; Lt.-Col. and Mrs. T. E. Carew-Hunt of London and Nassau, who have returned to spend another season here; Mrs. Anne Archbold of Washington and Nassau, who has returned to her home on Prospect Ridge for the winter; Brigadier K. S. Torrance of Toronto and Nassau, who has returned to his Eastern Road residence, "Dundrillin" for the winter; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Murchie of Dedham, Mass., who have returned to their Nassau home for the season; and Mr. and Mrs. Jouett R. Todd of Louisville, Ky., who have opened their Nassau home, "Postern Gate", for the season.

ENTRANCE TO THE PALM BEACH HOTEL. THE TWIN MISSION BELFRIES PERSONIFY THE WARM HOSPITALITY ENJOYED BY THOUSANDS OF WINTER PATRONS

Palm Beach Hotel

THE PEAK OF THE SEASON finds a goodly house at the Palm Beach Hotel, that smart hostelry on Sunrise Avenue, which has more the atmosphere of an exclusive private club than a hotel. The spacious lobbies, gardens and loggias echo a feeling of graciousness and exude the hospitality of a mellow old Southern mansion.

Dining for Palm Beach Hotel guests is a memorable experience. The superb cuisine and varied menus, featuring outstanding dishes, attracts gourmets from the four corners of the globe. The gracious service is under the supervision of Bruno and George, both of whom have enviable backgrounds of experience. With courteous service and the welfare and comforts of guests of paramount importance, Mr. James Hitz, manager of the hotel, bends every effort to make it truly a home away from home.

The highlight of the myriad activities at the hotel continues to be the bi-weekly shows presented in the sky-canopied West Patio and the Top O' The Palm where such artists as Larry Storch, Gracie Barrie, Henny Youngman, Phil Foster, Jerry Bergen, Lillian Roth, Raul and Eva Reyes, Harvey Stone and Mary Raye and Naldi have already appeared. The danceable society music of the renowned Dick Gasparre orchestra alternates with South American rhythms played by Paul Barad's fine group.

Returning for their fourth year, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Cannold of Mamaroneck and Noah's Ark Farm in Yorktown Heights, New York, will remain throughout the season. Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Peyster of New York, are spending a few weeks at the hotel before leaving on an around-the-world cruise which includes an African hunting safari. Mrs. Esther Minskoff of New York is wintering for the eighth season—ever since the Seiden management took over the Palm Beach Hotel. She is accompanied by her traveling companion, Miss Katherine Mac Intyre. Amongst many other multiple year returnees are Mr. and Mrs. Irving H. Manacher, Mr. and

Mr. and Mrs. W. Sargeant Nixon of Freeport, Long Island, are back for their seventh year. Mr. Nixon is the executive vice president of the Freeport Bank.

Mrs. Jack Content, Mr. and Mrs. Max Troy, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Grauer and Mr. and Mrs. J. Archibald Aronauer, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Jaffe, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Max Lederman, all from New York City. Also sunvacationing at the Palm Beach Hotel are Mr. and Mrs. Martin Stein and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hirsch of Great Neck, Long Island. Mr. Richard Flanagan, vice president of the Webb and Knapp realty firm, Bob Smith, who is Howdy Doody to millions of television viewers, and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Kenny, the New York Mirror columnist, are expected momentarily.

Former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. William M. Boyle and his wife enjoy a chat with Mr. and Mrs. Myron Widett. Mr. Boyle and Mr. Widett are business associates.

The Palm Beach Hotel's Mr. and Mrs. Milton Seiden entertain actor Danny Kaye in the West Patio. Mr. and Mrs. Seiden and Mr. Kaye have been friends many years.

St. Augustine . . .

THE PALATIAL HOTEL PONCE DE LEON in Saint Augustine stands as a monument to the vision of a great man, Henry M. Flagler, who chose the city as his home (Kirkside) and the site of his three hotels, the Cordova, the Alcazar and the queen of them all, the Ponce de Leon.

Through the years men and women prominent in world affairs return again and again to enjoy the unexcelled facilities offered by this great hotel. Some enjoy the season here while others seek the warmer climate of Palm Beach, Hobe Sound, Nassau and other prominent resort cities. Many of these same patrons return, however, in March and April for what is known as "the little season," extending to April 20th.

In keeping with the hotel's traditional reputation of offering excellent accommodations for a gracious way of living, an exceptionally fine cuisine and experienced deft service the hotel is enjoying an unprecedented season under the personal direction of Edward G. Flather, Jr.

February may be a short month but it's always a gay one in old Saint Augustine. Social activities, centering around the Hotel Ponce de Leon are many and varied, those attracting the greatest interest during the month are: a pageant "San Agustin's Historical Heritage: Colonial Tea by Daughters of American Revolution honoring George Washington's birthday; Community Concert Association presents Mauney duo-piano team in recital; Fashion Show, "Cupid Presents," on eve of St. Valentine's Day; Flagler Auxiliary Benefit Ball; Beaux Arts Ball; Officers' Club Ball and innumerable dinners, luncheons, bridge tournaments and cocktail parties are booked.

Saint Augustine has an historic house of which it is most justly proud—it is the Fatio House on old Aviles Street, in the old Spanish Quarter of the town. This house, owned by the Colonial Dames of Florida, is open to the public every Thursday during the winter season with members of the organization serving as hostesses from eleven in the morning to four in the afternoon.

The house was built for a Spanish family yclept Ximinez in the year 1806. In 1850 it passed into the hands of Miss Louisa Fazio and her heirs, and in 1939 it was purchased by the Colonial Dames through Judge David R. Dunham. The Spanish influence pervades the entire first floor and Empire Regency the second floor. The slave kitchen, a separate building, stands back of the house itself. The furnishings in drawing room, music room, library and bedroom are rare and beautiful examples of workmanship dating back to early 1700's and nothing is later than circa 1820. A chair in the music room, of Spanish influence, used by early colonists, is a treasure dating back to 1685. A Pembroke drop leaf table in the drawing room is old and very rare, made by Chippendale about 1771—and all throughout the house, treasures such as these are to be seen, and admired.

"Saint Augustine is an aristocratic old lady, demure, polite, scented with lavender and wearing old lace," so wrote Belle C. Ewing and she added "it's a city to make you forget you are living in an atomic age."

It is indeed remarkable that there should be a city on American soil born so long ago that has preserved its charm and serenity to such a marked degree.

As the visitor approaches the old City Gates, which

Two socially prominent members are pictured as they are leaving to meet with their committee chairmen, they are Mrs. R. C. Blackmer (left) and Mrs. M. M. Foxworth Jr., general chairmen.

The League is composed of well known young matrons in town who devote their efforts and energies to raising funds for several worthwhile projects annually.

Around-the-clock clothes will be shown by a number of Saint Augustine's loveliest girls and young matrons. Mrs. Ralph Cooper will be the narrator and the Meyer Davis Ensemble will play throughout the showing.

To be an April bride . . . Mr. and Mrs. Julius Jaffe, Avista Circle, Davis Shores, announce the engagement of their daughter, Shirley, to Dr. Howard B. Rosen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rosen of Miami Beach, Florida. The wedding will be an event of Sunday, the eleventh of April in the Gold Room of the Hotel Ponce de Leon. Following the ceremony a reception will be given in the Grand Ballroom of the hotel.

once guarded the moated entrance to the town, he sees looming majestically to the east, the ancient fortress, Castillo de San Marcos, which has a gripping and sometime grizzly history. To see its massive stone walls and parapets, its dungeons and its courtyards, throws one back to the olden days when it was the stronghold of Florida and when it saw bloody fighting indeed. Today it stands proud and arrogant, strong in its knowledge that it never has been captured and would today withstand the poundings of our modern guns.

The old Spanish treasury stands high on list of historic attractions and a tour of the ante bellum mansion and gardens will be rewarding.

From earliest childhood, stories of pirate treasures have enthralled countless generations . . . remember the tales of "pieces of eight" of Spanish doubloons . . . of the wealth of the Indies that was sent on treasure ships to Spain only to fall prey to freebooters or pirates? One can live over these tales when visiting the "strong room" of the Old Treasury where Spanish treasure chests are shown.

Representative and Mrs. F. Charles Usina of Saint Augustine, who have one of the most beautiful homes on Avista Circle, Davis Shores, are pictured above. In this waterfront home, with its Mediterranean-type of architecture, they are most gracious hosts to a wide circle of friends. Their college-age daughter Malinda attends Florida State University. Their son Gary is enrolled at Bolles Military Academy in Jacksonville and the youngest daughter, Kathy, is at home.

Mrs. Henry Weinstein — who before her marriage was Miss Norm Sheer, of Miami Beach.

Mrs. James J. DeVito, Saint Augustine's loveliest singer, possesses a soprano voice of rare beauty. Mrs. DeVito is the wife of one of Saint Augustine's younger physicians, and the mother of a charming young son.

Palm Beach Biltmore

THE SPARKLING YACHTING COLONY at the Palm Beach Biltmore docks has been growing by leaps and bounds with many of the country's sleek streamlined super sea going yachts, decorating the nautical scene along the Biltmore's lakefront.

A foursome from the smart Beacon Street section of Boston who have been entertaining extensively aboard their yacht Lauri IV are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Schumann and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Beal. The pretty yacht "So What" skippered by the Daniel R. Hannas of Cleveland who spend much of their time down in the Keys at Marathon, cruises into port frequently at the Biltmore docks.

There is always activity aboard the now familiar Carola owned by those imitable party hosts Carola and Leon Mandel, which is anchored next to the mammoth Sea Level of the West India Fruit and Steamship Company.

Source of considerable interest is the slim sailing sloop, Don Quixote Del Mar with the attractive J. Fred Johnsons of Deal, New Jersey on board. The Johnsons who will be calling their yacht "home" all season have been entertaining many of their northern friends while in port.

With the advent of February, Biltmore regulars have been arriving en masse and back again to enjoy the always superb resort life so ably directed by master hotelier James J. Farrell, are Spring Lakers Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sullivan and their son Jack Jr., Billy Finley of Brooklyn accompanied by Ed Gallagher, Mrs. Alice Marr of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. Barney Warfield of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hiltenbrand of Ridgefield and Mrs. Eugene C. Bennet of Upper Montclair complete the list of Jerseyites which will increase as the season goes on, for many ressorters from this state who summer annually at the Monmouth Hotel in Spring Lake follow general manager James J. Farrell wherever he goes. That attractive twosome, the Edward J. Barrys of New York checked into the Biltmore for their 5th season.

With so many members of the racing fraternity residing in Palm Beach, interest of the island's noted racing stable owners naturally centers around the Palm Beach Biltmore's "race special" to Hialeah.

Highlighting the latter part of January was the annual Palm Beach handicap, a $15,000 added stake race which drew the cream of turf fans to Hialeah. A prominent twosome in the club car of the "race special" were the Paulding Fosdicks who usually while away their time playing cards. Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth Jerome McNulty had as their guests Mrs. Jeanne Hopkins and Mrs. E. J. Knipe. Mr. McNulty, owner of the Cross Bell Ranch racing stables in Tulsa, Oklahoma had a particular interest in the Palm Beach handicap for two years ago his horse American Glory won the stake. Noted for his sartorial racing togs, Forsyth for his trip to the track chose pale flamingo pink slacks with a pink paisley shirt.

The Gordon Taylors, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart P. Drummond of Hypoluxo, Biltmore guests Mr. and Mrs. Barney Warfield and Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosenbaum also travelled down to the track.

The tempo of social life at the Biltmore went into high gear this month with the addition of Collizato and his rhumba wizards who have literally taken the town by storm — currently the rhumba sensation of the country, Collizato shares musical honors with Walter Feldkamp and his society orchestra, in both the atmospheric West India Room and the Cabana Terrace. Dance lovers will welcome the news that there is always continuous dancing in the West India Room from nine 'til one.

Mr. Farrell, starting in mid-January inaugurated a series of Saturday night Galas featuring brand new floor shows each week direct from Miami, starring only top talent. These Galas are held in the beautiful Tropical Room and have been exceedingly popular not only with the Biltmore guests, but members of the cottage colony as well.

Wynters and Angeline continue to present their weekly Thursday night Champagne Hour in the West India Room and also their sparkling creative dance numbers nightly. With all this, plus two great bands and the Saturday night Galas it can be readily understood why the Biltmore leads the parade of favored resort hotels along the East Coast.

Sunday too is an important day at the Biltmore and is spotlighted with either a top fashion show from a fabulous Worth Avenue Shop or a colorful aquatic show. Both events are preceded by the decidedly eye appealing and mouth watering buffet luncheon as presented by Chef Pettengill on the Cabana Terrace where graceful palms and gay tropical flowers lend a glamorous air to the beautiful setting.

Friday evenings at the Biltmore's Tropical Room are again dedicated to those delightful Palm Beach Playhouse Celebrity Nights for Friday night subscribers. Stars of the forthcoming productions are featured and offer amusing impromptu entertainment—guests are greeted by Miss Mary Howes, the Messmore Kendalls and Mrs. Shirley Vigard as they arrive.

SMART RESTAURANTS

CHE SEASON AT THE PATIO RESTAURANT is in full swing, following three spectacular occasions there, when it appeared that all of Palm Beach had turned out to keep this popular rendezvous in the enviable spot it has held for almost a quarter-century as the favored gathering place for resorters.

Following record turnouts at its informal opening in late December and again on New Year's Eve, the Patio scored again on the night of its formal opening, January 27th, when many large dinner parties were held, and where scores of those prominent in Palm Beach were noted.

Martha, of New York and Palm Beach, presented a dazzling fashion show on opening night that drew the applause of men as well as women guests. Other sensational happenings are planned at the Patio in the future.

For the entertainment of its guests, the Patio is presenting specialists who have been acclaimed in some of the best hotels and clubs in the country. First on the list was Charlie Wright, who appears nightly with his entertaining "Songs at the Piano." Mr. Wright will be featured at the restaurant nightly for the remainder of this season.

And then there's Lillian Roth, star of the films and stage, who is staging a terrific comeback in such a fashion that the hearts of America are with her. First appearing on a musical stage when she was only 14, Miss Roth went on to great successes with such producers as Shubert, Texas Guinan, Billy Rose, Earl Carroll and Ziegfeld. Her first full length movie was with Maurice Chevalier, and she has been filmed in many pictures with movie greats—the Marx Brothers, Jack Oakie and others.

At the Patio she repeated the brilliant success she made in her appearances at La Vie En Rose in New York. That tremendous hit brought her offers from Palm Beach, Detroit, Washington, Buffalo, Toronto and many other cities—but the Patio got her. Lillian Roth's nightly appearances were highly praised by patrons of this smart restaurant, and they were sincerely sorry when her engagement here ended.

Another popular feature of Patio entertainment is the weekly radio broadcast "Playhouse at the Patio," when stars at Palm Beach Playhouse presentations take over on celebrity nights. As usual, there are the weekly "balloon showers" and "It's on the House."

The first presentation of "Patio Playhouse" took place on Thursday, Feb. 4, when stars of "The Moon is Blue," appeared. Artists presented then were Jackie Cooper, who needs no introduction to screen and stage fans, and Donald Cook and Janet Riley, who played on Broadway for two years with the original cast of "The Moon is Blue."

Noted at this popular restaurant recently have been Mr. and Mrs. Phillip R. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. N. Koslow, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Ferst, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Comerford, Mr. and Mrs. John Salisbury, Prince and Princess L. Dadiani, Mr. and Mrs. Morton Downey, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard Baum, Miss Nancy Randolph, Mrs. Henri Adan, Mrs. Harold Duane Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. N. Angonis, Mrs. Ethel Petinot, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Freidlander, Mr. John Boggiano, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cernandas, Mr. Milton W. Holden, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Landseid and numerous others.

IT'S FUN TO BROADCAST from Miramar on the Paul Crabtree program. Colonists and visitors make a habit of dropping in after the theatre on broadcast nights, Monday and Wednesday of each week, or staying after a leisurely dinner, to watch the fun and air their views for a fascinated unseen audience.

Drinks of superior quality are a must where patrons are to enjoy their dinner and supper parties. Miramar's two bars do the drinks with utter perfection, and the wines served with dinners are the right wines, served at exactly the right temperatures. From that scotch-on-the-rocks, bourbon mist, old-fashioned, martini or flame cocktail — a concoction of unusual beauty as well as taste — to the final fiesola or aurum, liquors or liqueurs, wines or mixers are all of the finest quality and receive loving attention.

Dinner may begin with fresh fruit cocktail, baked eggplant provencale, tomato juice, French onion soup, cold vichyssoise, egg a la russe, terrine of pate maison, half grapefruit, soup du jour, consomme double or jelly madrilene. They are preludes to American or continental dinners par excellence.

And those desserts — zabaglione with marsala, frothy and satisfying; crepes suzette liqueurs, a dream of blended flavors; cherries jubilee flambe, cassata siciliana, peach with brandy and cafe turque or caffee diable.

A la carte Italian specialties, green noodles Miramar, linguine with white or red clam sauce, home made egg noodles alfredo, spaghetti marinara or meat sauce as only Italian specialists can make it, and the ever-popular Sunday night specialty, baked lasagna, all share honors on the preferred list with discriminating diners from Palm Beach and the gold coast communities for miles around.

Dinner a la carte is served from five in the afternoon to midnight, and the establishment is at the service of its patrons until three in the morning. A cocktail lounge, two bars and tropical garden supplement the facilities of the well-known Florentine Room and private supper room.

Noted recently in Miramar have been cottage colonists and northern visitors in almost equal numbers. Baroness Leopold deSchuylenburgh, Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Messmore Kendall, Jr., Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald C. Rayner, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Clark, Jr. and Mr. George W. Clark, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph De Fina, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lawrence Parish, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munn, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. D. Russell John and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Roche are well known cottage colonists who dine in Miramar.

Among the northern visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. F. Homewood, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Robertson of Canada; Mr. Charles Chafer, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. G. Bonnett of Buffalo, New York; Mrs. D. Schultz, Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Reddington.

Other recent diners have been Mr. and Mrs. Edward U. Roddy, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Smith, Miss Patricia Smith, Mrs. Barbara Morse Perry, Mr. Russell Lord, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert K. Allard, Mr. and Mrs. Aris Z. Nyad, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Blabon 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. Emile Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Geiger, Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, Mrs. Joseph F. Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge Woodward, Mr. Charles Boettcher, Commander and Mrs. A. Winfield Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cleary, Dr. I. C. Mayor Perry McCampbell of West Palm Beach cuts the ribbons at the formal opening of the Club du Moulin Rouge, assisted by Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien (left) and Mrs. Earl E. T. Smith.

After the opening dinner of the Club du Moulin Rouge, Mr. Porfirio Rubirosa and some of his guests visited Nino's Continental, where they listened to the entrancing music of troubadour Chago-Rodrigo of Cuba. Left to right, Mrs. Spellman Prentice, Carlos Milberg of Buenos Aires, Mrs. Marshall Heminway, Mr. Rubirosa, Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas, Mr. Emilio Tagle.

Mr. Woolworth Donahue and Mrs. Sylvia Gable, among the socialites attending the formal opening of the Club du Moulin Rouge.

ONE OF THE HIGHLIGHTS of the social season was the formal opening of the Club du Moulin Rouge. Everybody acclaimed this "little bit of Paris" transplanted in the resort one of the most authentic attempts at this sort of thing, in the country. The effective color theme is pink and white, dramatized with reproductions by Zito, of the Moulin Rouge pictures by Toulouse-Lautrec. Pink banquettes line the walls of the oval-shaped room, which are decorated with white trellis modern motifs, backed with pink. A gorgeous chandelier from the Moulin Rouge in Paris, lends added glamour.

Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien and Mrs. Earl E. T. Smith, assisted Mayor Perry McCampbell, in the ribbon-cutting ceremonies, which officially opened the Club. Mrs. O'Brien's party included Mr. Philip Schell, Mrs. Earl T. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wrightsman and Mr. Howell Von Gerbig. Mrs. O'Brien was smartly gowned in a creation fashioned of imported Indian Print Silk.

Mr. Porfirio Rubirosa arrived with his party of 12, without his famous wife (Barbara Hutton)—unfortunately she was unable to attend because of her ankle injury. Among his guests were: Mrs. Leon Mandel, Mr. and Mrs. Spellman Prentice, Mr. and Mrs. William Benjamin, 3rd, Mrs. Marshall Heminway, Mr. Emilio Tagle, Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky, Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas.

The very attractive Mrs. Frank Farrell, was escorted by Tommy Bolt and the party included Mr. and Mrs. Messmore Kendall Jr., and Mr. George Clarke with Miss Jordan.

A very popular golf foursome consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harmon and Mr. and Mrs. Craig Wood. Jack Monroe was with Mrs. J. V. Richards, Miss Mae Andrews was with Mr. and Mrs. Belford Shouamate.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorne Donnelly's party included Mr. and Mrs. John Volk and Colonel and Mrs. John W. Monahan. Mr. and Mrs. Russell John were with Mr. and Mrs. A. Z. Nyad. Miss Ruby Edna Pierce had as her guests Miss Ethel Ehlen, Miss Ismar Black and Mrs. Barnet A. Maxfield.

Elsa Maxwell, famous international party giver, came with the Charlie Munn party. She is currently their guest and was quite at home surrounded with Palm Beach society. The party consisted of: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munn, "Doc" Holden and the Marquis and Marquise de La Begassiere of Paris.

"Wooly" Donahue was there with Mrs. Clark Gable. His guests were the Count and Countess Jose Dorelis.

The young Munn's were an attractive foursome; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munn Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gurnee Munn Jr., Mrs. Francis L. Kellogg, sister of Gurnee Munn Jr., was escorted by Mr. John Perona.

Another smart party included: Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Shevlin and Mr. and Mrs. Edward (Neddie) McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Shields.

Also present were: Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rasmussen, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, Julia McCarthy (Nancy Randolph of the NY News) was escorted by Mr. Charles Means.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Lorie were Mrs. Benson Ford and Mr. John E. Janes of Newport, R.I., who is a house guest of the Lorie's.

Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler's guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Balcom Hayward, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Baehr, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Church Paull, Count and Countess Giovanni di Castagnola, Mrs. Wilfred Cecil Riggs, Mr. James Patrick Maloney, and Mr. James Boyle.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham were noted at a table for two.

GREGORY'S MAISON ROYALE, the new French restaurant and cocktail lounge on Royal Palm Way is increasing daily in popularity. The delicious food served here is expertly prepared by a staff well trained in their field.

A special attraction at Maison Royale is the Parisian Terrace where one may dine al fresco. On cool evenings or in inclement weather, in a moment's notice, it can be properly inclosed for dining comfort. Or, if one prefers, he may dine in one of the luxurious interior dining rooms. The main lounge has also been the recent setting for a number of cocktail parties. Luncheon is served from noon to 3 o'clock and dinner from 6 to 11 P.M. The cocktail hour is from 5 to 7 where one may enjoy their favorite drink and Gregory's famous hors d'oeuvres.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney King Russell recently entertained with cocktails and dinner there in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Verne Ferguson, prior to attending the Palm Beach Playhouse. Their other guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. MacNeil Rodewald, Miss Myra Dew and Comdr. Dwight C. Paul.

Mrs. Columbus Healy entertained a party of 16 friends. Mrs. Walter S. Gubelmann gave a small luncheon there; and Mrs. Horner Fisher entertained a large group of friends for luncheon at Maison Royale.

Others noted there recently include Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas, Countess de Lugar Nuevo, Mr. and Mrs. John Archbold, Mr. Chester Dale, Mrs. John Colgate Jessup, Mr. and Mrs. Mario de Tullio, Mr. and Mrs. Roland S. Comerford, Mrs. William Lightfoot Schultz and her daughter Miss Elizabeth L. Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Emilio Tagle, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hamilton, Mrs. Margaret D. Nohowel, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Schwil, Mr. John J. Cisco, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rasmussen, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Harring, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sonnabend, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fentress, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt T. Dickinson and their daughter, Miss Katharine Dickinson, Mr. Jack Munroe, Mrs. A. J. Richards, Mrs. Jacqueline Gerli, Mr. David Legget, Mr. John J. Cisco, Mr. Trevor Howell, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kneip, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Louis Field, Mrs. Victor Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fentress, Mrs. E. Stralam, Countess Von Wasiliko, Mrs. George T. McCarthy, Jr., Mr. Emile Hemming, Mrs. Catherine Legget.

THE REGAL, STATELY BLONDE, impeccably dressed in the latest of attire and causing so many complimentary stares the other evening at Maxim's Restaurant, Miami Beach, was pretty Mrs. John Morris, the former Edna Brokaw, who with her husband was dining with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Constantin. The foursome have recently arrived at Miami Beach for the season, are guests at the Sea View Hotel, and frequent visitors to Hialeah. Mr. Morris, a New Yorker, is president of the Metropolitan Jockey Club.

Other members of the horsey set at Maxim's on an evening of recent date were I. E. Cudahy of Chicago; his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cudahy, who have a home in Bay Point, Miami, and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brady, whose name is synonymous with racing in South Florida.

Racing, of course, came into the conversation frequently at Maxim's, too, at a table for six dining there. In this group were Mrs. Charles Fisher, who with her husband and daughter, Mary (they're from Detroit) are owners of Dixianna Stables and race horses at Hialeah; Mrs. Walter O. Briggs of Detroit, a racing enthusiast, and the Harold Matzingers and the Marshall Alworths.

MERRIMENT COMES EASILY to diners in Scampi. Fed with the superb cuisine which brings diners to the famous Scampi restaurant from as far away as San Francisco and Canada, where word-of-mouth has passed its fame from one Florida vacationer to another; soothed by the restful, holiday atmosphere; entertained and refreshed by perfectly prepared drinks, it would be a dull patron, indeed, who did not enjoy his dinner.

In Scampi, the Boynton Beach rendezvous, gay parties of friends from scattered points all across the country find some of Florida's most delightful food offerings. In this "house by the side of the road", southern hospitality combines with continental cuisine to make a vacation high spot.

Among recent guests in Scampi's lovely dining room have been Mr. and Mrs. Madison Martin of Las Vegas, Nevada; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reugsey of Wyoming; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Moran of Seattle, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ziegelmauer, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Miller of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. H. Andre, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Noyes, Ironwood, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Allan S. Waters, Minneapolis, Minnesota; Mr. and Mrs. G. Sametti, St. Paul, Minnesota; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Newhos, Grand Rapids; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Foster and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Anderson, of Duluth; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ellis, Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. R. Glanville of Grosse Pointe, Michigan.

Among northern visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith and Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Engels of Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Schucker of New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Cameron, Silver Springs, Maryland; Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Aurell, Dorien, Connecticut; Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lee and

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Cullman of Akron, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Straus, Asheville, North Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. Albert McEvan, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Havenstein, New York; Mr. and Mrs. G. Battaglia, Jr., Norfolk; Mr. and Mrs. George Harbings, Toronto, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Hotchkiss, Washington, Connecticut and Mrs. I. Kritschmar of Garden City, Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Salerno, Garden City, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. David B. Morgan, Black Mountain, North Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. William Hueglin, Forest Hills, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Byrne, Rhine, New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Zimmer, Staten Island, New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. Chatting at the Petite Marmite Bar before dinner, left to right, Mr. Jackie Cooper, Mrs. Messmore Kendall, Mr. Donald Cook, Miss Janet Riley, Miss Mary Howes. Cooper, Cook and Riley starred in "The Moon Is Blue." Mrs. Kendall and Miss Howes are sponsors of the Palm Beach Playhouse.

THE PALM BEACH HAMPTON was conceived as a means of affording northern visitors an ocean-front home for their winter vacations; without the troublesome details of maintaining a separate residence. The beautifully decorated, fully equipped apartments of the Palm Beach Hampton provide privacy and a feeling of homelike relaxation, yet are supplied with hotel services.

Located on a high, scenic point of the smart new development of Palm Beach's south strand, the Palm Beach Hampton apartments overlook gulfstream-warmed ocean and sunset-dyed lake. A stately procession of ocean-going vessels can be seen making their way around the eastern promontory of Florida on their way to distant points; while in the lake many of the finest yachts in the world pass in review as they cruise north and south through the inland waterway.

Each apartment is decorated in soothing colors—beige and coral, aqua and Montego blue, refreshing greens. Each apartment kitchen is a complete Hotpoint installation, fitted for the easy, informal Florida vacation way of life. Hot water in abundance for every purpose, air conditioning and steam heat make these housekeeping units lack nothing from the most elaborate home a vacationer left behind.

The sparkling ocean beach is private to Palm Beach Hampton guests. Beach equipment such as windbreaks, mattresses and the rest of the comfort parade are supplied by courtesy of the management. Cabana service is available if the guest desires.

Located in the south portion of the rambling, Bermuda-style building is a weather-conditioned game-room and lounge, fully equipped for pleasurable hours on the few occasions when the outside aspect is displeasing. The congenial people who inhabit the Palm Beach Hampton gather in their mutual lounge, with a striking view of the lake, to pursue one of vacations greatest pleasures—meeting new people and holding stimulating conversations and games. Television and record player, ping-pong table and card tables are provided.

Private parking for guests is provided immediately behind the building, which has front and rear entrances through the spacious, covered porches.

HERE IS A FRENCH CAFE that compares with the best in Paris or New York. Situated on picturesque Via Parigi a step off America's famed Worth Avenue, one may dine in delightful seclusion amid tropical shrubbery and a definite international atmosphere.

Proprietors Brusa and Melchoir offer daily luncheons and dinner that appeal to Continental taste which includes sophisticated cuisine as for example, Kernel of Veal a l'Estragon, Red Snapper Mirabeau and the Parisian favorite Les Escargots de Bourgogne. For the more rugged American appetite there is the ever reliable prime ribs of prize ribbon beef au jus, roast leg of spring lamb with mint jelly, also exactly 29 additional entrees.

Who but the French pastry chef can prepare such irresistible desserts as coupe aux marrons or baba au rhum?

For the lovers of vintage wines, Maison Lafitte has recently received a few extra choice Burgundies of 1943 pressings. Imported liqueurs in most all the familiar labels. Some in short supply.

A special word must be said about salads as served here. French dressing is different in that the content of olive oil is at a minimum and calories are kept in mind by Melchior who presides over the immaculate kitchen. Consumption of olive oil in this country has shown little change with more than 90 per cent of the product being used by people of Latin heritage.

Dinner parties for holidays this month were in special favor at Maison Lafitte.

Observed entertaining in the spacious patio at Maison Lafitte were Mr. Louis A. Wehle, Mr. John Volk, Mr. Harold Vogler, Mr. G. W. Falkes, Mr. and Mrs. Sam A. Stephens, Mr. Henry L. Smith, Mr. R. C. Norberg, Mrs. Grace McAfee, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Lorie, Mr. Arshag Haragheusian, Mr. W. C. Hanley, Mr. F. Greenwall, Mr. M. A. Ferst, Mr. D. H. Fox, Mr. F. L. Flanagan, Mrs. V. A. Palm Beach Philatelist

PHILATELY OR STAMP COLLECTING—take your choice and the world becomes a more fascinating place. So says E. A. Kettel of Cherry Lane who was bitten by America's number one hobby a few years ago when he chanced to pick up a stamp catalogue lying on his secretary's desk.

And now, with many handsome leather-bound albums containing thousands of stamps he has collected, Mr. Kettel points to the numerous and varied vignettes as proof of his belief that:

"Stamp collecting, whether you become a serious devotee, delving into the subject scientifically, or just go along acquiring stamps that here and there appeal to your fancy, opens many avenues for the arousing of everything pertaining to the world and our existence in it—history, art, literature, governments, and all the personalities that have contributed in one way or another to the annals of mankind."

And while Mr. Kettel insists he's just a collector, his wide knowledge of the stamp world indicates he has a place in the category of philatelists—and there is a difference.

The term philately, which seems to have little to do with stamps, was devised by a group of early collectors determined to set themselves apart from the run of the mill brand. Concerned with watermark designs, color-shade, and all the many scientific details of the hobby, they produced the title of philatelists for themselves. Derived from the Greek, it's a combination of "philos," meaning "fond of," and "atelia," interpreted as "exemption from tax." And appropriately enough, as Mr. Kettel points out, stamps are among the few articles that may be purchased without tax.

A fairly new hobby, just a little over a hundred years old, it is one that appeals to all ages, and all classes, "and justly so," says Mr. Kettel, "when you consider the endless subjects that stamps portray."

It is, of course, the rare stamp that appeals to the genuine philatelist, whether he thinks in terms of aplomb to his collection or an investment as sound as cash in the bank.

All sorts of happenstances create rare stamps. One of the most unique involves errors in printing and designs of the vignettes, and careless workmanship that produces incomplete perforations. And, of course, the age-old institution of supply and demand. Stamps that are very old and from a limited issue, as well as timely issues, in small numbers, place such stamps in a sought-after category.

And it's entirely possible to stumble onto rare stamps even today. No one can say exactly where they will pop up, Mr. Kettel says, but incidents occur all the time in which choice vignettes are found in "old packets of letters in a dusty attic, and in the discarded files of long-established business firms."

One instance of a fabulous find occurred as recently as 1946 when a purchase of stamps from a Cleveland post office contained several sheets with only vertical perforations. Four blocks have been sold to date bringing the original purchaser $950 for each block. A block of stamps in philatelists' terms, is "an unseparated group of stamps at least two wide and two deep."

It is such finds as this, as well as the unexpected discovery of rare stamps in odd places that imbues the hobby with a spirit of high adventure. One of the most outstanding examples is described by Mr. Kettel as the "Penny Black of New Guiana," issued as a postmaster's provisional in 1856 when boats from England were slow in arriving with government issues.

The rarest stamp in existence, the "Penny Black," valued at $70,000, adorns the collection of a philatelist who prefers to remain anonymous. An outstanding example of Mr. Kettel's contention that you never know where or when you may find a rare stamp, the "Penny Black," the only remaining one of the issue, was found by a young collector in an attic in British Guiana some 17 years after the issue first appeared.

And the ironic aspect of the story is that he sold his find to a neighbor for a few shillings "because he thought the paper crude and the design uninteresting." And while anyone today would agree, since the "One Cent Black on Magenta," as stamp collectors describe it, is printed on poor paper with merely a circle enclosing the initials of the postmaster of that colony at the time, so humble a beginning did not deter the tiny stamp from a colorful career. Eventually landing in the collection of the world's most famous patriarch of philately, Baron von Ferrari, he bequeathed it to the Berlin Postal Museum where it was confiscated by the French as war reparations in 1922 and sold at auction.

Other postmasters' provisionals stand high in value too, for they were among our earliest stamps having appeared along with the first federal issues in our country in 1845. Remains of an issue of New Smyrna, Fla., sell today for $2,000 each.

Likewise other stamps in numerous quantities, held in high esteem, are those a hundred years old and over. Mr. Kettel's collection boasts hundreds of these with the pride of them all, an excellent specimen of the first stamp ever issued for franking purposes, "the Penny of Great Britain," 1840.

Stamp collecting which started off with the first British issues of 1840, at first was a hobby of the privileged classes alone, as indicated in an issue of "Punch" at that time which describes the hobby as "a new mania that has overtaken the industriously idle ladies of England."

But today the scope has widened to include 20,000,000 of our population with some 200,000 reported to join the ranks annually.

Actually the great impetus to stamp collecting in the United States came with the governmental team of Franklin D. Roosevelt and James A. Farley. The President who had been an ardent stamp collector since youth was open to all suggestions from his ingenious Post Master General. And Mr. Farley, long acquainted with the importance of publicity in relation to business, did indeed make a business of stamp issues.

No postmaster general in history had taken as much interest in his job as Farley, and never before were there so many stamp issues or so many members of our population buying stamps for collecting. His stunts were many to arouse interest and philatelists give him full credit for putting America at the top as a stamp-collecting country.

The stories connected with his numerous stamp issues are also many; and it has been said that he was not adverse to dropping a tidbit of bomb-shell proportions to unsuspecting reporters on occasion to the effect that violent controversy was raging over a particular issue.

One example is concerned with the 1933 National Recovery Act issues. Word got around that the stamp represented America's acceptance of Soviet Russia's ideology. And for these reasons;—that the vignette portrayed "a farmer who held a scythe resembling that of Russia; a worker whose apron was copied from those worn by the Soviets; and Mr. Roosevelt, walking side by side with a business man, was out of step." Needless to say, the Recovery Act issue sold out.

It was also during the reign of Roosevelt and Farley that specialization in stamp collecting began, and today there are thousands of collectors who confine their endeavor entirely to attaining stamps dealing with one particular subject. For example the collection of an American clergyman now rests in the Vatican Library because it is the most complete in the world dealing with religious subjects.

Animals, the classics, plants, vegetables, famous people, musical instruments, airplanes and flags are among the subjects specialty collectors endeavor to attain.

Mr. Kettel's specialty is Commemoratives, and one highly prized example is the Flag series. Issued in 1942 to commemorate the overrun countries of Europe, these stamps have increased to several times their original value. Also in the Kettel collection there is a complete series of all those stamps by which most of the countries of the world memorialized President Roosevelt, and the collector was once told by the former first lady that he was the only one she knew who had the entire astounding collection.

Commemoratives which Mr. Kettel describes as "just what the term implies—stamps issued in honor of some person, place or event, are also issued in limited amounts, and only once." Fifteen per cent goes to collectors, the remaining 85 per cent is used for franking purposes. Thus, within three years after issue, they are no longer in evidence, "and in about thirteen years," says this Palm Beach collector, "they are valued at three times their original cost."

"INFLATION PICTORIALS" of Greece. Top-line stamps have remained at normal value, but those in second and third rows represent inflation at its worst, having soared from a value of six cents in our money at time of issue (1942-44) to an amount equal to $300,000 in our money for each stamp, a few years later. The striking designs of the stamps in the two last rows are Polish Commemoratives depicting Warsaw before and after World War II.

As an extraordinarily bright example of stamp appreciation, he cites the "Graf Zeppelins," of 1930. Issued to commemorate the record broken by the gigantic German dirigible in flights from Germany to Lakehurst, N. J. the three issues at sixty-five cents, $1.30, and $2.50, would bring $13,800 for a set of 100 today!

But in contrast to the happy highlights, there are also dreary ones associated with stamps. "How could it be otherwise," says Mr. Kettel, pointing out that:

"After all postage stamps have been used to initiate wars, promote political ideologies, industrial, business and governmental projects as well as to praise the great leaders of countries and lay prone their enemies. Here is an example right among my Hitler series," he said, in bringing attention to the Hitler "Death Head," and "Hitler Behind Bars," stamps—both issues of Austria, the former Nazi's native land.

"But one of the sorriest scenes of all, is that of Greece," and in describing the drachma, a stamp issue of Greece a few years ago, he said:

"When the drachma was first issued it was worth six cents in our money. But because of uncontrolled inflation it became necessary for the Greek government to bring out subsequent issues that cost from a half to five million drachmas per stamp, or $300,000 in American currency."

THE British Colonial

... in the finest tradition!

It's a delightful place . . . a wonderful combination of continental charm, modern luxury, and noteworthy cuisine . . . just a step from the heart of old Nassau . . . yet secluded in a magnificent tropical estate with a superb view of the Harbour.

There are two creamy-white private beaches for swimming and water sports . . . a sparkling pool, largest in the tropics . . . championship tennis courts . . . guest privileges at the Bahamas Country Club . . . instruction by top-ranking pros . . . a lively but unobtrusive social program . . . dining and dancing in the air-conditioned Continental Room—everything, in fact, to make your stay at The British Colonial Hotel memorable!

Reginald G. Nefzger, Gen. Mgr.

“THAT IS THE VERDICT OF US ALL...”

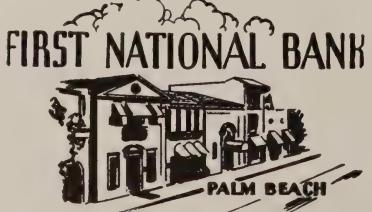

Yes. The jurors are agreed that the defendant, by putting off making his Will —

Took the risk that avoidable taxes on his estate would mean less money for his family.

Took the risk that their futures would be marked by distress instead of comfort, worry instead of peace of mind...

No such trial ever took place, of course. But when a person puts off making his Will, he does take these risks with his family's future... Don't take them! Let us talk to you and your lawyer soon about plans for your Will!

Par Avion from Paris . . .

THE SPOTLIGHT, turned so suddenly on the Coty family, is beginning to focus on 22-year-old Francoise Egloff, granddaughter of President and Madame Coty. A winsome little face, full of gaiety, darkly vivid and completely French and a sense of style sets Francoise apart from her five sisters and three girl cousins. Her mind is already made up; about Jean-Claude Helary, whom she will marry, and about fashion designing, which she will do professionally. Already the family has accepted her verdict on daytime skirt lengths—they must all wear their hems 11 inches from the floor.

Besides an engagement ring, Francoise has been given a pair of love birds by her fiance; she calls them Aucassin and Nicolette, after the poetic lovers of the 13th century. They may not get to the Elysian realms of the palace, however, the family cat Patou, is already installed there . . . It was Patou, the designer, head of the haute couture, who made the first evening gown Madame Coty wore as la presidente; Dior designed the midnight blue wool dress with three-quarter length coat for the inauguration. But Madame Coty's "little dressmaker," Germaine Cassegrain, in the Faubourg Saint-Honore, will continue to make some of her clothes.

In some circles there is concern that la presidente may become too identified with the kitchen because of her reputation as a pastry maker and because anyone who is a little stout is presumed to be, as the French say, "a friend of the casseroles." Nevertheless, Madame Jacqueline Patenotre, senator and mayor of Rambouillet, a woman of fashion and the mother of Baroness Scipion du Roura de Beaujeu, sent the Cotys a big cake to welcome them to Rambouillet. The old royal chateau at Rambouillet will be the Coty's new summer home.

The newly-wed James Michael Goldsmiths (Isabel Patino) are at home in Paris and find it rather quiet after the excitement of their feudal-style elopement. Like the heroine of the old ballad who would "face the raging of the skies, but not an angry father," 18-year-old Isabel dodged all over Scotland with her fiance, trying to stay out of the way of her wealthy and irate parent, Senor Don Antenor Patino. Then, just as the fortnight's residence which would permit them to marry legally had elapsed, Senor Patino withdrew his objections and departed. While London headlines were shouting that Jimmy and Isabel were finally wed, a small paid announcement appeared in the staid London Times stating that their marriage had taken place, quietly at Kelso. Quiet was hardly the word, but simple it was. The bride wore sports clothes and instead of a champagne reception there were toasts in white Burgundy, at dinner in Edinburgh's George hotel, with Michael Mordaunt-Smith, a London friend of Jimmy, and Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Oliver, at whose Prestonfield house the honeymooners were guests.

The prospect of a title and an elaborate Paris wedding, such as her sister Christine had last year when she became the Princess de Beauveau-Craon, did not intrigue Isabel although she was a bridesmaid in that memorable ceremony. The annoyance of her parents at her determination to elope with Jimmy Goldsmith was shared a little by Jean Desses, who made all the gowns for Christine's wedding and her lavish trousseau. From their grandfather, the Bolivian tin magnate, known as "the Rockefeller of the Andes," the Patino girls inherit a vast fortune. And as people who are so endowed usually do, they choose to spend a lot of it and their time, in Paris.

A bright new face in the international picture is that of Princess Margrethe, heir to the throne of Sweden, who has just made her first appearance in Court dress, at the opening of the Swedish parliament. When her father, King Frederick IX dies, she will become the first ruling Queen of Sweden in 500 years. She is the namesake of the 14th century Queen Margrethe whose energy resulted in the merging of Denmark, Norway and Sweden into one kingdom.

Not wishing to be known as the Dowager Viscountess Norwich, the former Diana Manners has taken back her old title, Lady Diana Cooper, leaving the higher title of Viscountess Norwich to her young daughter-in-law. These changes were put into effect immediately on the death of Lord Norwich (Sir Alfred Duff Cooper) on New Year's Day. Lady Diana will probably continue to spend much time in France, where she and her husband were so ideally installed in their Chateau St. Firmin near Chantilly. Lady Diana does not forget that as a debutante she was called the most beautiful girl in England; she works to keep her perfect figure and entrusts to Balmain the task of gowning it. To personalize the Chateau St. Firmin Lord and Lady Norwich had painted on its walls representations of the highlights of their lives—including her appearance as the madonna in Max Reinhardt's "The Miracle." In his memoirs, "Old Men Forget," published just before his death, Lord Norwich did not forget to pay tribute to his wife. Her caprices and escapades amused and enchanted him; he calls her "the perfect wife."

Norman Hartnell is now regarded as a better dressmaker than he is a seer. "Take your coronation dress along," he advised Queen Elizabeth when she was preparing for her round-the-world trip. "It will bring you luck." It didn't. Everything in the way of mishaps has been happening (from disasters like the New Zealand train wreck to rain on garden parties and the failure that is characteristic of island lighting systems at crucial moments . . . At Waitangi, Maori dancers, plumed and war-painted, bare to the waist and brandishing spears, danced ferociously to the tune "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

In Paris, St. Valentine is not honored solely by florists and confectioners. In the historic old church of St. Eustache, beside Les Halles, amid the tombs of poets, admirals and marshals, there is celebrated each Feb. 14 the Sung Mass of the Happy Couples. For the lovers, whoever they are, a red carpet is unrolled down the center aisle, the sanctuary is banked with pink camellias and the full choir sings. At the end of the Mass the pastor comes down to felicitate those who have been drawn to the service; newly-engaged couples, new parents and some who have obviously seen many years together. We know a happily married woman who goes to the Mass of the Happy Couples, alone.

"Can you imagine," he said, "going to the post office and planking down three hundred one-thousand dollar bills to send a letter through the mail? And don't think it couldn't happen here if inflation got the better of us." There are hundreds of these "inflationary pictorials," in Mr. Kettel's collection. Far too many, the collector says, to attempt mounting.

"But," says collector Kettel, "of one thing you may be certain, and that is that stamp collecting will not fade from the scene as long as the earth remains populated. For not alone is it a hobby of universal appeal, but also one that is both dramatic and democratic. Richly punctuated with legend and colorful stories of history, it's a leisure time endeavor that knows no racial, age or financial boundaries; and a collection may be made without spending a cent or one may expend a million."

Naming a few of the country's foremost collectors over and above the late President Roosevelt who to date has no equal, he said they would include, His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman, General of the Army Mark Clark, the Metropolitan opera star, Lauritz Melchior, and Adolphe Menjou, "as well known to philatelists as he was to movie goers."

If your interest is aroused sufficiently to take stamp collecting on as a hobby, Mr. Kettel advises that one first subscribe to a good stamp periodical in which the names of hundreds of dealers are listed. Also purchase should be made of the standard stamp catalogue, and contact made with the Philatelic Agency at Washington 25, D. C.—"a branch of the United States Post Office catering to collectors, and where excellent specimens may be had at face value over a current period of about 30 months."

The Vineta Hotel

 HE VINETA Patio and Dining Room have been the locale of many luncheons and card parties the last few days. Palm Beach cottage colony folks find this an ideal spot for entertaining.

As the winter season continues at an increased pace many more season guests are back home at The Vineta. All new arrivals are entertained at a Newcomers Cocktail Party every week.

Arriving from Chicago are Mrs. Harry J. Carle and her sister Mrs. Charles Herendeen who reside at the South Shore Country Club.

Mrs. J. Dalton Couig from Scarsdale, N.Y., flew in this week by Eastern Airlines.

Here for their annual two weeks stay are Dr. and Mrs. James R. Cunningham of Davidson, N.C. Dr. Cunningham is President of Davidson College. Their son, W. R. Cunningham of Miami, visited them during their stay.

Escaping the cold of the north are Mr. and Mrs. Torsten Forsberg of Old Greenwich, Conn. Mrs. Forsberg is a daily visitor to the beach.

Flying in from Los Angeles, Calif., were Mr. and Mrs. John M. Martin, on their first visit to Palm Beach. They are enjoying the many attractions. Arriving for the season was Mrs. W. S. Milne of Chattanooga, Tenn. She was accompanied by her daughter Mrs. W. D. L. Record who will remain for a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Woods, of St. Louis are at the Vineta for the season. Their daughter, Mrs. W. Galleher, who has been at The Vineta, has returned to her home in the north.

Short term visitors to The Vineta are: Mr. John W. Jacoby, Elmhurst, L.I., N.Y., Mrs. Gladys Hight of Chicago, Ill., who leaves shortly for Jamaica, B.W.I., Mr. S. DeMartini, Jacksonville, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Colby, Littleton, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Atherton, Concord, N.H., Mr. M. Foley and son Frank, Brookline, Mass., Mr. J. W. O'Connor, Newton, Mass.

THE GROWING TREND TO LINCOLN

Furniture, courtesy Knoll Associates, Inc.

What started the big move to the new Lincoln?

Why have sales of this fine car more than doubled in two short years?

The answer lies partly in the new and imaginative ideas inspired by modern design, modern architecture, modern living.

Notice the clean-lined new front grille, the expansive new rear deck, the brilliant new styling all around, the exciting new colors and interiors. Then try this new Lincoln.

Its action and its handling tell you why Lincoln won the Mexican Pan-American

Road Race two years in a row—sweeping the first four places in the stock car class.

The matchless Lincoln V-8 engine gives you new response with its new automatic 4-barrel carburetor. Handling is effortless; for Lincoln is the only fine car with ball-joint front wheel suspension.

Isn't a car as ahead-of-the-times as the new Lincoln worth an in-person look and a drive? You're invited to visit your Lincoln dealer. SEE YOUR NEAREST LINCOLN DEALER
